FLYERS DESTROY 27 MORE PLANES AND 2 WARSHIPS

5,500 Planes in Month

Washington, D. C., March 4 (AP). —Approximately 5,500 airplanes—the largest production in a single month—rolled off the assembly lines of American factories in February, Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson disclosed today. In a brief report on production for January, Patterson said that 5,000 planes were delivered that month.

ALLIED HDQ. IN AUSTRALIA, March 5 [Friday] (AP). — The flying fighters of four allied nations—American, British, Dutch, and Australian—ganged up on the Japanese to destroy the Bismarck sea convoy of 22 ships carrying reënforcements to New Guinea, it was disclosed at Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters today as details of the battle began to unfold.

All four allies participated in the victory, which today's noon communique disclosed cost the Japanese a total of 82 planes, instead of the 55 previously announced, along with the 10 warships, 12 troopships, and upward of 15,000 men.

Two crippled and helpless Japanese destroyers that remained afloat, remnants of the armada that attempted to take advantage of stormy weather to sneak reënforcements to beleaguered enemy troops on New Guinea, were bombed and sunk yesterday by aerial "mop up" squadrons that also relentlessly hunted down and destroyed lifeboats and barges, the allied high command announced.

Few Traces of Convoy.

The communique from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters told of the destruction of the convoy.

"Intensive and widespread searches by our reconnaissance aircraft failed to reveal any remaining trace of the enemy convoy in the entire area, beyond floating wreckage and occasional lifeboats and barges containing troops," the communique said.

Official reports told how Beaufighters caught lifeboats from the sunken ships as they sought to reach Finschhafen, on the New Guinea northeast coast, and strafed "and watched them sink."

They caught power barges loaded to the brim with soldiers and carrying war equipment, which were "destroyed with all on board."

Japan's fighter planes, which took a terrific beating in the attack, sought to protect the survivors, but four were shot down in one area without the loss of an allied plane.

Blast Six Planes on Ground.

Targets near Lae, to the south of Finschhafen and the original destination of this huge convoy, were blasted with 30,000 rounds of cannon and machine gun fire by Beaufighters, P-38 Lightnings, and P-40 Kittyhawks.

They caught six enemy fighters on the ground while refueling and destroyed them all.

Another covering force of 30 Japanese fighters, including Zeros, was reported to have limped home with 17 of its planes put out of action. Eight of them were known to have been shot down, and the remainder were so badly damaged they had to give up.

Official reports by the attacking planes during the heat of the battle March 3-4 gave new details of air versus sea action.

"500 Men in Water."

A B-25 Mitchell bomber messaged back from an area about 100 miles east by southeast of Salamaua:

"Were about 500 men in battle equipment in water. Only 200 when aircraft left. Sharks seen around life-rafts and boats."

"We have a new ally in the sharks," remarked a spokesman reading thru the reports.

A Fortress on the morning of March 4 observed "débris over a 20 mile area."

One returning pilot praised the "excellent ability" of the enemy flyers in this engagement, which indicated the Japanese sent along their first team pilots and gunners to cover this movement.

In the northwestern sector of Gen. MacArthur's command, allied planes bombed the town of Saumlaki on Tanimbar Island and installations on

WOMAN TRIPS; 178 DIE, 60 HURT IN RAID SHELTER

Victims Pile Up in London Subway.

LONDON, March 4 (AP).—A woman carrying a baby tripped near the bottom of a subway stairway during the German air raid on London last night and within a minute the 19 steps became a well of death where 178 persons perished and 60 were injured in a pile-up. The woman was rescued alive, but her baby was killed.

Sixty of the dead were children. Whole families were wiped out in the strange tragedy, and tonight a line of weeping women filed thru a mortuary in an effort to identify some of the bodies.

Among the dead was Dick Corbett, former bantamweight boxing champion of England and the empire.

There was "no sign of panic before the accident," and no bombs fell near the subway station which served as an air raid shelter, a ministry of home security statement said.

Hundreds Fall to Death.

But after the woman—with a bundle in one arm and a baby in the other—missed her footing and fell on the landing both the platform and stairway became a trap in a matter of seconds with hundreds falling in a writhing mass which crushed to death or suffocated the victims.

The ministry statement explained the accident this way:

"There were nearly 2,000 in the shelter, including several hundred who arrived after the alert, when a middle aged woman burdened with a bundle and a baby tripped near the foot of a flight of 19 steps which leads down from the street.

"This flight terminates on a landing. The woman fell down the last two or three steps and lay on the landing. Her fall tripped an elderly man behind her and he fell similarly.

"Their bodies again tripped up those behind them and within a few seconds a large number of people were lying on the lower steps and the landing, completely blocking the stairway. [The steps down from the street take a right angle turn to six more steps leading to the large open landing where the ticket offices are located.]

Press Down Stairs.

"Those coming in from the street could not see exactly what had taken place and continued to press down the steps so that, within a minute, there were hundreds of people crushed together and lying on top of one another, covering the landing and the lower steps."

Survivors of the accident told how frightened, crying babies perished in the arms of mothers and fathers and grownups died standing up in the jam.

William Johnes, a timekeeper, saw his only son, Peter, 7 years old, crushed at his side.

Johnes said he and his wife are veterans of the blitz and had not bothered to seek the cover of shelters during recent raids.

"But my kids were evacuated to the country at the beginning of the war and only recently returned," he explained. "They had never experienced air raids, so I took Peter, and our

LIQUOR STORES LIMIT SALES; DISTILLERIES' SUPPLIES ABUNDANT

Sharp curtailment in liquor sales in the 9,000 licensed retail stores in Chicago was reported last night. Liquor stocks at distilleries are reported abundant, but retail dealers said they have been asked by jobbers to restrict their orders for familiar brands.

Managers of chain liquor stores agreed that they, too, had restricted sales, with case lots barred for the time being. In many places dealers insist the purchasers buy fewer than a half dozen bottles. Jobbers declared their supplies from warehouses and distilleries are being halved. In many instances they said they have been obliged to accept brands they have not ordered in order to meet retail demand.

Smaller dealers complained that they are unable to get any liquor and that jobbers do not send salesmen to them. One dealer said he received notice this week that his wholesaler would not accept any more orders.

House Laughs at OWI's New F.D.R. 'Comic'

BY WILLIAM MOORE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

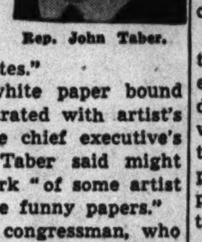
Washington, D. C., March 4.—Republicans laughed and Democrats smoldered today when Rep. John Taber [R., N. Y.] read to the house excerpts from the office of war information's latest overseas publication to come to light—"The Life of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Thirty-Second President of the United States."



Rep. John Taber.

The red and white paper bound volume was illustrated with artist's conceptions of the chief executive's life which Rep. Taber said might have been the work "of some artist who draws for the funny papers."

The New York congressman, who is ranking minority member of the house appropriations committee, branded the booklet as fourth term propaganda and told the house:

"The gentleman must think himself a superman or he would not have had the audacity to have this printed."

Comic Strip Style Used.

Here congressmen guffawed. Some explained later that the booklet's format resembled those of book form supplements of comic strip characters.

Rep. Taber threw the house into hilarious merriment when he read the explanatory matter accompanying a picture illustrating the chief executive's campaign for a seat in the New York legislature. It was:

"Roosevelt conducted a vigorous and unusual campaign by automobile. Cars were a rare sight in those days. Horses shied and voters were impressed."

Laughter again swept the chamber when Taber read this excerpt:

"It was only natural with his love for boats that Franklin should go out for the crew when he entered Harvard."

"Carries U. S. Imprint."

Rep. Taber, however, was grave when he spoke.

"I hold in my hand," he said, "a magazine or so-called magazine entitled 'The Life of Franklin D. Roosevelt.' On the back I read, 'Published by the government of the United States.'

"Inside for 16 pages are all sorts of caricatures and pictures of the life of Franklin D. Roosevelt from the time he was born until now. It has been distributed overseas to our soldiers, and from one of those soldiers in Africa it comes to me.

"Those soldier boys hate to see divisions of the government not contributing to the war but turning out cheap propaganda for something else. It cost thousands of dollars.

"The men who got it up are in the same position as the absconding cashier who runs off with the depositors' money. They are spending the money for something for which it was not authorized."

Called 4th Term Propaganda.

"It is purely political propaganda. It is done to promote the fourth term and dictatorship."

Taber said it is time for congress to halt burocrats from such enterprises as publishing the booklet and added:

"I call upon the President and those under his control to keep faith with the people."

Taber said he called Elmer Davis, head of the OWI, last night to ask if such a publication had been issued. Davis answered that he had not heard of it, according to the New York congressman, but telephoned today to report that the booklet had been published.

The OWI reported that 561,491 copies of the booklet were published, at a cost of $13,951. A spokesman for the OWI said he assumed that the publication had been approved by the White House.

Asked if the booklets were intended for American soldiers or for foreign civilian populations, the spokesman replied by enumerating the 11 languages in which it was printed. There were 100,000 printed in English for distribution abroad.

GOVERNOR OF TEXAS AND LABOR AGREE ON NO-STRIKE COMPACT

Austin, Tex., March 4 [Special].—Gov. Coke R. Stevenson today announced that he had signed on behalf of the state of Texas an agreement with leaders of all major labor organizations in the state to outlaw strikes, slowdowns, lockouts, and other work stoppages for the duration of the war.

"Representatives of organized labor," the pact said, "pledge the governor of Texas that they will not sanction or permit any interference on the part of labor that will in any way impede the maximum and full production for the war effort . . . to the end and for the purpose that not one man hour shall be lost within the state of Texas for the duration of the war."

The governor in turn promised that the executive branch of the state government will not interfere with industry or labor in any manner that will impede maximum war production. But labor gave him full approval to do everything within his power to stop or prevent any unsanctioned work stoppage.

The pact, which the governor called a demonstration that states and labor can handle the situation without federal action, has been in practical effect for more than a year and has been observed faithfully, altho it was made orally.

U.S. Nurses Fly Tunisian Skies with Wounded

ALLIED HDQ. IN NORTH AFRICA, March 4 (AP).—Twenty-five specially trained army air force nurses in trim navy blue uniforms have arrived here in an air evacuation unit which will fly back wounded and sick soldiers from the Tunisian front.

The nurses will free more men and medical officers for front line duty. They were trained in a six week special course at Bowman Field, Kentucky.

Blue eyed blonde Lt. Ellen E. Church of Cresco, Ia., said she was the first air line stewardess back home.

"This is a pioneering job and fascinating," she explained. "I gave up my post three months ago as superintendent of nurses at the Children's hospital in Louisville, Ky., for a chance to do war time duty. I have always hoped to tie up flying with my nursing."

Ohioan Is Chief.

The chief nurse of the unit is a pretty brunette, Catherine Grogan, Columbus, O. She trained in St. Carmel hospital in that city.

"We all volunteered for this job," she said. "I wanted to get in on the ground floor and work up. We all think we will like it, and none of the girls gets air sick. We aren't afraid of the risks involved if we can help care for our wounded boys."

With her as she talked were two other nurses—Mrs. Henrietta F. Richardson, wife of Infantry Capt. John Robert Richardson, who has been reported missing in the Philippines since June, 1942, and Sylvia Van Antwerp of Harvard, Ill., who served two and one-half years with United Air-lines.

Others from Midwest.

Other nurses of the unit include Alberta Denny, Lincoln, Ill.; Helen E. Grant, Berkley, Mich.; Helen M. Huiskens, Bay City, Mich.; Leona Idzikowski, Milwaukee, Wis.; Dorothy Lonergan, Kankakee, Ill.; Aleda E. Lutz, Saginaw, Mich.; Clara M. Morrey, Hancock, Mich.; Frieda L. Pagels, Birch Run, Mich.

Agnes K. Smith, Detroit, Mich.; Veronica M. Savinski, Ypsilanti, Mich.; Josephine F. Sansone, Milwaukee, Wis., and Martha B. Schramske, Boyceville, Wis.

Col. R. E. Elvins of Seattle, Wash., air surgeon of the Northwest African air forces, said air evacuations have been carried on in this theater without one crash landing.

Patients are brought in transports to airports from casualty clearing stations near the front and flown to base hospitals, with fighter plane escort, if necessary, he explained.

"The flying ambulances carry 20 to 22 patients, are fully equipped with medical supplies, and are able, in an emergency, even to perform blood transfusions," Col. Elvins said. They also carry hot drinks and food.

Void Contract, Blame Union in Work Slash

In an unprecedented action, the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company yesterday abrogated its contract with the union representing workers in its Michigan City, Ind., plant because of what it charged was an excessive slowdown in production enforced by the union. It cited 15 instances of "sitdowns" by workers from Feb. 10 to March 2.

The charges were contained in a notice served by A. A. Logmann, plant manager, on officials of local 290 of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America [AFL] that the company will consider that no contract exists until the union "concludes that production in war time is not to be interfered with."

No Strike Planned.

Charles W. Burchfield, general vice president of the union, said there would be no strike as a result of the company's action and that the union would await action by the war labor board on its controversy with the company.

About 1,600 workers are involved. Meanwhile, work was reported proceeding normally yesterday at the Pullman-Standard plant.

Logmann in his notice to the union said the company's plant is equipped to produce and for years has operated on a basic production schedule of three cars per hour, or 27 cars a day in a 9 hour day. Sitdowns and slowdowns were said to have interfered with this rate. In most instances of sitdowns, Logmann said, the workers sat down after having completed the 24th car.

Gondola Cars Slowed Down.

Logmann said that the recent instances of sitdowns have interfered with the production of gondola cars being built for the Union Pacific in connection with steel making facilities being installed on that railroad's route. Among the 15 specific instances which he listed were the following:

"Feb. 10—The men sat down at 2 p. m.—2 hours and 30 minutes before quitting time, after completion of the 18th car.

"Feb. 11—The men sat down at 4:13 p. m.—17 minutes before quitting time, after completion of the 23d car. Start in the morning was delayed account late arrival of men, also.

"Feb. 12—The men sat down at 3:46 p. m.—44 minutes before quitting time, after completion of 24th car.

Halt After 16th Car.

"Feb. 15—The men sat down at 1:55 p. m.—2 hours 35 minutes before quitting time, after completion of 16th car.

"Feb. 24—The men sat down at 3:47 p. m.—43 minutes before quitting time, after completion of the 24th car. Also laid off 16 minutes before noon, making a total of 59 minutes not worked.

"March 1—The men sat down at 4:20 p. m.—10 minutes before quitting time, after completion of the 24th car. [Some positions sat down 5 minutes ahead of this.]

"March 2—The men sat down at 11:51 a. m. after completing 14 cars; 10 more cars were completed by 3:58 p. m., when they sat down again, with a total of 41 minutes lost."

Logmann recalled how previous labor troubles at the plant reduced production of freight cars, which the railroads are now crying for to carry war goods thruout the nation.

Three Delays in 1941.

"During the first nine and one-half months of 1941, we experienced three strikes or work stoppages," Logmann said. "The first was from Jan. 23 to March 2, in which the production of 1,447 cars was lost; the second, from June 20 to June 25, in which production of 201 cars was lost, and the third, from Aug. 14 to Sept. 15, during which production of 1,032 cars was lost. In that period of nine and a half months 29.35 per cent of the plant's capacity to build was irretrievably lost thru strikes.

"Again in 1942 we had a work stop-

UNION DIGS UP POLE, PLANTS IT, RETURNS IT TO END DISPUTE

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 4 (AP).—Members of the Independent Association of Duquesne Light Company Employés today dug up a utility pole, planted it 15 feet away, then redug it and returned it to the original place.

This maneuver, arranged by agreement, ended an interunion dispute that had threatened to halt construction on a huge new synthetic rubber plant. The independent group had cut off power to the plant for an hour after finding members of an AFL union, employed by the contractors, moved the pole—a job they claimed should have been done by them.

ALL PORK SOLD AT RETAIL PUT UNDER CEILINGS

Bacon Is 46 Cents, Chops 41 Cents.

Retail ceiling prices for the Chicago area on 66 pork cuts will be found on page 10.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 4.—New retail ceiling prices for all common cuts of pork were established by the office of price administration today for sales by grocery stores and butcher shops thruout the country.

The new regulation, effective April 1, sets uniform ceiling prices for 66 different pork cuts for each of two classes of stores in various regions specified by OPA. The ceilings are slightly higher for small stores than for larger merchants.

These flat cents-per-pound maximums will replace previous ceilings based on the highest prices charged by individual sellers in March, 1942. Ceilings will be similarly revised shortly for beef, veal, lamb, and mutton.

Aim to Correct Inequities.

OPA officials conceded that the previous ceilings, which have been in force since last May, have resulted in an inequitable distribution of meat and created more acute shortages for housewives in some areas than in others. The old system, officials said, has "driven" pork and other meats largely into stores with high individual ceilings.

Today's regulation is an effort to correct this unbalanced distribution. Retail pork prices on the average will not change much, but stores such as large chains which previously had low ceilings will be able to raise their prices, while merchants with previously high ceilings will have their prices reduced, officials said.

The Chicago zone, which includes northern Illinois, eastern Wisconsin, and some border counties in eastern Iowa and Missouri, is one of 11 for which different retail ceilings are established.

Price List Must Be Shown.

Officials said that starting April 1 each retailer of pork will be required to display an official OPA price list showing the ceiling prices per pound for the 66 pork cuts, subdivided by grades into 230 classifications.

The new uniform ceilings do not apply to a number of pork products, for which ceilings remain at the individual retailer's highest prices charged during March, 1942. Those exempt include pork sausage, canned pork, quick frozen pork cuts, pork variety meats or offal, including brains, liver, hearts, kidney, tongues, and others.

Aimed at Black Market.

OPA officials asserted that the new retail ceilings will tend to discourage black market sales of meat, if housewives refuse to pay over the ceiling prices.

C. M. Elkinton, chief of the OPA meat price section, expressed the hope that this system will tend indirectly to drive down the price of live hogs, because it will channel more hogs into legitimate channels and away from the black market.

Today's order, however, does not bring any direct relief to meat packers who are being squeezed between uncontroled prices they must pay for live hogs and fixed OPA ceilings on prices at which they can sell processed pork.

Live Hog Peg Asked.

According to packers, the squeeze can be eliminated either by placing ceilings on live hogs to assure a fair operating margin, or by revising ceilings on sales of processed meat to bring them in line with live animal prices. OPA has refused to take either of these steps, however.

Elkinton admitted today that in order to assure fair operating margins to packers under present OPA pork ceilings, the price of live hogs should run about $14 to $14.50 a hundredweight. Meanwhile, live hog prices in Chicago were rising to a new 22 year peak of $16 a hundredweight.

Meanwhile, it was reported reliably that Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard will announce the federal licensing of all slaughterers, including farmers, in a radio address tomorrow night. The purpose of the licensing system is to regulate the flow of meat into regular trade channels and curb illegal sales. Farmers will be allowed to slaughter for their own consumption.

BATAAN CALLED A DEMOCRACY OF FILTH AND RAGS

Romulo Tells Horrors of War in Its Fox Holes.

BY COL. CARLOS P. ROMULO.
[Copyright 1942.]

We were sharing a democracy of filth.

I arrived on Corregidor with three uniforms. After my first visit to Bataan I saw men dressed in clothing that was shreds of rags tied together, and on my next visit I carried two of my uniforms to give away. Soon I, too, was in rags.

Suddenly I knew I was sick of the rat trap existence of Corregidor. There was no hitting back from the Rock. I wanted a chance to hit back.

The next day I was on my way to Bataan.

We crossed the three mile stretch of water in a small motorboat. It was a short but dangerous trip. Enemy planes had taken to pouncing down and sinking our small boats plying between the peninsula and the Rock.

No Heat Like Bataan's.

I have traveled around the world four times and spent considerable time in the tropics, but never have I encountered anything like the heat of Bataan. This was its hot season, and we were told it was the hottest summer in the history of the peninsula.

We were hailed as messengers from the outside world. Because I represented the radio Voice of Freedom the men seemed to think I had all the inside dope on the battle of the Philippines.

"When is help coming from America?"

My answer was, and would be thru four months of questioning: "Soon! President Roosevelt has sent word that help is coming. Ships and planes must be on their way now."

Dug Their Own Graves.

For the first time I saw the fox holes, dotting the field that was a clearing in the forest. They were trenches, open to the blinding sun and to enemy bullets. Some were round, like a pit, and held a single boy. Others were dug at an angle and held several soldiers. The boys had dug the fox holes themselves with their bayonets, others were dug with picks and shovels. Many had dug their own graves.

Before some of the trenches were land mines, and others were fronted with barbed wire entanglements hung with tin cans that would rattle if an enemy tried to crawl thru.

Japanese snipers were as common as monkeys in the forest. They tied themselves in the trees and hid under nets interwoven with leaves. The powder from their guns was smokeless. Their bullets could not be detected. The Japanese sniper who was killed did not fall, but hung rotting in his tree.

The smell of rotting flesh permeated Bataan.

I talked to boy after boy that afternoon.

They were in rags. Hunger pinched their grimy faces. In those dirt pits, where they could neither stand erect nor lie at full length to rest—provided the incessant danger let them rest—they lived, ate, attended all their bodily functions, and somehow survived.

Tortured by Sun.

They did not even have tin helmets to protect their heads. Tortured by the merciless sunlight, by the steam and stink of their filthy lairs, by the incessant demand of the moment to watch, fire, crouch again for protection—somehow these young Filipinos lived!

Many of them had stayed in their fox holes two months without being changed.

They had only one question: "When is help coming?"

I assured them, as I had their officers, "Soon!"

They believed me.

Some day Bataan will be a national shrine. But we shall never be able to identify the boys who sleep in its bloody dust. Our Filipino fighters had no identification tags.

MacArthur Will Return.

"Some day," MacArthur told me, "I'm going back to Bataan and take up the work of properly burying our dead."

MacArthur knew every creek and trail, every cache where food and guns were hidden, every command post on Bataan. He had visited every secret post on the front lines.

He would swing from fox hole to fox hole to talk with the boys. He did not run. He was unarmed and unconcerned. His cap was set jauntily on his uncut hair; his cane was under his arm. Not once did he glance at the threatening skies or the trees alive with snipers.

The Japanese always launched their offensives the same way. The charge began with machine guns. We waited, crouched along our fronts behind our protecting land mines. The Japanese knew the position of the mines. Their shock troops followed, watching for a chance to fire. Their faces behind their guns were terrible. Muscles strained and lips were stretched over bared teeth.

In Broken Formation.

They threw themselves upon our mines, which exploded under their bodies. Then came the lines, in broken formation, zigzagging, stopping to fire.

When they were over the land mines they knew they would meet the electrified barbed wire. Japanese soldiers flung themselves on the wire. Other waves of Japanese, coming up from behind, walked over the bodies spitted on the entanglements, to drop upon us who were waiting or running to meet them with lowered bayonets.

Once I spent a whole week in the field. There were brooks at that time on Bataan. Within two months most of them were dry. We washed our clothes as we had seen women in the provinces do, by slapping them on rocks.

The Japanese had a device for hurling long strings of firecrackers over the trees and onto our front lines. They hoped the boy in the fox hole, hearing them, would think he was surrounded and shoot back, making himself a target. Their planes circled overhead all night long, scattering bombs hit and miss. Their pistol shots rang all night in the forest.

Voice of a Woman.

Inhuman and monstrous sounds were broadcast from Japanese sound trucks on the very front of their lines.

Out of the night came a woman's voice, sweet and persuasive. In sentimental words it announced the dedication of a program to the "brave and gallant defenders of Bataan."

Songs followed, quavering thru the forest. They were selected to arouse nostalgia to the breaking point in a boy facing death and longing for home. "Home, Sweet Home," "Old Folks at Home"—these were the kinds of songs the Japanese broadcast in the dead of night, alternating heartbreak with horror.

I could not sleep. For the first time I realized what the boys were enduring spiritually, physically, and mentally, in the fox holes of Bataan. MacArthur had seen them there—he knew.

Bataan's One Question: When Is Help Coming?

(Story in adjoining column.)

Members of an anti-tank company on beleaguered Bataan before the defenders were crushed by the Japanese. In today's instalment of his eye-witness story of the fall of the Philippines, Col. Carlos P. Romulo relates that for four months the defenders had but one question: "When is help coming from America?"

HERO IS ALLOWED $577 TO PAY FOR FATHER'S BURIAL

Showing the wounds and scars of battle, Seaman James O'Donnell Jr., 18 years old, a survivor of the sinking of the aircraft carrier Wasp, appeared yesterday before Judge John F. O'Connell in the Probate court and received permission to spend $577 from his estate for the funeral expenses of his father. Because he is a minor, his estate consisting of $1,900 insurance is guarded by the court.

James O'Donnell Jr.

The sailor's lawyer, Paul R. Schanoff, said that the elder O'Donnell had died Dec. 31, 1941, three weeks after Pearl Harbor and his son's enlistment in the navy, and that the funeral expenses had not yet been paid. Young O'Donnell, added the lawyer, wanted to pay the bill so that it would not be taken from the residue of the estate, which belongs to his mother, Mrs. Mae O'Donnell, 3816 Arthington street.

Judge O'Connell allowed the payment and also awarded O'Donnell $185 railroad fare and expenses for his round trip from the west coast where he is undergoing treatment for severe burns and shrapnel wounds.

Climbs Up 30 Foot Tower to End Life by Hanging

Los Angeles, Cal., March 4 (AP).—Sheriff's officers tonight listed the death by hanging of 23 year old Abelina Ponce as suicide. They said she left her bed last night, carried a bedsheet 30 feet up a water tower, fastened it to a beam, knotted the other about her neck, and jumped while the wind blew and flashes of lightning and the peal of thunder ushered in a storm.

PRESS PROVIDES VITAL WAR AID, HOUSE IS TOLD

Guards Mankind's Rights, Halleck Declares.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 4.—Rep. Charles A. Halleck [R., Ind.] today paid high tribute to the nation's newspapers and told the house vital services are being performed by a free press in hastening final victory over the axis.

Rep. Charles A. Halleck.

Actually, he said, there is no end to a list of the ways in which the press is aiding the war program, but he asserted the accomplishments he described were sufficient to bear out the contention that newspapers are an essential war time industry.

Halleck criticized the administration vigorously for reducing the industry's newsprint supply, asserting:

"With such a record before us, it is incomprehensible that there should be some who should incline to classify newspapers as nonessential and dispensable."

Says Papers Aid Congress.

Congress, too, has reason to be grateful to newspapers for reporting fairly its deliberations, he said, continuing:

"Without newspapers, the voice of congress would be virtually unheard beyond the walls of its chambers. Its aims and labors would be distorted and misunderstood. Our sessions draw daily strength and clarity because of the invisible presence of the electorate who, thru their newspapers, sit with us formulating wise legislative measures to meet the great problems of the day."

Halleck credited the free press with arousing public support for inquiries thru which congress has reasserted its fundamental powers.

Calls Papers Guardians.

Halleck, regarded as one of the most influential members of the house and as a leading orator, spoke with emotion as he asserted there is no doubt where newspapers stand in the guardianship of men's rights.

"We have watched the rise of men who now lay exclusive claim to every virtue so that they may better further their own ambitions," he told the chamber. "They talk smoothly of the public need. They are the self-anointed—but if I were to choose between the burocrats and the newspapers for a guardian of the rights of man, I would unhesitatingly choose the newspapers."

Some of the services to the nation which he said newspapers perform are as follows:

Quick publication and wide circulation of the lengthy and complicated war time regulations issued by government bureaus. Personal interviews, telephone calls, mails, and the radio have been helpful, but only newspapers have been able to keep pace with the changes.

Cites Rationing Aid.

Publication of food rationing blanks in communities where insufficient printed forms were available and assisting the boards in the gigantic task of supplying all the necessary information to housewives.

Supplying of information on the draft to millions of men.

Aiding in voluntary enlistment drives of the army and navy, in treasury bond selling campaigns, in the scrap collection drives, and in the conservation of vital materials.

Halleck assailed government enemies of newspapers and said he cannot help noticing that many of these officials surround themselves with writers and press agents whose aim is to get newspaper publicity for their bosses. He added that some of the paper and pulp materials being consumed by government agencies and burocrats should be allotted to the newspapers to make up for newsprint reductions.

He urged that congress seek out and render harmless those whose enmity for the press has led them to attempt to curtail the papers' activities, warning:

"Destroy the newspapers, and in effect, you make possible an axis victory—a victory for ignorance and oppression in our assembly halls, in our schools, and in our homes—if not on the field of battle."

Civil War Cannon Scrapped

From Fort Sumter

A Civil war cannon from historic Fort Sumter was removed from its traditional spot on the Northwestern university campus in Evanston yesterday to go on the scrap heap to help out in this war.

The eight ton gun was the gift of the class of 1905 in memory of Northwestern boys who fought in 1861. For nearly 38 years it stood mounted on a concrete base at the south end of the campus, overlooking Sheridan road.

"We regret to see the cannon leave the campus," Frank Spencer, president of the Northwestern Alumni association, said when the gun was first offered to the salvage drive, "but we know that the men whose memory it has so long commemorated, would approve if they were alive."

WPB DELAYS CUT IN NEWSPRINT AT LEAST TO JULY 1

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 4.—The war production board announced today that it will impose no further curtailments on the use of print paper for newspapers, magazines, book and commercial printing at least until July 1.

The use of newsprint by newspapers has been restricted since Jan. 1 to approximately 90 per cent of the amount used in 1941. Paper for magazines, books and commercial printing has also been reduced about 10 per cent under WPB limitations.

Two weeks ago the WPB announced that a scheduled cut of an additional 10 per cent in newsprint use for the second quarter had been postponed for the time being. The postponement was announced as a resolution was pending in congress for an investigation of government restrictions on the press with a view of determining whether the regulations have been issued to abridge the freedom of the press.

WPB did not refer to this investigation in today's announcement, but said the assurance of no further cut before July was made possible by promises from Canadian authorities to deliver additional wood pulp to the United States.

LAW PROFESSOR SEES CHANGES IN MILITARY COURTS

Changes in the American system of military justice, designed for an army of professionals, were predicted yesterday by Max Rheinstein, professor of comparative law at the University of Chicago, in a public lecture sponsored by the Walgreen Foundation for the study of American institutions.

Prof. Rheinstein.

"Revision of the military legal code will take place," Rheinstein said, "not because it is inadequate or unfair, but because a war of present magnitude tests the American system and such a test would suggest improvements even in the best existing system of military justice."

Recalling that military law was designed for professionals and not for an army of drafted citizen soldiers such as he said the nation is likely to have for some time after the war, Rheinstein also noted the differences between military courts and civil courts in which juries decide the fate of defendants. He suggested that it might be advisable to have an enlisted man of equal rank with the defendant sit in court, instead of officers, exclusively. Appeal, an intrinsic part of civil proceedings, is not included in the military system, he said.

Red Cross Ship to Sail with Food for Prisoners

New York, March 4 (AP).—A Red Cross mercy ship, carrying food and other supplies for American, Belgian, Jugo-Slav, and Polish prisoners, will sail next week for Marseilles, France, Dr. Marc Peter, international Red Cross committee delegate to the United States, said at a war fund meeting today. The vessel, the Caritas I., is owned by the international Red Cross.

PICK SITES FOR 5 ALCOHOL PLANTS; TWO IN ILLINOIS

Select Moline and Peoria; Cost to Be 10 Million.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 4.—The war production board today announced the selection of five middle western sites for plants which will manufacture 36 million gallons of alcohol a year from grains. The alcohol will be used largely in the synthetic rubber program, officials said.

The plants will be located in Moline and Peoria, Ill.; Dubuque and Keokuk, Ia., and Carrollville, Wis. Construction will start shortly.

Cost of the plants will total about 10 million dollars, WPB officials estimated. They said each plant will employ approximately 100 workers.

Financed by Government.

Construction will be financed by the government thru the Defense Plant corporation, but the plants will be privately run under operators to be selected by the WPB chemicals division and the office of William M. Jeffers, rubber director. The sites were chosen from more than 100 possible locations and were approved by Jeffers.

WPB said completion of these plants will enable the nation to meet recommendations of the Baruch rubber survey committee that alcohol producing capacity be increased by 100 million gallons a year.

WPB officials said that under an agreement with the department of agriculture, the by-product, or mash, resulting from the alcohol making process at the five plants will be recovered for use as live stock feed.

Urges Use of Flour.

The agriculture department has urged that the plants use as their basic material granular flour from wheat, corn and other grains, after the grains first have been processed at flour mills and most of the bran has been milled off for use as feed.

Under this system, it was said, greater overall steam capacity would be required, since some bran would be processed at the flour mills, while a certain residue of mash would have to be processed at the alcohol plants themselves. WPB officials favor the use of whole grain.

They said a plan now is being discussed which would involve the use of 50 per cent whole grain and 50 per cent granular flour. It is expected to be approved shortly by WPB and the agriculture department.

BURIAL COFFIN SIZES LIMITED BY WPB ORDER

Designs and Materials Also Restricted.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 4—Coffins and burial vaults were brought under new restrictions as to design, size, and use of lumber, rayon, and metal by an order of the war production board today.

The order limits standard size coffins to 75 inches in length, 22 inches in width, and depth of 20 inches. Manufacturers are permitted to produce up to 10 per cent of their total output in larger than standard sizes.

Limit New Designs.

No more than 12 designs of adult coffins, one design for children, and one design for institutional needs may be produced by each manufacturer. Coffin makers are directed to file sketches, photographs, or descriptions of their designs with WPB by May 6. Any new designs not now being made must be submitted to WPB for approval.

Lumber used in coffins and burial vaults was restricted to one inch in thickness, except for 1½ inch thicknesses for ogee molding. For standard size coffins, the use of lumber is restricted to 67 board feet, and for burial boxes, 65 board feet. The permitted use of metal was cut from four to three pounds per coffin.

No more than four colors may be used in each design, and the use of varnish or enamel is restricted to two coats.

Linings Restricted.

For coffin linings and coverings, the maximum quantity of rayon permitted is 12 yards for coffins with hinged top fittings, 9 yards with half couch fittings, and 6½ yards with basic fittings. A manufacturer may use up to 10 per cent more in extra size coffins. No silk or wool may be used for linings, except woolen broadcloth made of waste, reprocessed, or reused wool.

WPB estimated coffin restrictions now in force will result in annual savings of 16 million board feet of lumber, 5 million yards of rayon, 67,000 tons of iron and steel, 800 tons of zinc, 650 tons of copper, and 1,700 tons of antimonial lead.

JACK BENNY, ILL, CANCELS SUNDAY RADIO BROADCAST

Jack Benny, laid up for a fortnight with a bad cold in the Ambassador hotel, has canceled his radio appearance for Sunday evening on the advice of physicians. Benny was scheduled to do his broadcast from St. Joseph, Mo., on Sunday. Tomorrow he had planned to give a camp shown near Kansas City. Benny has been attended by Dr. L. B. Bernheimer and Dr. Abraham Schram, 104 South Michigan avenue. Dr. Schram advised Benny yesterday to remain in bed over the week-end. Benny had made several appearances during his two weeks here against the counsel of his physicians. George Burns and Gracie Allen will substitute for him on Sunday from New York.

BOARD CAN'T O. K. GAS FOR FUNERAL, STATE OPA HOLDS

Springfield, Ill., March 4 [Special].—The state office of price administration emphasized today that local or county war price and ration boards may not authorize extra gasoline for attendance at funeral services or for use by service men home on furlough.

Six members of the Logan county board at Lincoln, Ill., resigned after John Schwartz, OPA district supervisor, asked for the resignation of Fred Longan, who issued extra rations so a Lincoln woman could attend her mother's funeral.

Carter Jenkins, state OPA director, who was visited by Lincoln business men in the matter, conceded the ruling "may seem inhumane and, in some cases, may cause undue hardships," but is necessary as a war time device. However, he asked the six board members to discuss the controversy tomorrow with M. H. Sinnott, ration board officer.

U. S. FLYERS RAID GERMAN RAIL CITY AND ROTTERDAM

Carry Nonstop Air Blows Thru 192 Hours.

LONDON, March 4 (AP).—American Flying Fortresses struck two powerful blows in daylight today, heavily bombing Hamm, key of a vast German rail network, and Rotterdam, an important Dutch port.

The American raid carried on the allied aerial offensive to western Germany's most important war time communications center following the eighth successive night raid in which the R. A. F. battered Hamburg.

[Dispatches from Berne, Switzerland, said that for the second time this week "enemy" bombers were reported over Berlin last night. After several German radio stations went off the air, a Berlin communique was reported to have said: "This (Thursday) evening American planes attempted an incursion over German territory."]

Five Fortresses were lost in the Hamm raid, but the bombers destroyed at least 14 German fighters.

Hamm Linked to Invasion Ports.

Hamm lies 140 miles east of Rotterdam at the junction of six German trunk railways which connect with others running to Europe's most important invasion ports.

All the Fortresses returned from the third American blow at Rotterdam. Pilots described the opposition as weak.

The German radio said 10 American bombers were destroyed at Rotterdam and "in attempts to reach German territory."

A United States communique said weather conditions were bad at both Rotterdam and Hamm, but that results at both cities were good. Direct hits were observed on railway yards at Hamm and on shipyards at Rotterdam.

10 Planes Lost at Hamburg.

At nightfall the allied bomb lashing of Germany and Nazi-held territory had been going on virtually nonstop for 192 hours. During the day, the R. A. F. had attacked railway centers near Le Mans and Valenciennes in northern France.

In the raid on Hamburg last night, the British lost 10 bombers in "a heavy attack." Unspecified targets in western Germany also were bombed and fighters made intruder patrols over Holland.

The Germans countered with two weak passes at London last night and before dawn today with a few planes.

Some casualties were caused but a communique said that "nowhere was the damage extensive." Three German raiders were downed.

PLUMBING EMPLOYE KILLS SELF.

Kalamazoo, Mich., March 4 [Special].—Frank Ladick, 36 years old, employed by a plumbing firm was found dead today in the kitchen of his apartment with gas jets on the kitchen range open. Dr. Horace R. Cobb, coroner, said it was suicide.

178 DIE, 60 HURT IN RAID SHELTER JAM IN LONDON

Woman Trips on Steps; Bodies Pile Up.

two daughters, Patricia, 11, and June, 13, to the shelter for the night and was going to return home."

"Packed Tighter and Tighter."

But they were trapped halfway inside the shelter. Patricia is hospitalized with broken ribs. June escaped with only bruises.

There was no rush to enter the shelter and the people were descending the first flight of steps in orderly fashion, Johnes said.

"Me and my kids were about halfway down the steps when everybody up front stopped," he continued. "People kept moving forward behind us. I didn't see the fall of the woman with the baby in front of us, which I understand started the jam. I could not see what was happening, as the entrance was dark.

"Some of us men shouted for them to move on down below but we all got packed tighter and tighter.

"I was carrying my little boy in my arms. Patricia was right in front of me and June just behind. Nobody could move forward.

"People began screaming and fighting to get out. Patricia screamed 'Daddy, I can't stand it anymore. I'm dying.' I tried to shove to make more room for her but couldn't move an inch—we were packed so tight.

"Finally I felt myself going. I was gasping for breath. My arms seemed to go dead. My little boy slipped down along my body until his feet touched the steps and he was jammed between my legs.

"For the whole half hour we were jammed like that. It was horrible. Babies were crushed and suffocated and died in their father's and mother's arms.

"Died Standing Up."

"People who had fallen down were trampled on as everybody screamed and struggled to get out.

"People died standing up and bodies stayed upright until the police came and cleared away the jam around the entrance and turned on the lights. Then the dead ones just toppled over."

Johnes said the wife and three children of a neighbor, William Hoy, a furniture dealer, died in the crush. Hoy had not accompanied them to the shelter. Johnes said another neighbor, William Lawson, lost two children. Their baby died in his arms and the other child was crushed beside him, he said.

In the midst of the crush Mrs. Elizabeth House felt some one snatch her 6 month old baby from her arms as she struggled to hold the child above her head. The mother was later dragged to safety thru the shelter entrance—and learned several hours later that her baby was safe. The woman's sister had grabbed the baby girl and fought her way down into the shelter, where they spent the night.

William Webster, another one who lived thru the disaster, said he had been dive bombed at sea and "saw 20 men killed on a ship, but it was nothing compared with this."

Powerless to Help.

"You could not move them," he said. "Spectators who went up to help were powerless to do anything, and a number of men fainted."

"Altho I was at Dunkirk I have never seen anything so terrible," said G. H. Davis, another survivor. "As I squeezed thru the door to the top of the stairs I saw bodies piled two and three deep. A man with a small baby in his arms was killed. His wife stood by powerless to help."

Thomas Wilson said "people seemed to be piled up waist high on the stairs. We had to stand on unconscious people to get them out."

Shelter jams are not new to modern warfare, but few incidents approaching this tragedy ever occurred here before.

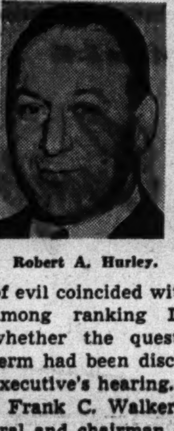
F.D.R.'S CALLERS SQUABBLE OVER 4TH TERM ISSUE

Talk of "Cool" Reception Mars Anniversary.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Picture on back page.)

Washington, D. C., March 4.—A controversy among Democratic party leaders over fourth term talk today partially blacked-out President Roosevelt's observance of the 10th anniversary of his inauguration.



Robert A. Hurley.

The President's prayer in the east room of the White House for power to contend against the forces of evil coincided with a heated debate among ranking Democrats as to whether the question of a fourth term had been discussed in the chief executive's hearing.

Frank C. Walker, postmaster general and chairman of the Democratic national committee, reported yesterday after a group of party chieftains had conferred with Mr. Roosevelt that "two or three" had broached the fourth term issue, but got "no response" from the President.

Hurley Disputes Walker.

The suggestions were made rather "lightly," Walker said, so that he was not sure that Mr. Roosevelt heard them because "he was doing most of the talking."

Robert A. Hurley, national committee man and former governor of Connecticut, took direct issue with Walker's account of the meeting. He insisted that the question was never raised. He said the group, which came to present party grievances to the party leader was coolly treated by Mr. Roosevelt.

"I was amazed to hear what Chairman Walker said about the White House conference," Hurley said. "We went there prepared, under the resolution adopted at the recent Chicago committee meeting, to register and report on the complaints thruout the country with which the Democrats are confronted.

'Like a Big Boy.'

"President Roosevelt, who I understand has been slightly ill, appeared to me like a big boy who had been called out of a nice warm bed to see some none too welcome visitors.

"He began the conversation at once and did all the talking. It was mostly about the war and all over in 10 minutes flat. I heard nobody mention the fourth term, nor any of the subjects which we came prepared to talk about."

Walker's report of the conference was supported by Frank M. McHale, Democratic national committee man from Indiana, who said he heard some mention of the fourth term. McHale's ears are attuned to fourth term talk because he is the master mind of the Presidential aspirations of Paul V. McNutt, war man power commission and favorite son of Indiana's Two Per Cent club.

Think Meeting Was Flop.

McHale managed the McNutt Presidential boom which never got under way at Chicago in 1940 and would like to fire the opening gun of a Presidential campaign which could be heard farther than the smoke filled rooms of the Two Per Cent clubs in 1944.

Other members of the group were quoted on Capitol hill as supporting Hurley's view that the conference was a flop because their grievances were not aired.

At the special prayer services marking the beginning of his 11th year, the President was joined by all the leaders of the administration, including cabinet officers, ranking army and navy officers, members of congress, heads of independent offices, and members of the judiciary.

SOLDIER ON WAR FRONT ADDS $110 FOR NEW CHICAGO

Pvt. David Thompson, who is with the army in the South Pacific, wanted to have a part in replacing Chicago's cruiser namesake, which was sunk in the Solomons on Jan. 30, so he sent a check for $110 to his mother, Mrs. H. O. Thompson, 2314 West 112th street.

The check, he advised her, is to be used in the purchase of war bonds to help the cruiser committee raise 40 million dollars in bonds by March 28, when the 40 day drive will end. Two of the soldier's three brothers, Dick and Robert, also are in the army. The eldest, William D., is employed in war industry.

The campaign total yesterday reached $16,149,050, when $1,094,043.75 of war bonds were sold on the 16th day of the campaign. Mayor Kelly spoke at the Treasury center, 72 West Adams street, during ceremonies to spur the campaign and to mark the 106th anniversary of Chicago's incorporation as a city.

SURVIVORS TELL OF SINKING THAT COST 678 LIVES

Torpedoed U.S. Ship Went Down in 25 Minutes.

Boston, Mass., March 4 [Special].—Survivors of the United States' greatest sea disaster since the war began today told how a single torpedo, fired in the dead of night from an enemy submarine, sent their cargo-passenger ship to its grave in the North Atlantic with a loss of 678 lives.

The vessel was one of two American cargo ships which the navy announced on Feb. 22 had been sunk within four days of each other with a total loss of 850 lives.

Five survivors, the first to reach the United States, the navy said, reported that within a few minutes after the torpedo struck the list of the ship was so great it was almost impossible to walk the decks. Many men were cascaded into the freezing water before lifeboats could be launched. The ship sank within 25 minutes.

List Causes Boat to Jam.

Hugh E. Moffett, New York policeman who joined the merchant marine only three weeks before the sinking, told of racing for his lifeboat station when the ship was hit. The lifeboat jammed, apparently due to the ship's heavy list.

"I did some praying," Moffett said, "and finally the craft, with about 50 aboard, slid into the water.

"I went along in that boat. It was packed and those we encountered in the water—about five men—had to be dragged along until we were rescued. Three of them were dead when they were dragged into the rescue boat. One man in the lifeboat died after we had exhausted all efforts to keep him alive."

Third Officer Harold W. Beach of Savannah, Ga., said he cut loose a number of liferafts, doughnut floats, and lifenets, then ran across the deck, which was awash, and got into a boat carrying four soldiers.

Rush Capsizes Craft.

"Men who had been washed overboard began to clamber into our boat and finally their weight capsized it," he related. "I swam to a liferaft and, while I was on it, the mast and rigging of our ship carried me and the raft under water. How long I was under, I don't know, but when I came to the surface an upshot of air from the ship blew me about 30 feet from it to two liferafts, one of which had a soldier on it."

Second Mate Samuel W. Dix of Baltimore, Md., 52 years old and white haired, was the highest ranking of the five survivors. He has been at sea for 30 years and went thru World War I, in the merchant service without a scratch. When the torpedo struck, shortly after midnight, he was asleep in his bunk.

"I switched on my flashlight to see what the trouble was," he recalled, and just then the third officer pushed open my door and said, 'This is the real thing.'"

Swims to Liferaft.

After helping lower a lifeboat, "with men clinging to it," Dix went down a ladder and swam to a liferaft which already was carrying a number of men.

"Another man and myself pushed the raft away from the overhanging stern of the sinking ship," he said. "The last time I saw our ship she was on her side with her mast to the water."

While the raft floated in the choppy sea, it picked up one man who was completely nude. The man died later in the rescue craft.

"They tell me we were on the water about three and a half hours before being picked up," Dix said, "but it seemed like a month."

The last survivors were not picked up until eight hours after the torpedo struck. A number apparently died from exposure in the frigid waters.

STORY OF ALLIED AERIAL VICTORY BY MAC ARTHUR

Remnants of Japanese Armada Destroyed.

Matkus Island, starting fires among large accumulations of oil supplies.

HEAR PILOT'S WORDS

BY TOM YARBROUGH.

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, March 3 [Delayed] (AP).—An officer at 5th air force headquarters looked up smiling tonight from a stack of reports on the smashing allied victory over a Japanese convoy in the Bismarck Sea in which 22 enemy ships were sunk, 15,000 men killed, and 55 planes shot down, and said: "The folks back home aren't going to believe this when they see it in the papers."

"It's incredible," he continued. "We destroyed more ships than the total number of men we lost."

American losses were one bomber and three fighter planes.

I listened to the radio conversation among the members of a Flying Fortress formation over the convoy for a half hour this afternoon.

Their voices came thru a loudspeaker in a tent beside a muddy road and their comrades at headquarters were crowded around the loudspeaker as if they were gathered around a radio at world series time.

As I walked into the tent, somebody grinned and said, "You're just in time for the bombing."

Account of Fight.

Presently we heard over the loudspeaker: "Direct hit on that one—blew it right up—if we're not intercepted we'll make individual runs—let's shoot the blank—Zeros at 9 o'clock—Zeros at 9 o'clock [indicating the position of attacking enemy planes]—Zeros at 3 o'clock—Zeros at 3 o'clock—

"Well, that's another one down—two to go—it's just like you see in the movies—Zeros at 10 o'clock—let's get out of here—there's too blank many—that was a rough deal for the Japs."

["O'clock," in the language of flyers, indicates degrees off a plane's course. The plane's nose represents 12 o'clock, the tail 6, the right side 3 and the left side 9.]

At air force headquarters, when it was all over, the big blackboard was practically covered with the instruction "attack enemy convoy," all marked up with figures denoting the completion of the day's many missions.

An officer said: "Now you see what air power means."

VATICAN ASSAILS FORCED LABOR PLAN OF NAZIS

New York, March 4 (AP).—The Vatican radio in a broadcast to Germany has bitterly criticized a number of practices employed by the Nazi state, including forced labor, the slaying of innocent hostages, and "the persecution of religion," federal communications commission monitors reported tonight.

The broadcast did not charge the Nazis directly with committing the acts condemned, but, said the OWI in comment, "the inference was clear."

Among the cruelties committed for the glorification of a supreme state, the speaker cited "the persecution of religion," "an unexampled disregard of the dignities and rights of the human personality," the "deportation of thousands for forced labor," the "killing of innocent and guilty alike," and "an unpardonable commandeering of human beings, especially of school and university youth." The broadcast was made Tuesday on the fourth anniversary of the accession of Pope Pius XII.

London Air Raid Shelter TragedyHas Lesson forU.S.

LONDON, March 4.—The air raid shelter tragedy which last night caused the death of 178 persons contains some lessons for civil defense authorities in the United States. There was bad lighting on the stairway. There was no loud speaker communication between the street and the subway platform. There was no center rail on the stairway. And it was a shelter which only had one means of entrance and exit.

CHICAGO FLYERS SHARE GLORY IN DEFEAT OF JAPS

Football Star Leads Fighter Attack.

Three flyers from the Chicago area shared in the glory of the victory over the Japanese fleet in the Bismarck sea, according to dispatches from allied headquarters in Australia yesterday.

One of them was Lt. Charles [Chuck] Gelatka, son of Mrs. Helen Gelatka, of 6940 South Rockwell street. He was the leader of four P-40 Kittyhawks which attacked a Jap landing barge coming from shore. Gelatka won national recognition in 1936 as an end on the Mississippi State university football team and in 1937 was a member of the College All-Stars' team that defeated Green Bay.

Dreams of Son.

Mrs. Gelatka said that Wednesday night she had a vivid dream of her son coming home. "He had a big smile," she said. Next morning she heard of the great victory.

A fellow Chicagoan who also participated in the historic fight was 1st Lt. Donald McNutt, 28 years old, who enlisted from Chicago two years ago. His home town is Shannon, Ill., but he had lived and worked in Chicago as a salesman for six years before entering service. Dispatches said he was a member of a Mitchell squadron which enjoyed remarkable success in skip-bombing at masthead level. Twelve men—including Lt. McNutt—scored hits. One of the most thrilled at news of his heroism last night was Miss Virginia Adduci, 3606 Lexington street, a friend of the lieutenant.

Another hero of the battle was Capt. John Henebry, son of Mrs. Joseph A. Henebry of Plainfield, Will county. He was graduated from Notre Dame university in 1940, and then entered the army air force.

Another Bags Three Zeros.

Henebry's bombs were aimed at the destroyer, and when he saw an immense cloud of smoke followed by an explosion he thought the warship had been hit. Then the destroyer sailed out of the smoke, apparently unharmed, and Henebry's crewmates saw they had sunk a tanker.

Another Illinoisan mentioned in dispatches was Lt. Charles Sullivan, of Eureka, pilot of a P-38, who brought down his third Zero in the battle. Lt. Richard Smith of Evansville, Ind., also accounted for a Zero.

SPAIN SEIZES FRENCH POST AND TELEGRAPH SYSTEM AT TANGIER

TANGIER, Morocco, March 4 (AP).—Spanish authorities tonight took over from the French control of the postoffice, telegraph and telephone services of Tangier, and they announced they would keep open the facilities with Spanish employés.

Arrow indicates zone where Spaniards seized postal system.

These services had been officially under the sultan of Morocco and were operated by the French ministry of posts and telegraph, but from now on, it was announced, will be under the jurisdiction of the caliph of Tetuan and the Spanish protectorate.

[Spanish troops occupied Tangier in June, 1940, and Spain later declared the international zone a protectorate. Formerly it had been governed jointly by France, Spain, Italy, and England.

ROMMEL PROBES ALLIED STRENGTH IN NORTH TUNISIA

Yanks Nearing Faid Pass in Central Sector.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ALLIED FIELD HDQ., North Africa, March 4 [Passed by military censor.].—Sedjenane, a small but important point on the Tabarca-Mateur road in northern Tunisia, today was under attack for the second day. It is 12 miles inland from the Mediterranean and 40 miles west of Bizerte.

This axis attack, like others launched recently in the north, however, has not taken on the character of a major drive. It appears to be either an enemy effort to find a soft spot in the allied line or a strong diversion to draw our strength northward and away from the main body of Marshal Erwin Rommel's troops now under pressure in the Mareth line far to the south.

Fight for Railroad Station.

The attack began yesterday with a strong threat from the northeast toward Sedjenane village. Fighting is still in progress and the action around the railroad station is described as confused.

[A dispatch by the Associated Press said troops of the British 1st army had been pushed back four miles in the Sedjenane sector.]

Another enemy attack, near what the British call Hunt's Gap, was repulsed with 25 prisoners taken by British infantry. Hunt's Gap is northeast of Beja and about 45 miles southwest of Bizerte. South of this area, the British counter-attacked.

[An Associated Press dispatch said the British 1st army was estimated to have destroyed 40 of the 75 tanks used by the Germans in the northern attacks. Of the 14 battalions of German infantry, the British were said to have captured two, or about 1,600 men.]

Americans Near Faid Pass.

In central Tunisia, American patrols recaptured Sidi Bou Zid and reached a point within three miles of Faid pass, from which on Feb. 14 Rommel struck out to the west and occupied 4,000 square miles of territory in a gamble to turn the right flank of the British 1st army.

The Americans have rewon nearly all of this territory except Gafsa, their former base about 60 miles southwest of Sidi Bou Zid. Allied patrols have penetrated within a few miles of Gafsa. Thirty miles west of Gafsa, American patrols found Italians in the mining town of Ain Moulares.

A French communique said, "Our troops have contacted the enemy north and south of the Chott Djerid." These are the salt marshes south of Gafsa and to the west [rear] of the Mareth line.

Repel Mareth Line Sortie.

Six miles east of Mareth, the northern anchor of the line, Rommel sent forward between 400 and 500 infantry in a reconnaissance in force, supported by tanks. The allied communique reported the push was repulsed by light armored cars, part of the advance elements of the British 8th army.

The allies employed their growing air superiority in all sectors of the front, striking hard behind the lines as well as at airfields and targets at Tunis, Gabes, roads in the south, and enemy ground targets in the north. Losses were three planes each by the allies and axis.

United States heavy bombers attacked Messina, Sicily, without loss, a Cairo communique said.

GERMANS CLAIM PRISONERS.

Newly gained positions on the north Tunisian front were unsuccessfully attacked by the enemy all day long yesterday, a German communique claimed. "During the fighting in the last week 2,110 prisoners were captured in northern Tunisia, while 68 tanks and scouting tanks and 36 guns were destroyed." The Italian high command communique said "opposing air forces were very active" and claimed that 14 allied planes were destroyed.

5 Bodies Wash Ashore, Clipper Victim Identified

LISBON, Portugal, March 4 (AP).—The body of Roy Rognan, New York dancer, was washed up on the beach at the mouth of the Tagus river today along with four others believed to be victims of the Yankee Clipper crash Feb. 22. He and Jean Rognan, his wife and dancing partner, were among seven Broadway headliners en route to entertain American troops abroad. She suffered only slight injuries and shock. Originally four persons were listed as killed, 20 missing, and 16 rescued.

RUSSIANS CLEAR VITAL RAIL LINE WEST OF RZHEV

Open Link to Veliki Luki; Gain on Other Fronts.

LONDON, March 5 [Friday]—(AP).—The Red army has freed the Moscow-Veliki Luki railway in the drive toward the Latvian frontier only 80 miles away, Moscow announced last night in a special communique, while in the south the Russians are threatening to snap the main Nazi rail artery linking Bryansk and Kiev.

The communique said a town 35 miles west of fallen Rzhev on the central front had been occupied to open the 270 mile railway between Moscow and Veliki Luki and facilitate the surge to the west.

An immediate Russian goal on this front is Smolensk and the 35 mile sweep west of Rzhev indicated the Germans were falling back hastily toward that big base.

Drive 25 Miles in Day.

In a 25 mile advance during yesterday on the northern edge of the Ukraine, the Russians rolled into a town only 20 miles from the vital Bryansk-Kiev railway, the communique said.

The Russian advance here was part of a vast operation aimed at undermining the Nazi defenses at Orel, hinge of the southern-central fronts.

The bulletin also reported the Russians had retaken a railway town 55 miles southwest of Kursk.

Other Red Advances Told.

The late communique also told of advances on these fronts:

WEST OF RZHEV—Two railway stations captured, 400 Germans slain.

SOUTHWEST OF RZHEV—"Scores of populated places were liberated."

NORTH UKRAINE—Several more localities were captured by the Red troops driving toward Konotop, an important rail junction on the Bryansk-Kiev line.

WEST OF KURSK—Several places were occupied and the Russians counted more than 6,000 Germans wiped out in a four-day battle for one railway town, in addition to 300 captured.

NORTHWEST OF KHARKOV—The soviet troops "continued their offensive," taking a large populated place, along with much equipment.

Repulse Nazi Attacks.

EASTERN DONETZ BASIN—German counter-attacks were repulsed.

WEST OF ROSTOV—The Russian troops "waged offensive engagements with the enemy, who is stubbornly defending himself. The Germans attempted to regain their lost fortified positions and launched a number of counter-attacks. Failing to achieve any results, the Hitlerites retreated."

[The Berlin radio yesterday admitted the Russians had breached axis positions around Orel and the news agency DNB reported a German withdrawal north and northwest of Kharkov. The German communique claimed the capture of a town 50 miles north of Stalino in the Donetz basin and said the bulk of a Red tank army was surrounded south of Kharkov. The Nazis claimed to have reached the middle and upper Donetz river on a 160 mile front and said Russian attacks northwest of Kursk and northwest of Orel were repulsed.]

POLAND ASSAILS REDS' CENSUS OF EASTERN REGIONS

LONDON, March 4 (AP).—The Polish Telegraphic Agency tonight said, in a statement authorized by the Polish government, that the poll ordered by the soviet occupation authorities in eastern Poland in 1939 "constitutes one of those unilateral acts which are not recognized by the allied nations" and could, therefore, not form the basis of any legal action. The poll was taken to determine the national origin of the people living in east Poland.

The statement added that the Polish government's declaration of Feb. 25, claiming the right to reestablishment of the 1939 Russo-Polish border, "was not intended to produce a controversy which would be so harmful at the present moment."

The government, it said, reiterated its readiness to reach an understanding with the soviet government "based on friendly mutual relations." The Russian government has rejected the Polish border claim.

U. S.-Canadian Air Pact Extended Until End of War

OTTAWA, Ont., March 4 [Special].—Continuation for the war's duration of the reciprocal air transport pact of 1940 between United States and Canada was announced in the house of commons today by Premier W. L. Mackenzie King. "Pending a decision by the government on post-war policy, no commitments respecting international civil aviation should be made which would tie the government's hands," King said.

REVEALS PLANS FOR RULE OVER OCCUPIED LAND

Students Cautioned on Excess Zeal.

Charlottesville, Va., March 4 (AP).—The big, sunny lecture room was filled with men in uniform—colonels and majors and captains—most of them gray haired, many stout with the years.

Channing Page, the speaker, paused for emphasis, then struck to the heart of the basic problem of military government over the civilan populace of a conquered country.

First of all, establish the principle of "Don't monkey with the buzz saw," he advised his attentive audience—almost 150 officers who are being trained here at the University of Virginia to direct military government in conquered areas all over the world.

Leave Customs Alone.

Page was a civil affairs officer in occupied Germany after the armistice. He frankly admitted he did not have time then to look up the answers to his problem in some complicated rule book.

"It is men who do the work," he said. "Not laws. Every time you make a law you have a dozen objections and exceptions."

A visiting British military officer expressed the idea this way: "Let the blighters alone." That is, make the natives toe the mark for the protection and safety of our military forces, but don't attempt to change their customs and habits more than necessary.

Brig. Gen. Cornelius W. Wickersham, commandant of the school, is a lawyer by profession, but he also is a veteran of World War I., and so is a realist about the school. Theory has been tossed out the window for the most part in favor of practical problems discussed by practical men.

Average Age Drops.

With each class, the average age of the officers attending has dropped. It was 51 for the first term, with all of the students regular army officers. The average age dropped to 47 for the second group, and this time it is 45.

An abbreviated list of students may give you an idea:

Former mayor Joseph K. Carson of Portland, Ore., now a major.

Maj. John Dawes Ames, for 13 years publisher of the Chicago Journal of Commerce.

Maj. Frank C. Dugan, sanitary engineer with wide experience in Kentucky and in Cincinnati and Lima, O.

Lt. Col. F. Van Wyck Mason, author of the current best seller, "Rivers of Glory," and 20 other novels.

Men Mostly Untested.

As yet, the school has had little opportunity to test the men it has trained.

"Africa definitely has not been a proving ground," Gen. Wickersham says. "We are not operating a military government there. We treated France as a friendly country, not as an enemy nation. That is where military government will operate"—in other words, in Japan and Germany and Italy and special regions which Gen. Wickersham said he could not disclose at this time.

Military necessity, he said, is the sole reason the school was established. None of the courses has any relation to long range planning, or to problems not directly related to the control of civil populations immediately after the war, or to the protection and safety of our forces.

With only four months in which to study most of the world, and to absorb the varied principals of military government, the students naturally are at work from early morning until evening in classes, conference sections and lectures. At night they study.

BRITISH SUBMARINES SINK 7 AXIS VESSELS IN MEDITERRANEAN

LONDON, March 4 (AP).—British submarines in the Mediterranean have destroyed seven enemy vessels and damaged nine others, the admiralty announced today.

One of the submarines, it said, surfaced in the Gulf of Genoa near the Italian shore and fired on a shipbuilding yard, reporting that she "scored several hits with high explosive shells on two vessels on the stocks." Another submarine operating close in shore shelled a train on a bridge.

The vessels destroyed in the Mediterranean included a large supply ship, a medium sized supply ship, two small supply ships, a minesweeper, and two tugs. Among the vessels damaged were a large tanker and a large supply ship.

REPORT QUAKE IN PORTUGAL.

LONDON, March 4 (AP).—The Vichy radio reported today that violent earth tremors of brief duration were felt thruout Portugal yesterday.

LT. GEN. ARNOLD HAILS VICTORY OVER JAP SHIPS

Washington, D. C., March 4.—[Special]. — Lt. Gen. Henry H. Arnold today hailed as a "significant victory" the complete destruction by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's airmen of the Japanese armada of 10 warships, 12 transports, and 15,000 troops in the Bismarck sea.

"Efficient and deadly aircraft, manned by grimly determined flyers alone brought ruin and death to a Japanese threat as it was forming," he said in a statement.

"American army air forces fighting men and planes, supported by allied flyers, have dealt the Japanese a crushing defeat and reëmphasized the effectiveness of air power."

Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson earlier said the "brilliant victory" constituted "a severe reversal for Japan and one that disrupts its plans for the coming campaign in the southwest Pacific."

YANKS BOMB 5 JAP BASES IN SOLOMON ISLES

Washington, D. C., March 4 (AP).—Five bombing raids on Japanese held positions in the Solomon Islands area, including the 82d attack on Munda, were reported by the navy today. A fire was started at Munda but results of the other raids were not reported.

The communique said that Liberator heavy bombers [Consolidated PB4Y] dropped bombs in the Japanese held aseas at Kahili, Buin, Ballale, and Vila in the northwestern Solomons. All United States planes returned from these raids, it said.

Dauntless dive bombers [Douglas], with Wildcat escort [Grumman F4F] attacked the Jap positions at Munda, on New Georgia Island. All United States planes returned from Munda.

The WAVES is an organization of women whose job is to serve with Navy men at shore stations. The SPARS is the women's division of the Coast Guard, which is itself a part of the Navy. Neither WAVES nor SPARS are required to serve outside the continental limits of the United States.

Who is eligible to join?

For enlisted status, the general requirements are simple. You must be a citizen—between 20 and 36 years old—have had at least two years of high school or business school—have no children under 18 years, and not be married to a Navy man.

You are needed now to be trained as a control tower operator, airport traffic dispatcher, signal or radio beam operator, aviation machinist or mechanic, aerologist, parachute rigger, or for any one of many other important positions—and after taking an aptitude test, you will be taught the craft.

What benefits do I get?

Good pay—up to $126 a month, base pay, in cash, plus allowances. $50 per month, cash, to start.
College-like life while in training.
$200 worth of uniforms are given to you free.
Free training for a trade or profession which may be continued in civilian life after the war.
Low cost insurance—allowances to dependents—free postage—reduced transportation rates.

Washington, D. C., March 4.—The first feminine opposition to the Austin-Wadsworth forced labor bill was heard by the senate military affairs committee today from a group of mothers whose sons or close relatives are in military or naval service. The Wadsworth bill has met strong denunciation from several other sources.

The women, representing the Mothers of Sons forum of Cincinnati, O., declared that enactment of the bill, which would allow the government to dictate where and at what men and women of the nation shall work, would deprive the citizens of their civil rights and produce a condition of "involuntary servitude." The bill would require registration of men 18 to 65 years of age and women 18 to 50, for work wherever the government directs.

Called Hitlerian Policy.

Mrs. Lucinda E. Benge, president of the forum, told the committee that "this bill was drawn to set aside the civil rights of our people. Seventy-five years ago, the emancipation proclamation freed the slaves, but this bill seeks to sell down the river the majority of the American people, under a policy exactly similar to that of Hitler. . . . Since the President has made a complete mess of our peace time economy as well as the conduct of the war to date, congress should not delegate to him further sweeping powers."

Mrs. Josephine Mahler said "this bill would mean the economic enslavement of the common people." Mrs. Anna M. Luken declared the measure "would make the laborer a serf, requiring him to go anywhere at any time, work under any conditions, or at any price."

Edgar G. Brown, director of the National Negro council, opposed the bill on the ground that it would "perpetuate peonage" of colored people in the south.

Earlier, some of the bill's sponsors testified in favor of the measure. These included Grenville Clark, New York lawyer and secretary-treasurer of the committee for the national war service act, who was instrumental in drafting the bill and helped prepare the original draft act.

Waring Favors Plan.

A statement by Roane Waring, national commander of the American Legion, declared that "it is only right and proper that there should be a draft of dollars, labor, materials, property, and all other things necessary for the conduct of the war."

Lawrence Fenlon, chairman of the Legion's national employment committee, said the bill would make it possible for the government "to assign man power to war production."

In testimony before the house naval committee today, Emory S. Land, chairman of the maritime commission, suggested that names of absentee war workers be posted in post-offices. Labor leaders appearing at the same hearing proposed that better labor-employer relations be established to handle the problem.

COURT REBUKES SEPARATED WIFE; ALLOWANCE CUT

Judge Julius H. Miner of Circuit court condemned the separate maintenance law yesterday as an evil doing no one any good, and after failing to persuade a wife to consider divorce, cut her temporary support nearly in half. Lawyers for both husband and wife in the case also assailed the law.

Principals were Mrs. Della Pohle, 31 years old, 3007 North Halsted street, and her husband, Lawrence, 33. They have one child, Geraldine, 11.

"I can't see where separate maintenance does any one any good," commented Judge Miner. "It is more of an evil than anything I've ever encountered. It is unfortunate the law providing for a divorce after two years of separate maintenance was held unconstitutional. This court looks with disfavor upon such a statutory separation, and does not propose to encourage it by taxing the husband unreasonably."

Judge Miner then granted Mrs. Pohle separate maintenance, but he reduced her $15 weekly support to $14 and eliminated a $40 monthly rental allowance. This cut her average monthly income of almost five year from $100 to $56.

Condition of Harding Still Reported Critical

John P. Harding, president of the civil service commission and restaurant owner, still was in a critical condition last night in St. Francis hospital, Evanston, after receiving his sixth blood transfusion. He is suffering from aplastic anemia, or failure of the bone marrow to manufacture new blood cells. Mr. Harding is 76 years old. His physician is Dr. Adolph C. Held.

Shifts Compete for Production Record

Honor Workers

How competition between its day and night shifts is causing upward production of items needed by the navy was told yesterday by the Lion Manufacturing corporation. On a recent occasion the night shift put up a sign as it was leaving, stating it had reached a production record. The day shift saw it and set a new record. The result of a month long rivalry was to see the daily output doubled. Representatives of the navy will honor the workers at a dinner tomorrow night.

MARITIME UNION HEAD WINS DRAFT SUMMONS DELAY

New York, March 4 [Special].—Joseph Curran, president of the Communist controled National Maritime union, has obtained a draft deferment of six months, it was revealed today. He has been placed in 2B on the grounds of occupational deferment.

One of the most insistent clamorers for the opening of a second front against the Germans in Europe, Curran had taken and passed his draft board physical examination when the union filed a request for his deferment. The union will be required to file another appeal within six months to show that Curran is irreplacable.

Until Germany attacked Russia the National Maritime union, along with other Communist front organizations, branded the European war "imperial," opposed the lend-lease bill, and fought against United States involvement.

STEAL 62 CASES OF LIQUOR.

Removing the battery from a burglar alarm to avoid detection, burglars Tuesday night stole 62 cases of liquor, valued at $2,261, from a liquor store at 217 East 35th street, Harold Marcus, the owner, reported to police yesterday.

RATION COUPONS TO BE GOOD FOR MEAT OR BUTTER

Washington, D. C., March 4 (AP).—The government plans to ration meats, butter, margarine, cheese, lard and other cooking fats and oils under a single set of coupons in ration book No. 2.

This was learned today from informed authorities who withheld use of their names.

The points will be interchangeable. That is, a consumer could use all his points for the purchase of any one of these commodities or for any combination.

Rationing of these foods has been scheduled to start April 1, but food authorities who may not be quoted said today it may be delayed until April 15.

NO EARLY DRAFT SLATED, PRE-WAR FATHERS LEARN

Clarification Affects 40% of Illinois Lists.

Forty per cent of the draft registrants remaining in Illinois are married men with children who Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the war man power commission, said yesterday would not be drafted for military service without a directive from his office if their children were born before Dec. 8, 1941.

At the same time McNutt explained how draft registrants' classifications will be reviewed and the order in which men in the various classes will be called for service. Fathers of children born after Dec. 8, 1941, who are not engaged in essential war work after April 1 will be subject to induction at any time.

The average number of married men with children for all states is 42 per cent of the draft registrants. States in the middle west are about average.

Before reclassifying men with dependents into 1-A, McNutt said, draft boards first must exhaust their supply of single men without dependents who are not deferred as necessary war workers. To replenish the supply of 1-A men, boards must reclassify 3-A and 3-B registrants in order to determine which should be deferred further for war work or because induction would be a hardship to dependents.

Quota Adjustments Ordered.

Selective service regulations require that registrants be called for service or that 3A and 3B classifications come up for review in this order: Single men without dependents; single men with dependents, but not in war work; single men with dependents and in war work; childless married men not in war work; childless married men in war work; fathers not in war work; fathers in war work.

Complete uniformity in calling men for military service is not possible, said McNutt, but state directors have been ordered to adjust their quotas to prevent one board from calling deferred groups before another board does.

McNutt added that selective service would protect family relationships as long as possible, but that the military services must total 10,800,000 men by the end of 1943.

Student Rules Changed.

Rules governing the drafting of college students were altered yesterday. They affect undergraduate and graduate students in scientific and specialized fields, pre-professional students, those in professional schools, interns, and students of agriculture, forestry, pharmacy, and optometry.

Previously students were not entitled to occupational deferment until after they had completed a part of their courses. Under revised rules the registrant will be considered for deferment if he is a full time student in good standing in a recognized school and if the school certifies that he is competent and gives promise of being graduated by July 1, 1945.

Meanwhile the navy announced that marine corps reserve college students, except the current graduating class, would be included in the navy's college training program which will go into effect July 1. Marine corps reserve students will be called to active duty and will continue studies in uniform on active duty status.

WOMAN SLAYER OF HER SON WHO SHOT SELF DIES

Mrs. Marguerite Hess, 49 years old, who shot and killed her son, George Judson Hess, 17, Tuesday and then shot herself in the brain, died yesterday afternoon in St. Francis' hospital, Evanston. News of her death caused the inquest into the death of her son, which was being held yesterday in a chapel at 2710 Devon avenue, to be continued until 9:30 a. m. today. Both inquests will be held at the same time.

The wounded woman and the body of her son were found Wednesday by John Sasser, manager of the building in which the two lived at 7405 Ridge avenue, who opened the door of their apartment with a pass key at the suggestion of neighbors. A note addressed to Mrs. Hess' divorced husband, Burchard C. Hess, an optical goods salesman, was near the bodies. It read: "Too late, Mr. Hess. And not smart enough. You can't hurt us any more."

Testimony by Miss Anne Christine Coote, 16, of 820 Milburn street, Evanston, a friend of young Judson, indicated yesterday that Mrs. Hess was upset because her son was going to New York to work. She said that the woman frequently had "fits of temper" and spoke "incoherently" about somebody being "against" her.

430 Fire Alarms Set Day's Record and Bring Warning

Chicago's fire department responded to the largest number of alarms in history yesterday—430 in the 14 hours from 8 a. m. to 10 p. m. Most of the alarms were for prairie fires, which prompted a plea by Fire Commissioner Michael J. Corrigan that Chicagoans avoid burning accumulations of rubbish while high winds prevail. Department records showed that the next busiest day was Sept. 7, 1939, when 359 alarms were received in 24 hours.

N. U. DEAN TELLS HOW WAR ENDED WORK ON JAP LAW

John H. Wigmore, dean emeritus of Northwestern university law school and authority on international law, disclosed yesterday on his 80th birthday that the Pearl Harbor attack put a quick end to a compilation and translation of Japanese law which he was directing for Japan.

The work, begun by Dean Wigmore when he was teaching law in Japan more than 50 years ago, might well be halted, the dean said, for the "ambitious, unscrupulous autocrats who have fooled the Japanese people into supporting them" have discarded not only international, but Japanese law as well.

Dean Wigmore went to Japan in 1935 to help finish the translation. Since then and until the Pacific war broke, manuscripts shuttled across the Pacific. One volume had been printed and a second was ready for the press when the attack on Hawaii came.

The dean, a league of nations committee member, said "gentlemanly nations" could have avoided the present war if they had been firm in opposing aggression.

DRYS SEEK CURB ON ABSENTEEISM BY LIQUOR BAN

Cloak New Bill in War Necessity.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 4.—A new war time prohibition bill striking at worker absenteeism in war plants was introduced in the house today by Rep. Joseph R. Bryson [D., S. C.]. The measure would outlaw the manufacture, transportation, or sale of intoxicants in the country for the duration of the war except for industrial or medical use.

It is the latest move by congressional dry forces to make history repeat itself and clamp prohibition on the nation under the pretext that it is a war necessity. The first prohibition law was passed by congress during the last World war as a grain conservation measure and was followed by adoption of the 18th amendment which remained on the books thru the gangster ridden dry era until repeal in 1933.

Grain Not Mentioned.

Bryson's measure does not mention grain conservation since all production of alcoholic beverages for drinking has been stopped and the only alcohol being manufactured at present is used for munitions, chiefly high explosives.

The bill states that its purpose is to reduce absenteeism from war jobs, speed production, and conserve rubber and shipping space for essential purposes. According to a lengthy preamble, passage would increase efficiency in the production of arms, ships, planes, food, and clothing for the army and navy.

Similar to Volstead Act.

Prohibition violators under the Bryson bill would be charged with a misdemeanor and could be punished up to two years in prison and a fine of $1,000. In many respects his measure is similar to the Volstead act for enforcement of the old prohibition laws. Places where liquor is sold or stored could be padlocked and persons found guilty of aiding in an illegal liquor traffic would face maximum punishment of a year in jail and $1,000 fine.

(Picture on back page.)

Los Angeles, Cal., March 4 (AP).—Charging mental cruelty, Film Actress Elyse Knox, 25 years old, asks a divorce from Paul Hesse, 46, color photographer. "Paul and I are both high strung and nervous," she explained in her suit. "We cannot seem to adjust our lives." They were married Feb. 21, 1942.

Make Yourself A $2,000,000 HIGHBALL

Know how to make a correct highball? Lots of people don't, so we're giving you the recipe below! We call it a $2,000,000 "dream of a drink"—because that's what Fleischmann invested in grains, skill and research before we released one golden bottle of this rich, luxurious, straight bourbon whiskey. We make it in limited amounts. We have to—it's so good!

FIRST, GET FLEISCHMANN'S BOND THEN DO THIS!

1 Place the ice cubes in an empty 6 or 8-oz. glass. Connoisseurs say the ice must go in first!

2 Then, add 1½ ounces of delicious Fleischmann's Bond. A good highball needs Fleischmann's smooth creaminess!

3 Fill with club soda or ginger ale. For a perfectly mixed drink, place ingredients in glass in the order given!

Seize Truck Driver After Crash; Charge Intoxication

Joseph O'Connor, 23 years old, 4561 Oakenwald avenue, driver of a fuel oil truck, was arrested on charges of driving thru a signal light, reckless driving, driving while intoxicated, and driving without a chauffeur's license last night. His arrest resulted from his truck's sidewiping an automobile at Cermak road and Marshall boulevard. Some 1,000 gallons of oil was spilled. Firemen washed it off the streets to eliminate the fire hazard. Two persons who were in the automobile were treated for bruises in St. Anthony's hospital.

What Everyone Should Know—Before Buying Shoes Today

All the best grade heavier soles are taken by the U. S. Gov't for our Armed Forces and Lend-Lease . . . None of these super-quality leather soles have been cut for civilian shoes since April 25, 1942, regardless of how high priced the shoes.

Of the good soles left for civilian shoes . . .

Thom McAn uses the best selection he can possibly get. So why spend needlessly, why not save money by wearing Thom McAns?

How Millions of People Saved Millions of Dollars

Year after year, more people buy their shoes from my white front stores than from any other shoe store organization in all America. Last year alone, I sold 11 MILLION PAIRS—11,179,792 pairs, to be exact.

It is this huge volume, done in simple, inexpensive stores, that makes my low prices possible—and brings you savings.

FOOD SHORTAGE GROWS SERIOUS IN COAST AREAS

Unrest Stirs Californians Unable to Fill Needs.

San Francisco, Cal., March 4 [Special].—Before the war California was one of the nation's richest breadbaskets, pouring its surplus food into all parts of the country by thousands of train loads. Today many Californians are wondering where their next meals are coming from.

The seriousness of the food shortage is indicated by California congressmen's appeals to Washington and by remedial state legislation being drawn. It is emphasized by lines of women shoppers waiting at meat stores and their departure with few or none of the items they came to buy.

None has gone hungry as yet, but food industry officials and state authorities agree that unless a solution is found quickly, that time may not be far off. Complaints already have been made in the state's great shipyards and aircraft manufacturing areas that war production has suffered because workers were not getting enough to eat.

Entire Coast Affected.

What is happening in California also is taking place in her up-coast sister states, Oregon and Washington, altho to a lesser degree.

There is even talk of milk rationing in Seattle, in the heart of one of the west's greatest dairy regions, and butter is so scarce that soldiers are reported getting oleomargarine. Typical of the near panic over food was Seattle's recent scare, during which shoppers bought gunny sacks full of bread.

The reasons for this serious and complex situation are manifold. A year and a quarter of war has ruthlessly switched the west coast from an agricultural to an industrial economy. At least a million and a half persons have been added to the populations of the three states.

Military Needs Increase.

The war has multiplied a hundred times the food needs of military establishments within the area, which must feed the thousands of troops passing thru to war zones and other thousands in training centers. It also has caused the removal inland of thousands of Japanese who once owned and tilled farm land which produced about a third of the area's food supply. Efforts to replace them, either with local residents or workers imported from Mexico, have not been successful.

Another factor has been price inequality between this area and the middle and eastern states where packers now can sell their products close to home at virtually the same price it would bring here.

The shortage of meat is the most vital issue and has caused the greatest problem and the most unrest. Southern California civilians are now getting less than 40 per cent of the meat they received in 1941.

Bay Population Swollen.

In San Francisco, where the meat shortage seems worst, butchers propose limitation of purchases to 20 cents per person to spread the supply among a population, which, on the basis of registration for ration book No. 2, approaches 700,000. The system would apply equally to other war swollen communities of the bay area and their more than 1,000,000 inhabitants.

Up and down the coast, in San Diego, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle, and Portland, Ore., the public has been clamoring for meat rationing as the supply has steadily decreased during the last two months.

Witnesses at a legislative hearing in San Francisco this week declared that congressional legislation is the only solution. Others charged that packers were refusing to slaughter. Mayor Angelo Rossi of San Francisco denounced Washington's failure to act, declaring, "They seem to think the United States boundary ends at the Rocky mountains."

One of the chief complaints concerning meat—and other foods as well—has been that allotments were established on the basis of the 1940 census and without regard for the hundreds of thousands who have come from inland states to work in west coast war plants.

Detroit Traitor Appeals to U. S. Supreme Court

Detroit, Mich., March 4 (AP).—Max Stephan, convicted traitor, today appealed to the United States Supreme court in his final fight to escape the gallows. Stephan, German born restaurant proprietor, was convicted by a federal court jury last August of having aided a Nazi flyer who escaped from Canada.

UNION ASSAILED FOR WORK SLASH; FIRM VOIDS PACT

page from June 16 to June 22 while building cars for the United States army for export under lend-lease."

Logmann said that if the company is able to obtain materials, it will begin production on gondola cars for the United States army for use overseas. If the materials are not available, work will be continued on a Union Pacific contract for cars at the production rate of 27 a day.

Logmann said representatives of the union first insisted that production of Union Pacific cars be cut to 22 cars a day, then to 25, and subsequently to 24. He said this was done "despite the fact that some men have quit and gone elsewhere, stating that they were going to work where they could put in a day's work and earn a day's pay. Others have expressed the opinion that the lineup at the rate of 27 cars a day was a cinch."

Sees Low Production Policy.

"We are able to control our organization and expect to do this," the manager told the union. "We cannot be expected to be bound by a contract with an organization which, by its established record, regards a contract between it and this company as one to be observed or not to be observed by it and its members as expediencies suggest. Your performance demonstrates clearly that it is the set policy of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen to enforce upon its membership low production.

"The contract does not permit this and it is particularly reprehensible in war time. The record of strikes and work stoppages at the Michigan City plant since your organization came into the picture has been outlined and your statement in the present instance that you cannot control the men is overwhelming evidence of your lack of influence on them."

Logmann told the union officials that the company will continue to discuss with them, as long as the union is the certified bargaining agent of the plant, any matters which require discussion on a fair and equitable basis, but "not in accordance with the conditions of the breached contract."

Burchfield said the union does not intend to interfere with production and work will go on as usual.

"If the company intends to force us to strike to put us in a bad light with the public and the war labor board, it is badly mistaken," he said.

"Our contract, which was signed with the company last Aug. 6 still holds. The men have been instructed to work as usual and to rely on the fairness of the war labor board to which the dispute was recently certified.

"Driven by Company."

"We intend to let the WLB decide the controversy that now exists. Members of our union were driven by the company for three weeks in an effort to reach the 27 car goal set by management and they were able to build only 21 cars because of the company's inability to obtain sufficient help. When the members couldn't reach their piece work rate they sat down until the union stepped in and told them to continue work."

The dispute between the union and the company over the company's 27 cars a day production schedule was certified to the WLB after a sitdown on Feb. 10 had brought a federal conciliator into the dispute. No date has been set for a hearing.

It was said that the men are paid for piece work on the basis of a 27 car day. The union contends that the men are unable to reach this production rate and since the minimum pay rates are based on the 27 car day they are unable to reach the minimum figures. The company contends that the 27 car day is practical as demonstrated by the plant's record.

IT'S ONION, NOT ORCHID, THAT REIGNS IN 1943

Flowers Are Secondary to Vegetables This Year.

Production of flowers in 1943 will be secondary to the vegetables needed to bolster war time food shortages.

As C. Eugene Pfister, horticulturist, declared yesterday that food is as important as bullets in winning the war, scores of florists and greenhouse operators were reducing their flower plantings as much as 50 per cent and were substituting millions of vegetable seeds to meet the expected demands of spring.

First garden plants to reach the market will be onion sets on the Water street market about March 15. Lansing and South Holland, Ill., growers will send more than 15,000,000 onion sets to market. Growers expect to sell 20,000,000 vegetable seedlings between April 15 and May 15.

$50 Worth of Food for $5.

Pfister, a Highland Park rose fancier, spoke before the Central Lions club in Hotel Sherman. Turning his attention to vegetables, he advised gardeners not to overestimate what they can do. A 25 by 50 foot plot, he said, will raise $50 worth of food for $5, and the average lot should thrive on an hour of attention each day.

The 200 operators of greenhouses in the Chicago metropolitan area will produce 300 per cent more vegetable seedlings this spring than ever before. Lack of labor has brought about the staffing of one greenhouse with Japanese labor from the west coast.

More than 1,000 employés of the greenhouses have gone into war industry, the florists say, and the proprietors have turned to the war relocation authority, which places Japanese in jobs, to supply them with Japanese gardeners.

Lots to Be Available.

Burt R. Kiely, president of the Chicago Real Estate board, announced members will coöperate with Chicago gardeners in making vacant lots available for vegetable planting.

Meanwhile Raymond S. McKeough, regional administrator of the office of price administration, told planters of beans, peas, or lentils that they need not spend ration coupons to buy seed. Seed buyers may apply for special rationing certificates on Form R-135 and will receive certificates declaring the number of points allowed on the basis of 8 points for each pound of the vegetables expected to be grown.

THIEVES LOOT PARKED AUTO.

Police sought yesterday the thieves who Wednesday night took two revolvers, a golf bag, some clothes, and three war bonds, all valued at $680, from the automobile of John Dreve parked in front of the Arcadia Roller rink at 4444 Broadway. Dreve lives at 4758 Kenmore avenue.

[This department will answer questions covering problems related to the social welfare of relatives of service men, both in the column and by mail, if stamped, addressed envelopes are sent with inquiries.]

Mrs. C. M. writes: "May packages be sent to army men stationed in Panama, or is that considered the same as a foreign land?

ANSWER: Under present rulings both Panama and Alaska are considered outside the continental limits of the United States insofar as mailing packages to army men in those districts is concerned.

M. K. writes: "My wife and I have two of her sisters living with us. I expect to be called into the army and would like to know if I would be permitted an allowance for them as dependents. These girls are 10 and 14 and have been dependent upon us since the death of their mother about three years ago. Can you advise me?"

ANSWER: A sister-in-law of a soldier, even tho a minor and dependent upon him, is not eligible for the family allowance unless she is his adopted child. In your case, since the girls are under 18 and unmarried, only if you adopt them may they receive the family allowance. They could then be considered class "A" relatives.

Mrs. S. S. writes: "I am a widow and have five children. My oldest son is now in the army. He filed an application for an allowance for me, and I have received several checks. Today I received a letter from the office of dependency benefits asking for evidence concerning my dependency and relationship. Just what is required?"

ANSWER: Allowances are sometimes paid before documentary proof concerning dependency and relationship has been provided. That is permitted because soldiers are allowed six months in which to submit such evidence. All soldiers' dependents are notified when the six months time limit is nearing an end, and evidence should be submitted without delay. This department has affidavits of the type necessary for the class "B" dependent of army men. We will be glad to send them on the receipt of a stamped, addressed envelope.

SALUTE OF A NATION

AMERICA AT WAR salutes the men and women of the El Segundo plant of the Douglas Aircraft Company!

The coveted Army-Navy "E" —Badge of Honor for the Production Front—has been awarded to the workers of your plant for outstanding achievements and for setting such a splendid example to all other Americans.

Every member of the great Douglas organization is proud of the record you men and women have made in winning this award.

Millions of mothers of American service men are grateful to you for building the protective wings of the sturdy Dauntless dive-bombers now guarding the lives of their sons and loved ones on the far-flung battle fronts of the world!

Millions of American workers supplying other materials of war continue to take inspiration from your accomplishments.

The confidence of a nation is a sacred trust. It creates a solemn obligation, eagerly assumed, to work and strive in spite of obstacles and to carry on—come what may—until victory is ours! Everything else is of secondary importance. So much depends on you.

We, your fellow workers of Douglas, join the nation in this salute, and pledge to you and to our armed forces our continued admiration and support.

MacARTHUR'S VICTORY AT SEA.

Gen. MacArthur has once again shown how much he can achieve with only the most limited means. This time his air force under command of Lt. Gen. Kenney has sunk a dozen Japanese transports and 10 warships attempting to bring reënforcements and supplies to the remaining Japanese garrisons in New Guinea. The operation cost the enemy some 15,000 men drowned and more than 50 planes. It cost us no more than one bomber and three fighter planes shot down and a few more damaged.

Here was one of the great naval victories of the war won without the help of a single surface ship and, it should be emphasized, without very much of an air force either. America hasn't enjoyed so complete a victory at such light cost since we destroyed Spain's fleet in the naval battles of the Spanish war.

We don't know just how many soldiers, planes, and guns Gen. MacArthur has at his disposal, and if we knew we couldn't tell; but every observer returning from Australia and New Guinea tells pretty much the same story. Our ablest general and our ablest air force commander are operating on a shoestring. Fortunately, what they lack in men and equipment is more than balanced by their strategic insight, their ingenuity, and their inspiring leadership. This time they have prevented the Japanese from reënforcing Lae and Salamaua and the probability, therefore, is that we can attack these positions with confidence that our victory at Buna will be repeated at less cost.

Premier Curtin of Australia and the leader of the parliamentary opposition have both expressed their gratitude to Gen. MacArthur and his Americans for this latest achievement. There is no doubt of the sincerity of these tributes, but we can believe that the general would have been better pleased if the Australian government had rewarded him by lifting all restrictions on the use of Australian troops against Japan. Altho some of the limitations lately have been relaxed, the Australians still will not allow their conscripts to be sent more than a relatively short distance from their homeland, with the result that they cannot be used in a campaign against the Philippines, Japan proper, or the China coast. It has been suggested that the Australians have adopted this policy because they wish to give the Japanese as little offense as possible, but it is difficult to believe that the Australians are so shortsighted. It must be obvious to them, as to every one else, that Japan is trying to knock out Australia, and only the defeat of Japan can end the threat.

Save for American men, ships, and planes, Australia would today be overrun in all probability. America—which is doing so much for Australia—has a right to expect the Australians to place their entire resources unreservedly at Gen. MacArthur's disposal.

The latest of the sea victories has taught us that, unlike Australia, America has no reason to fear invasion by the Japanese. We are not dependent on any other nation for the means to destroy an enemy expedition before it nears our coasts. We have the capacity to produce the planes which will protect us. Tho we are secure, we are sacrificing the lives of our young men to safeguard Australia. If, in these circumstances, we do not hesitate to send our conscripts across 6,000 miles of ocean to defend Australia, the Australians ought to do as much to save themselves.

THE GOVERNMENT'S SHOPPING SPREE.

E. R. Stettinius Jr., lend-lease administrator, told a senate committee that the dollar value of food shipments made thru his agency last year to other nations was only 6 per cent of American farm production. "This will prove conclusively," he said, "that lend-lease is not responsible for any food shortage that may be imminent in the United States."

At the same time a clew to the mystery of why shortages are developing was provided by the American Institute of Food Distribution, described as a nonprofit research organization. It arrived at the conclusion that the army quartermasters and other government officials had gone on a buying rampage and had cornered a quantity of food completely out of line with their actual requirements for this year. THE TRIBUNE came to the same conclusion more than a month ago after reading Mr. Stettinius' report on the first 22 months of lend-lease.

The Institute of Food Distribution reports that canners are holding for the government between 40 and 75 per cent of the entire pack of canned fruits and vegetables. It was said that the government itself had estimated that only from 12 to 15 per cent of the pack was needed to supply the army and navy until next fall, when most of another year's pack would be in. The difference between what is actually needed and what has been earmarked represents hoarding, pure and simple and in its most monumental form, by the government itself.

The institute points out that the best estimate of the quantity of meats, poultry, fish, and meat substitutes required to supply an army of 11 million men is only 16 per cent of projected 1943 production. "When only 16 per cent of a type of food which is the basis of service diet is needed from the total supply," the institute observes, "the government's 40 per cent purchase of the 1942 canning pack is open to question."

There is no assurance, however, that the government will be any more reasonable about its purchases of meat and related commodities than it has been about canned fruits and vegetables.

The government's buying policies indicate one of two things, neither of which would reflect either good sense or efficiency. The first is inexcusable waste in army and navy messes. The other is hoarding on the part of Mr. Stettinius, the army quartermaster and navy supply corps, Herbert Lehman's foreign relief and rehabilitation agency, or all together. The next congressional committee that has a little spare time can settle the question by inspecting the garbage cans at army camps and navy stations and by finding out who owns the food stocks that must be cramming the warehouses.

INVOLUNTARY SERVITUDE.

It doesn't take an expert on the Constitution to see that the proposed draft of civilian man power for assignment at the President's discretion to industry or agriculture can't live alongside the 13th amendment. That amendment very clearly states: "Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction."

When somebody proposes flatly to tell any woman between 18 and 50 and any man between 18 and 64 what kind of job he shall take, where he must work, and what hours, pay, or other conditions he must accept, it is difficult to discover what other words than "involuntary servitude" will accurately describe the citizen's status. Yet this bill was drafted by a lawyer, Mr. Grenville Clark. It was introduced in the senate by a lawyer, Mr. Warren Austin. It has been supported by the secretary of war, Mr. Stimson, who is a lawyer as well as a close friend of Mr. Clark. And it evidently has the approval of the President, who holds a law degree.

It is impossible that these lawyers, or any lawyers, or, indeed, any one at all familiar with the Constitution, should be ignorant of the fact that the proposed legislation contravenes the 13th amendment. There are only a few circumstances in which the government can use compulsion to exact the citizen's services. It can coerce him to defend his country, and it can coerce him to enforce his country's laws. A citizen can be conscripted for military service in war, and in peace a sheriff can deputize any citizen. But nowhere in our law or custom is there any precedent for requiring the citizen in his capacity as wage earner to place himself at the disposal of the state.

When the Constitution granted congress power to provide for organizing, arming, disciplining, governing, and calling forth the militia, it was taken for granted that the citizen owed it to his country to bear arms in its defense. The 2d amendment further clarified the citizen's military obligations when it gave him the right to keep and bear arms because "a well regulated militia" is "necessary to the security of a free state" and arms are necessary to the militia. Finally, by an act of 1903, the militia was specifically defined. It consists of every able bodied male citizen and every able bodied male of foreign birth who has declared his intention to become a citizen, who is more than 18 and less than 45. The organized militia is to be known as the National Guard and the remainder as the reserve militia. Thus it was understood that all citizens of proper age, even if not on regular militia duty, were still subject at all times to call. Conscription acts are, therefore, merely a convenience in summoning inactive militia to military service.

Nobody can pretend, however, that because able bodied males are required to give military service if necessary to their country, there is the slightest constitutional justification for assuming that all citizens, both men and women, can be required to place themselves at the disposal of the government as civilians. Conscription is an extraordinary power of government, to be invoked only in the event of invasion, threat of invasion, or rebellion. The service commanded is military and nothing else.

To attempt to torture this into sanction for the government to levy upon the civil talents of the citizen, or to teach him new ones, is clearly to invade the freedom of person specifically guaranteed by the 13th amendment. Congress will be well advised to reject any arguments that the administration may advance that national security demands the passage of this bill. We cannot secure the safety of our country by stripping the citizens who compose it of their constitutional protections.

IN ANOTHER FORM NOW.

[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

Under the euphonious designation of a special war super-tax President Roosevelt is trotting out again his oft rejected socioeconomic reform — the motion that no individual in the United States should be able to keep more than $25,000 a year of his income, regardless of how great his talent or how diligently he worked.

It tells a lot about this proposed super-tax to say that President Roosevelt did not recommend it until the house ways and means committee had voted 15 to 1 to set aside the executive order which the President issued last fall limiting net earned income to $25,000. This highly presumptuous fiat was issued after congressional committees on two occasions voted down Mr. Roosevelt's suggestion for legislation on the subject.

Thus we find the President, having flouted the authority of congress in his taxation by edict stand of last fall, returning now to suggest again that the limitation on income be established by duly enacted law. The executive fiat of last fall applied only to earned income. He would now have congress extend it to all income. As an added touch the chief executive suggests that if congress does not approve his motion of income confiscation above $25,000 [which originally was advanced as a treasury department proposal last June] it should adopt a minimum tax of 50 per cent with steeply graduated rates as high as 90 per cent.

This uncharacteristic humbleness is not without reason, for it is patent that congress is in no mood to swallow Mr. Roosevelt's and the Congress of Industrial Organizations' economic panacea in any form or degree. The relatively complaisant 77th congress rejected it flatly; the new congress will reject it even more emphatically, as portended by that 15 to 1 committee vote.

We are struck by Mr. Roosevelt's use of the phrase "I shall immediately rescind" the executive fiat limiting net earned income to $25,000 if congress will pass an act confiscating all income above that figure. It always has been, as long as we adhere to some semblance of the democratic system and it always will be, the sole duty and responsibility of congress to levy taxes. It is shocking, to say the least, to see the President so contemptuous of our form of government as to say to congress that he will be willing to desist from levying a confiscatory tax if congress will make a law of his edict.

TREAT FARMERS AS GROWNUPS.

[Detroit Free Press.]

A house appropriations subcommittee has turned thumbs down on the administration's request for $100,000,000 to pay farmers "incentive bonuses" for increasing production. This follows the line of many farm leaders, who object to these "subsidies" as tending to regimentation, and demand instead a fair price for farm products.

As has been said repeatedly, all the farmers need to meet the war food program are sufficient labor and machinery to work their land and prices that will insure them a reasonable profit for the risks they take and the long hours they put in at grueling work. Give them those things and they'll do the job.

Altho chicory is insidiously creeping into the national coffee cup, we find a general ignorance about the nature of this famous adulterant. It is a powder or soluble paste made from the root of the familiar salad plant called chicory or endive. It makes weak and inferior coffee look stronger and taste bitterer. It is much used in European coffee, even in peace times, but except for economy it has never been favored by Americans.

* * *

In Mark Twain's "A Tramp Abroad," you will find a recipe for German coffee which starts with this sentence:

"Take a barrel of water and bring it to a boil; rub a chicory berry against a coffee berry, then convey the former into the water."

Thus it is apparent that Mark Twain, altho aware of chicory, didn't know exactly what it was. There is no such thing as a chicory berry.

THE VALLEY OF THE BIRDS.

And then we came into the valley known
As Pajaro, the Valley of the Birds,
And found where Peace had lain enchanted, lone,
A dreamer beautiful beyond all words!

The hill-entranced horizon is a rim
Of bronze about the marshes curving green,
With loops of wild lagoons like silver trim,
Above which self-enamored sunsets lean
And fade reluctantly; these pools inherit all
There is of beauty—Night stoops down to share
Her starry alms, and of her bounty Day lets fall
A rippling mantle of the blue Madonnas wear.
And always there are mirrored many wings
Like petals briefly patterned upon space,
And, sometimes, loveliest of transient things,
A fallen feather bright upon the water's face.
For here the wild ducks feed at dawn and pheasants cry,
And from the sedges, white, immaculate
Against the twilight, heron fabulously fly
Or stand there like a sculptured dream and wait
While jocund winds blow sweet across the fens,
Of mint and mallow pungently aware,
While deer in quiet drink, and foxes seek their dens,
And beaver play beneath the willows' tangled hair.

O, Buoyant Wing and Magic Throat!
Within your peaceful, orderly demesne—
The world's distress unreckoned and remote—
Life still is plausible, and Death serene,
And Time is but the interval afloat
Between a bird call and its answering note!

When Gandhi Didn't Come to Chicago.

The Mr. Gandhi who came to Chicago in 1893 [Feb. 7] could not have been the Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi who is now fasting in the palace of the Aga Khan at Poona. It is true he was a dapper young man about London a little before that time, when he was studying law in England, but I know that he, the mahatma, has never been in America because he told me so himself, the last time I saw him, in 1934, in India. Gandhi said he much regretted that every time he had made plans to visit the United States he had to cancel them.

His autobiography, "My Experiments with Truth," contains a chapter headed "The Great Exhibition." But it is an account of the exposition held in Paris in 1890, where he spent seven days. In 1891 he passed his bar examinations in England and returned to Bombay, a "briefless barrister," until he was hired by an Indian firm with business in South Africa and went there to live.

HOW DEEP MY DEBT.

I have no son who goes to war
That I may keep my liberty;
The sons of other mothers fight
And die for them—and die for me.

How deep, then, should I count my debt,
With what humility of heart
Accept their great inclusive gift
And do my part.

U. S. S. Chicago I. in Drama.

To the luster of the first U. S. S. Chicago's fame should be added its place in the drama of its day. For several seasons prior to the Spanish-American war a replica of the craft starred in a blood-and-thunder melodrama yclept "The White Squadron." At the finale of the third act the Chicago, fabricated in profile and using pipe stems for guns, held by a crouching stagehand, sailed serenely behind a "water row in four," vomiting lethal blasts at answering batteries on the backdrop.

What naval action this was supposed to represent I fail to recall. Santiago and Manila Bay were yet to come. Mobile Bay happened 30 years before the keel of the Chicago was laid, but melodrama mongers of the Harrisonian period were no more bound by the real McCoy than their emulators in high places today. PAIN CALLS FOR CALM INVESTIGATION.

Few of us will be disturbed by a mild headache, but when discomfort develops within the abdomen we become apprehensive. We are sure that something serious is the matter with the liver, the pancreas, the spleen, or other structure.

We are likely to forget that nerves which can telegraph distress, emerge from the spinal cord and travel extensively. Thus the tissues which cover the ribs may be blamed for a blowout which occurred at headquarters—the depots close to the spine.

It is important to view complaints with a full understanding that the seat of the difficulty may be some distance away. For example, there is a type of head pain which is characteristic of gall bladder disturbance. Another may be traced to an abnormality in the pelvis. We all know that a feeling of tightness and aching between the shoulder blades focuses attention upon the gall pouch or an ulcer in the first part of the intestine [duodenum]. The skin over the "pit" of the stomach may be sensitive whenever disease is present in the gastric pouch, the pancreas, or adjacent parts.

There is probably nothing more perplexing than the symptoms of appendicitis and many a doctor has been confused by the insistence of his patient that the soreness is confined to the lower portion of the breastbone. Perhaps the earliest indication will be that of indigestion altho most of the abdominal apparatus will appear normal. Every physician has noted cases wherein deep pressure over the appendix will be borne without flinching. Nevertheless, a badly inflamed organ, the real culprit, was found at operation. Of course these instances are the exceptions to the rule. But because nerves may indulge in playful antics we must not be misled.

Many errors are committed in the name of colic. The victim may be doubled up with cramps—loud in his lamentations. He is willing to do anything to obtain relief. Suddenly he will exclaim, "The pain has gone. I am perfectly all right." But is he? If the appendix is at fault, a distended, abscessed structure may have ruptured. In consequence, the acute agony vanishes and the patient exhibits a sense of security which is wholly unwarranted. Then it is that the very semblance of comfort must be regarded as alarming.

Every now and then a friend will remark, "Recently I have been having a number of gallstone attacks." The bouts may follow marked exertion and persist for a brief interval. More often than not the bile sac will be found to be intact. The trouble may be angina pectoris. The same is true in pneumonia and, particularly with children, involvement of the lungs may give rise to "stomach" cramps.

We probably experience no more puzzling seizures than those which are related to the urinary tract. If a calculus [stone] becomes lodged in one of the ureters, suffering may be excruciating. Even large doses of a narcotic may be of little avail. Confronted with such an episode, there is no occasion to rush the victim to the operating room because the chances are that nothing will be found. The stones may be disclosed by the X-ray on more deliberate investigation. In the meantime, the offending particle may drop into the bladder and be expelled.

THEY PLAN IT THAT WAY.

Austin, Tex., Feb. 27.—It has become a governmental habit to think only in astronomical terms. Delight is taken, Hollywood style, in presenting everything as super-super, unprecedented, record breaking. So, with the war as an excuse, a long cherished dream is presented. It is proposed to spend, for the 1944 fiscal year, $109,000,000,000.

Not even New Dealers can imagine such sums of money, but they delight in talking in them. Obviously, no such amount of money can be raised either by taxation or borrowing in only a year's time. The only other method open to government to obtain money to spend is by inflation, either of currency or of bank credit.

At the present price levels it is nonsense to talk of spending any such amount of money in only one year. How much is $109,000,000,000? It is more than the entire national income was in 1941. The national income may be considered to be the total of all the things and services produced in a year. Even with the so-called "slack" in our economy taken up—it was with this that the New Dealers were once saying we could win the war [remember "Guns and Butter"?]—if the government should attempt to spend $109,000,000,000 at 1941 prices, it would buy the total of all goods and services produced for the year. There would be absolutely nothing left for the people. Not a morsel of food or a single shoe or garment, not a drop of oil, not a physician's call would there be for the public. The government would buy for its use or for disbursement to other nations the total of everything produced.

Even New Dealers, with their burning desire to correct the "injustice" of our being so much better off than the rest of the world, do not believe that such an amount of money could be spent by the government within the country at present prices, even with a Gestapo agent to watch every transaction in the land.

Of course, the government can spend $109,000,000,000 next year, or 10 times that amount. But if it insists upon doing so, prices both to government and to the people would be forced to rise to the extent necessary to absorb such sums.

There has always been a fundamental illogic and contradiction in New Deal economic thinking—if it can be called that—as regards money and physical production. Money, they say, is a fetish, a shackle, preventing us from satisfying the needs and wants of every man. Yet they always speak as tho the mere appropriation of huge sums of money would automatically result in corresponding amounts of physical production as if by magic.

One cannot be impervious to the fact that runaway inflation always follows huge debt. It is impossible to say exactly what the safe limit of a national debt is, just as it is impossible to say when the addition of another straw will break the camel's back, yet it is certain that sooner or later it will. The limit is, of course, in direct ratio to the size and physical resources of a country. One thing is certain—that somewhere a point is reached beyond which there is an irresistible urge to "get out from under," to wipe the slate clean and start over, to repudiate the debt by inflation of currency. It is a natural consequence. The future will not be shackled by spending orgies of the past.

There are presumptions in law that a man is sane and that he intends the consequences of his acts. There is an abundance of evidence against the New Deal crowd which would seem to refute the first presumption, but such a conclusion would be superficial. With exceptions, they are sane, and they intend the consequences of their acts. If they are mad, their madness has a method. They view approaching world chaos with keen anticipation—they have said so. And they know there is no surer way of destroying a government and an economic system than by bankrupting that government and destroying its money.

A CORPORAL LOOKS AT STRIKERS.

Camp Campbell, Ky., Feb. 28.—I wish we had those aircraft strikers down here in this camp. We have three empty stockades that we would really enjoy filling with them.

If they don't want to work, put them in the army and then let's see them try to strike for more pay. That's the opinion of all the fellows here. We think here that they don't deserve to remain civilians and make a lot of money.

Don't those strikers realize that there are a lot of men in the army who would like to make the money they do, be able to buy war bonds, and be able to put something in the bank as they are doing, to have something for the future? They are saving for a rainy day. What are the fellows in the army going to have for a rainy day when they get out? We'll have no money and will pay high taxes because people like the selfish aircraft strikers will have forced them up thru higher prices the government will have to pay for planes. CORP. J. B.

JUDGE SLICK'S OPINION.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—Judge Thomas W. Slick's opinion that rent control is unconstitutional shows there are still some American minded men on the bench who see wrong when the New Dealers try to subjugate any one who owns real estate or any enterprise.

America was built up on the idea of free enterprise, and private initiative made it what it is. If the precepts which made our country great are killed, we're doomed!

Any judge who can stand on his own feet in face of crackdown burocrats should be commended by all true Americans. R. L.

SATISFIED WITH TIRE PAYMENT.

Chicago, March 1.—Under orders of our government, I turned in several tires to the Defense Supplies corporation. From what I had been hearing and seeing in print, I expected to receive about five 10 cent defense stamps for the lot. Imagine my surprise, and also my restored confidence in our government, on receiving a total of $14.70 in defense stamps for five tires.

The amount received for each tire was a little below what I would have received from my regular channels of retail trade. I feel that I was given fair treatment and would appreciate your giving voice to my feelings, inasmuch as there has been so much complaint to the contrary in this matter. AXEL FRANZON.

ON FARM AUCTIONS.

Fond du Lac, Wis., Feb. 28.—When reading your editorial today, "Paging Mr. Hoover," I couldn't help thinking how misleading it was to the general public who don't know all the facts in the case.

I am a farmer, and as a side line I act as clerk for one of the most prominent auctioneers in this section. It is true there is an increasing number of farm auctions, but what becomes of the live stock and farm implements sold at these sales? Ninety-nine per cent are sold to other farmers. There is not a single case in this county where the farm on which the sale is held has not either been sold or rented to some other farmer. I would venture to say that at least 50 per cent of the live stock and implements never leave the farm upon which the sale is held. They merely change ownership.

Owing to the high price of meat a lot of farmers are taking their opportunity to dispose of their poor producing dairy cows. They then go to an auction and replace them with higher producing animals. Only in the case of aged bulls, or poor producing cows are they being sold for slaughter.

There are many older farmers who have been in debt the last few years and now with high prices see a way to pay their debts—however, there seem to be enough young farmers to take their place.

It is true there is a shortage of farm labor, but in this section farmers, with the help of their families, will work a little harder, and produce more food if they are assured of a good price for their produce. H. W. MEEKIN.

TWO TERMS IS ENOUGH.

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 26.—I have just read your editorial on "The Fourth Term and Thereafter" and wish to congratulate you. I, too, have urged for some time that we should have a constitutional amendment limiting the tenure of any President of the United States to not more than two terms, in keeping with the precedent set by George Washington.

If the corruption, graft, waste, regimentation, tyranny, destruction, confusion, and sorrow of the New Deal are not sufficient to impress a great majority of the American people with the necessity of such an amendment, I cannot imagine anything which would ever do so. It should be said, however, for the people that millions of them have been fed so long on this New Deal menu that they do not know anything else.

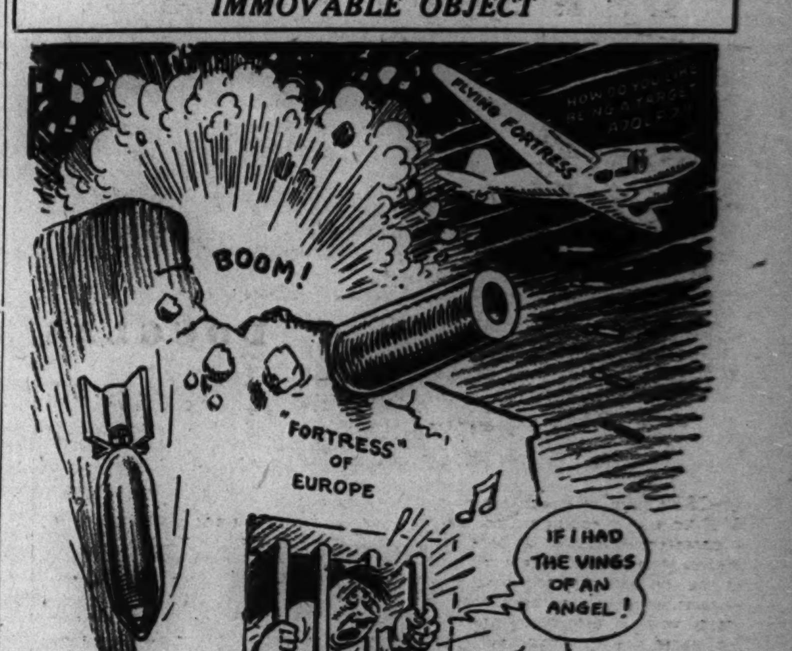
THE IRRESISTIBLE FORTS MEET THE IMMOVABLE OBJECT

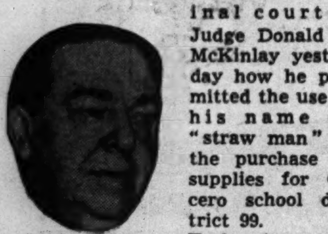


WITNESS TELLS OF DUMMY ROLE IN SCHOOL FRAUD

Cicero Case 'Straw Man,' He Informs Jury.

BY GEORGE WRIGHT.

Louis Farber, a manufacturers' representative, told a jury in the Criminal court of Judge Donald S. McKinlay yesterday how he permitted the use of his name as "straw man" in the purchase of supplies for Cicero school district 99.



Frank J. Petru.

Farber is one of the state's chief witnesses in the trial of nine members of the school board, the school superintendent, and a school supplies dealer on charges of conspiracy to cheat and defraud the district thru exorbitant payments for school supplies. Altho not named as a defendant, Farber is termed a conspirator with the defendants in the indictment.

Kroll Among Defendants.

Farber testified he permitted the use of his name by Henry Kroll, former manager of the Crown Office Supply company and a defendant on trial. Farber said he had known Kroll as office manager of the Crown company and that in May of 1941 Kroll called him to his office.

Questioned by C. Vernon Thompson, assistant state's attorney, Farber said Kroll asked him about equipment for the Cicero school district and that later he asked him for use of his name in billing the sale.

"I told him I didn't care to do this," Farber testified, "but Kroll said: 'Well, I've given you so much business and given you all the government business that I don't see why you can't do this for me.'"

Farber said he agreed and that when he asked Kroll for the reason, Kroll told him he couldn't bill thru the people for whom he worked. Kroll is accused of setting up a dummy company in his dealings with the school district.

Appeared Before Grand Jury.

Farber testified that he even was persuaded to sign a number of blank checks at Kroll's insistence, but that he never saw the filled out checks until his appearance before the grand jury. Farber said he also discovered letter heads on Kroll's desk bearing the heading of Louis Farber & Co. of Jasper, Ind.

Earlier in the day Frank J. Petru, president of the school district, who is not named in the indictment, testified he had questioned expenditures approved by the board, but had been overruled by the others. He said he had raised a question about a Farber voucher, but had been informed the purchase was made under competitive bidding.

"I told the board members," Petru testified, "that I would resign if they didn't perform their duties in a businesslike way, because I didn't want to go to jail."

Tells of Delaying Payments.

Petru said he had held up payment of more than $200,000 for supplies and work at various times because of what he thought were overcharges. He testified he still was looking for the work done as represented by a payment check for $28,000 for painting and decorating.

Under cross-examination by Atty. Harold Levy, Petru admitted he had opposed the election of some of the board members.

3 Hurt as Car Plunges from Weakened Trestle

Los Angeles, Cal., March 4 [Special].—Three persons were injured when a Pacific Electric car bound from Pasadena to Los Angeles plunged over a 20 foot trestle weakened by previous high waters. THE QUESTION.

What unexpected clew helped to solve a crime? [Asked of city detectives.]

WHERE ASKED.

Detective bureau, 1121 South State street.

THE ANSWERS.

Edward Dooley, 1121 South State street—The girl's mother-in-law said that robbers had forced the lock and broken in to murder her daughter. Upon examination, we found the lock had been broken from the inside. The few little scratches on the inner side of the door made the mother-in-law break down.

Florian Smusczynski, 3019 Throop street—The murderer had left plenty of fingerprints at the scene of the crime in the café, but it was still hard to identify him. The café owner suspected one customer of that evening. He had left his fingerprints on the catsup bottle. Then we knew who it was.

Frank Pape, 4032 North Central avenue—A customer had been killed in a grocery robbery. A small boy who saw the crime said the robber once lived in his neighborhood, that his name was "Slick" and that he worked in a factory. After canvassing hundreds, we came upon a man wearing a small white cap with the name printed on the band. He was our man.

Louis Plomgren, 3504 Sheffield avenue—It was difficult to find a gang swiping cars and stripping them of parts. We stopped a car for some minor reason and while examining it discovered a transmission that belonged to another car. The driver was the leader of the gang.

Rudolph J. Friedl, 7636 South Hermitage avenue — There had been a jewel robbery in a night club; the bartender remembered a strange customer who had ordered: "Gimme some bar whisky." Sifting possible suspects, we got this man and asked him to have a drink. He used the identical phrase. Then it didn't take long.

BIDDLE TO SEEK VIERECK RETRIAL AS ENEMY AGENT

Washington, D. C., March 4 (AP).—Atty. Gen. Francis Biddle said today the justice department would seek a retrial of George Sylvester Viereck, whose conviction of failing to disclose his activities as a German agent fully to the state department was reversed by the Supreme court.

"The Supreme court has ruled that under the law as it then stood, the jury should have been instructed to find Viereck guilty only if it concluded that his activities were on behalf of a foreign principal," Biddle said in a statement. "The government will seek to prove that the very same acts proved in the first trial were committed by Viereck as an agent of a foreign principal."

Viereck has served a portion of his two to six year sentence under the conviction. He also is under indictment, with 33 other persons, on a charge of conspiracy to undermine the morale of the armed forces.

He had served as committee man of the old second congressional district. A daughter, Mrs. Milton Weisenhorn, and a son, Bernard of Chicago, survive him.

SCANS LEGALITY OF 1 CHARGE IN SEDITION CASE

Court Debates Merit of 1933 Count.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 4.—Associate Justice Jesse C. Adkins of the United States District court for the District of Columbia late today called a halt in preliminary proceedings attendant to the coming trial of 34 alleged seditionists in order that he might give overnight consideration to a legal question raised in connection with the cases.

This was the first time the justice had hesitated to make a ruling on motions and demurrers presented before the court this week immediately after the attorneys had completed their accompanying statements. This was the first time he hadn't ruled immediately in favor of the government and against the defendants.

Count One Questioned.

The question before the court was: Could the defendants legally be held under "count one" of the federal grand jury's indictments? Count one charges them with violation of the sedition law of 1940.

The government prosecutor, O. John Rogge, had informed the court that he would present evidence to show that a "conspiracy" on the part of the defendants was entered into as far back as 1933.

Attorneys for the defendants took up the entire morning session and more than an hour and a half during the afternoon citing cases and law to prove that the defendants could not legally be prosecuted under a law enacted in 1940 for a crime allegedly committed in 1933.

The famed Dilling divorce case that occupied column upon column of space in Chicago newspapers and finanally ended in an amicable reconciliation of the parties involved despite all manner of nasty charges during the trial, was brought to the attention of Justice Adkins today.

Atty. Albert Dilling, who represents his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Dilling, one of the defendants, charged that a story written by Dillard Stokes in the Washington Post today was "highly prejudicial" and "a damnable lie." He declared a statement in the story would influence any prospective juror residing in the District of Columbia that might read it and thus prevent his wife from having a fair trial.

Not the Time, Court Says.

Stokes had said in his story that Dilling had denied during yesterday's session his wife had any Nazi connections or sympathies but added:

"When the couple got in a lawsuit last year, Dilling asked the Chicago courts to make his wife account for any money she had got from any American or foreign persons acting for any axis government in spreading pro-axis propaganda in the United States."

Dilling declared that no such question was raised during the trial but before he could continue with his complaint against Stokes, whom he called "a tool of the justice department," Justice Adkins interrupted to inform him that it isn't the proper time" for bringing these charges to the court's attention.

LUNCHBOX CALLS FOR VARIETY AND VITAMINS TODAY

Two or Three Sandwiches Termed Essential.

BY YVONNE CROWLEY.

Gone are the days when the lunchbox was lightly packed with dainty, decrusted sandwiches, containing a mere hint of filling, a pickle or two, a few cookies and coffee. Today's efficient war worker, and the schoolchild, too, requires more than an appetite appeaser at the noon hour. He needs an energy packed lunch to supply about a third of the day's food requirements, with protein, vitamins, and minerals in it as well as calories.

The lunchbox should hold two or three sandwiches, one of which should be filled with meat, fish, poultry, egg, cheese, or some other high protein food. Raw vegetables should be included, either in the sandwich filling, in salads or as a relish. Celery, carrot, or turnip sticks, sliced cucumber, radishes, tomatoes, or wedges of cabbage or lettuce hearts will add both nutritive value and variety to the meal.

Fresh Fruit Important.

A plain, hard cooked egg or deviled one wrapped in waxed paper, or a handful of salted nuts are other healthful accompaniments to the sandwich.

Fresh fruits [apples, oranges, grapes, bananas, and pears are easy to carry] are an important part of the lunchbox, and dried fruits [stuffed dates, prunes, figs, raisins] are excellent, too, tho expensive in blue coupons. A mixed fruit salad, leftover from the previous day, can be tucked into a small covered jar or paper carton to take the place of whole fruit occasionally.

Sweets have their place in the menu. Try squares of lightly frosted cake or cupcakes, molasses, and oatmeal cookies, custard, corn starch or tapioca puddings made with milk, or perhaps a few pieces of candy.

When beverages are not available at the plant or school restaurant, a vacuum container will carry milk, coffee, tea, cereal beverages, or a hot, nourishing soup. If milk is not provided at lunch time, it should be taken between meals to help fill the pint or more requirement for the day.

Use Older Bread.

Use whole grain bread, whole wheat, rye, oat meal, corn, cracked wheat, pumpernickel, bran, nut bread, white enriched bread or buns for the sandwiches, and try to have the bread at least 24 hours old. If butter is creamed and spread completely to the edge of the bread, sandwiches will be less likely to dry out. Avoid runny fillings for sandwiches, however, and omit lettuce when lunches must be stored in a warm place. [Wilted lettuce never improves the appearance or taste of the sandwich.] Crisp chunks of head lettuce may be sent along, however, in a small covered jar.

Don't let meat rationing limit the variety of the lunchbox sandwich. Use leftover meat when available and stretch it by combining it with other foods for the sandwich fillings.

1. Thin slices of meat loaf on whole wheat bread spread with horseradish butter.
2. Thin slices of Braunschweiger or liver sausage spread with mayonnaise mixed with minced raw cucumber or green pepper.

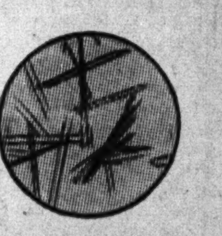
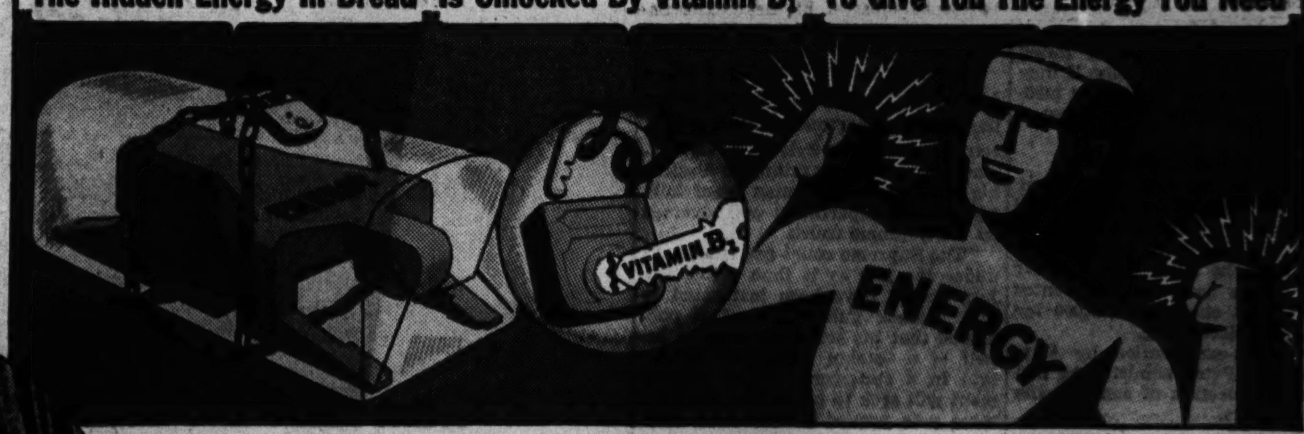
SCIENCE DISCOVERS VITAMIN B1 NECESSARY TO HELP TRANSFORM BREAD INTO ENERGY



Photomicrograph of Vitamin B1 Magnified 1000 Times. In One Year An Adult Needs 121,545 Units Of Vitamin B1

The Hidden Energy In Bread Is Unlocked By Vitamin B1 To Give You The Energy You Need



Government looks to the wives and mothers of the nation to give their families the right kind of food.

Yet Of The Millions Who Rely Upon Bread For Up To 35% Of Their Daily Energy—3 Out Of 4 Fail To Get A Good Diet, U. S. Officials Say. Thus, Can Fail To Get Enough Vitamin B1

New Wonder Bread Thrills Thousands Everywhere Because:

(1) Contains Vitamin B1 (2) Slo-Baked For Lasting Freshness (3) Tastes Better (4) Proves Easier-To-Slice

WHAT everybody knows is that millions of people rely upon bread for up to 35% of their daily energy.

But what you may not know is that you must have Vitamin B1 to help transform the bread you eat into the energy you need.

Science today proves conclusively that it takes Vitamin B1 to unlock bread's hidden energy.

Now—according to U. S. Government Health Officials, 3 out of 4 people fail to get a good diet; thus can fail to get enough Vitamin B1 naturally.

This does not mean that you lack Vitamin B1 so badly the bread you eat does you no good. But it does mean that your body cannot properly transform bread into the energy you must have these days unless you get sufficient Vitamin B1.

A New Kind Of Bread

Now, wise Mother Nature put Vitamin B1 into wheat. But—in making bread whiter—man took it out.

Then Theodore Earle patented a way to retain more natural vitamins and minerals in flour.

And mass production by American industry made possible further additions of the Vitamin B1 needed in the bread. A bread now better for flavor and better for health than before.

It's Doubly Fresh

Then, too, this new Wonder Bread is doubly fresh—fresh when you buy it; fresh when you eat it.

Because it is slo-baked for lasting freshness—baked 13% longer than many ordinary kinds.

See how much longer it stays fresh on the table and in the lunch box.

In addition, Wonder's slo-baking method gives you bread with a richer flavor now.

And—a finer, tenderer texture. You'll find it easy to slice—and it leaves no crumbs.

Get new Wonder Bread at your grocer's today. You'll be glad you did!

"Man Snatcher"

By Nina Wilcox Putnam

Copyright: 1943: By Inez Eliot

SYNOPSIS: Mary Jo Laurence has been happy with her husband, Tony, during their 15 years of marriage, in spite of Tony's deformed foot and his many failures in his work as a builder. A false boom brought them to Key West two years ago and caused them to buy a tract of land they have not been able to sell. After months of struggling to exist, Tony has found a prospective client, Col. Bassett, a retired army officer. Mary Jo has invited Col. and Mrs. Bassett to dinner, hoping it will help Tony swing the deal. While Mary Jo is housecleaning in preparation for her dinner guests, she hears a shot. From her window she sees a man lying behind Cinqua's tavern and notices another man crouching in the bushes nearby. She watches as Cinqua comes out his back door and from his cries she knows that the first man is dead. But she decides to say nothing of what she has seen. A lucky win in the numbers' pool gives Mary Jo extra cash. As she leaves her house to go shopping, she walks by Cinqua's tavern where a crowd has gathered. Sibyl Cartwright, an old actress, comes out and informs Mary Jo that the dead man was Ed Tutwiller, younger brother of Pop Tutwiller, the fisherman, a good friend of the Laurences. It seems that Ed committed suicide because some married woman he had been going with got him into money trouble. Mary Jo goes to Chan's grocery store to pay some on her bill. There she sees a luscious, worthless looking girl selling stolen milk bottles to buy gin. At the post-office Mary Jo gets a letter from her 18 year old brother, Pete, announcing he is coming to Key West to hunt a job. Alice and Alan Smithers give her a ride home.

INSTALMENT V.

VISITOR.

"Thank God we're not in the war," said Mrs. Smithers. "This way we're at least free to help. Who would the world turn to if we got invaded?"

"Don't worry, mother," said Alan placidly, "we won't be dragged in. This ain't our fight."

"It's wonderful to feel so safe," his wife added. "Ain't we fortunate, tho, to be way over here, in this lovely place, living like we do with peace and plenty?"

"We're shot with luck," said Mary Jo drily, "and I only hope it doesn't turn out that in the end we are just plain shot."

"Well," said Alice quietly, "I can do without a war. I had enough last time. Our son, you know."

"Yes, I know. And Alan's wound that he got in Cuba, before that."

Old Alan did not speak, but his eyes seemed to be gazing at best-forgotten things.

"Father!" Alice nudged him, seeing this. "Hey, Father, you going to clean those yellow tails we caught for dinner? I'm hungry as Heyman's hog!" His kind blue eyes turned to her, kindling again.

"I could eat 'em scales and all!" he said.

From her doorstep Mary Jo watched them turning back to smile and wave as they drove on down the street to their little cottage with its riotous flower garden. Being with them had done her a world of good. They were kind of like her and Tony because their love, too, was still young after all these years, and because they lived for the really important things like faith and fidelity and simple honesty. Their greatest treasures were the things which were there for the taking—sun, sea, flowers, shells, the multiple treasures of the world which belonged to everybody with more than enough to go around. Yet they were not extraordinary people. There were 50 Americans like them for every Sibyl Cartwright, every flaunting, tropic infected girl like that one at Chan's, every Cinqua—thank God for that!

It was after 6 o'clock when Tony's step sounded on the veranda. The instant she heard it, Mary Jo strode thru the immaculate little house that was warmly scented now with the odors of chicken in saffron rice, spiced fish in paper, a hot, fresh pineapple pie with rum sauce. She flung open the jalousied door before he had time to turn the knob and at sight of his smiling face she threw her arms around his neck.

"O, Tony, so it's all right! You got 'em hogtied!"

"Looks good," he admitted. "They chose a lot. Haven't put any money down yet, of course, but they decided on the place near the bridge. I'm showing them some building plans tonight!" He kissed her enthusiastically as they went inside, their arms about each other.

"You need dipping bad as a wintered sheep!" she said. "Your bath's ready. Hurry up, good looking! They'll be here in a half hour!"

"If that dinner I smell doesn't cinch things with the Bassetts, it can't be done."

He bounded up the stairs two at a time, with something of his old vitality. The slight lameness hardly showed. Tony was extremely sensitive about his foot. It had held him back, Mary Jo often felt, in lots of places where self-confidence would have carried thru. Funny thing, now, no animal critter would have been sensitive to what the herd thought about a little lameness. She followed him about as he dressed, admiring anew the handsome slender body, the way his dark hair lay in thick waves on his well-shaped head, delighting in his laughter which had been all too rare these last months. They exchanged details about the day. Tony was almost childishly pleased with the espadrilles which fitted perfectly, and chuckled over her description of Jingo's announcement of her winnings.

"See?" he said. "It's our lucky day!"

Then she remembered Pete's letter. Pete's arrival was going to put an extra load on Tony, and Tony didn't have too high an opinion of the young one. But Tony took the news in the new stride the prospect of a job had given him.

"Fine!" he said. "Of course, he'll get work. I'll use him myself on the Bassett job."

They went downstairs into the party air which the little house wore. The atmosphere was cool and fresh, the living room filled with the gold and rose of the tropic sunset and the muted music of the town came to them distantly and agreeably. Tony turned on the radio and started to mix cocktails. The news was coming in from a Washington broadcast.

"Today the war materials board announced that priorities on all building materials may be put into effect some time after the first of next year."

"I hope that business doesn't come true," Tony said. "It will make things tough."

"I hear Don Waterman doesn't expect to have any difficulty rounding up stuff even if the priorities get enforced," Mary Jo volunteered.

"He wouldn't!" Tony reflected his annoyance with his successful rival in the violence with which he agitated the shaker. "He's got capital and pull. Besides, he can order in carloads. Now a little fellow like myself——"

"Tony, what's the good of getting sore at Waterman? He's done all right with that first development of his—it's all sold out."

"I don't care for the fellow," Tony explained, pouring sample drinks, "because I know he overcharges his clients for the quality he gives them. It's plain robbery."

"Well, they say he's thinking of building a new group in the lower brackets."

"Yes, I heard he is trying to make a deal with that old Conch Bill Charterhouse for his land——"

"Too bad we can't get something like that on our property." Tony looked at her suspiciously.

"What are you trying to suggest? You know we haven't got what it takes to get a big enough FHA loan. And besides, I'm no hog about big profits, and I've never lost a friend by building for them. But Waterman has."

"It's a heap better to make friends doing business than to do business with friends."

"Well, the Bassetts are comparative strangers!"

They both laughed and he kissed her and tasted the cocktail. The front doorbell jangled in its apologetic way. Mary Jo set down her glass.

"It's them!" she said, whisking off her apron and hanging it up inside the kitchen. Tony went to the door. A deep masculine voice rumbled. Then Tony called to her.

"It's Pop Tutwiller, Mary Jo," he said. "Come in, Pop."

"I cain't stay but jest a minute," said the man, following Tony into the living room. "Hope I ain't disturbin' you none?"

He was a big, middle aged man, roughly handsome despite the complete baldness of his head. The fine, strong hands in which he twirled an old black felt hat betrayed his agitation, and the habitual lines of humor around his firm mouth and kind eyes were wiped out, the broad shoulders were slack. Ordinarily, Pop was erect as a ramrod, especially when he rode the prow of his sea skiff just about the same way a good plainsman rides his horse, looking out with keen eyes across the infinite blue plain of the waters. Now he was gazing inward at a tragedy which had left him dazed.

"Have a seat, Pop," said Mary Jo gently. He looked around the festive room and then at his fish-stained clothing.

"Reckon I'll just set," he said. "I ain't had time to clean up since I come off the boat."

He squatted on his haunches, Cracker fashion, assuming that yogi-like pose which, incredibly, the native men found comfortable and for a moment continued turning his hat in silence.

"I heard about your brother," said Tony. "I'm awfully sorry, Pop." The man swallowed twice before he was able to speak. Then, true to the code of his kind, his voice was completely unemotional.

"Yes," he said. "That's what I come about."

Mary Jo sat up alertly. So Tony had heard of the shooting! She had not mentioned it. In the excitement of his good news she had for the moment forgotten to tell him. If she spoke now it might seem sort of funny that she had held back her information. Why, exactly, had Pop come? To ask questions, maybe. Well, Pop certainly had a perfect right to ask her anything he wished to know.

GRADE LABELING OF FOOD SCORED BY REP. SUMNER

Warns Canners Will Lose Valuable Trade Names.

Washington, D. C., March 4 [Special].—Attacking government agency proposals to grade label canned goods, Rep. Jessie Sumner of Milford, Ill., told the house today that such labeling would do away with standard brand names "that may have taken a canner 50 years to build up."

Calls It Valuable Property.

Such standard labels, she asserted, are a valuable property asset. Continuing, she said:

"The administration says that, because the trade grades its products in selling to distributors, according to whether a batch of cans is choice or standard, that the trade should not object to having government inspectors over them making them grade each little can. You have to know the canning business to understand how disgusted canners get at the thought of undertaking such a difficult and delicate job. The OPA insists that this is necessary to prevent 'chiselling.'

"In addition planners in the agricultural department hope to buy most of the American canned food packed this year, shipping what the armed forces don't use to foreign nations. They are playing with the idea of having each can labeled U. S. A. in big letters. They know what is good for the canner's business better than he does, they think.

Blasts Junket Plans.

"They say that all this will help him grab foreign markets in a post-war world. They are even toying with the idea of sending pretty government lady dietitians on a junket to London and other foreign cities to demonstrate American cooking of American woods. They do not foresee that it may not be such a pretty spectacle on the streets of London and elsewhere if, at the same time, London newspapers are carrying the news of food riots in America. Canners think it is likely that within 12 months we shall see food riots in America."

Novel Carrot and Potato Dish

Carrots and white potatoes continue to be moderately priced in spite of the upward trend of many of the humbler members of the vegetable family. Serve them often, whipping them up together some time to make this interesting casserole: Cook potatoes and carrots together in a tightly covered pan using small amount of water. Mash and beat until fluffy, adding cooking juices and hot milk to moisten. Add salt, pepper, and butter or margarine to taste. Add beaten egg, turn into greased casserole dish, and sprinkle with grated cheese. Bake about 20 minutes in 425 degrees F. oven until lightly browned and puffy. Serves 6.

Ways to Tell When Cake Has Completed Baking

You can be sure that a cake has finished baking when a toothpick or cake tester inserted in the center of the cake comes out clean. At this point the cake shrinks from the edges of the pan slightly and it will spring back when touched lightly with the finger.

How to Test the Griddle for Golden Brown Cakes

If you like your pancakes golden brown, test the heat of the griddle before cooking them. Pour a few drops of water on the griddle and if it scatters, the griddle is hot enough to brown the cakes.

SALAD RECIPES IN BOOKLET GIVE PRACTICAL HINTS

We may have to cut down on our canned fruit salads, but fortunately some of the very best salads are made with easily obtainable fresh fruits and vegetables. Cabbage, apple, and tossed green salads are ever so good for us and they add necessary crispness to many a menu of rather soft foods.

"Everyday Adventures in Salads" includes recipes for the basic fruit and vegetable salads and many variations of them. You'll find included, too, a grand French dressing recipe. Send today for this booklet, addressing your request to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune, and inclosing 7 cents in stamps. Or pick up a copy at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower, for 5 cents.

How to Prepare Turnips for Added Taste Pleasure

Next time turnips are on your menu prepare them this way. Scrub thoroly, quarter, pare, and cut them into cubes. Cover with boiling, salted water and cook until tender, about 30 minutes. Drain. Melt a little margarine, add chopped Brazil nuts and heat for 5 minutes. Combine with the hot, diced turnips.

Petticoat Fever No III; It Cures Suit Fit at Hips

BY REA SEEGER.

Petticoat fever is raging around the shops and stores! It's the annual rash caused by the shopping enthusiasm and fashion for suits. Women have found that a suit skirt fits infinitely better and smoother around the waist and over the hips if there is a smooth fitted petticoat worn under it.

So the sleek satin beauties and the newer models of noisy taffetas come in brief fitted numbers especially designed and cut to suit your suits. See the gay red and white stripe taffeta worked in giddy diagonal formations in fore gored flared petticoats, or the same thing with Dublin green and half inch white striping. If the vivid colors are not just what you ask for contrast, the pastel effects in pale pink and pale blue, cut with the same bias, are the choice. All the color schemes are fresh and springlike, ready for a whisk of wind or flirt of a skirt hem to make a good showing of the stripes. If you gloat over the provocative swish of taffeta, they're just the things, especially under wool.

In the same section is the final appearance of all silk-satin costume slips, or so they tell us. Only the delicate shade of tea rose pink is obtainable but every inch is silk and they're priced unbelievably low for such a treasure. Two models are shown, one with eyelet embroidery bands around the top, the embroidery of that faint bluish tinge of Appenzell thread, and the other with exquisitely fine lace edging and dainty vine and leaf embroidery worked on the fitted bra type top. There is also a band of fine lace around the hem.

Phi Omega Pi Will Mark Anniversary at Banquet

In observance of the 33d anniversary of the founding of the Phi Omega Pi National Panhellenic sorority, Chicago sections will celebrate with a banquet tonight at the Top of the Town restaurant, 185 North Wabash avenue. White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MACKAY.

The Stenos Talk It Over.

A meeting of the secretaries and chief clerks to the executives and department heads in the Kansas City offices of one of the major airlines was held recently in Kansas City. The purpose of the group, as outlined, foreshadows the stature of the secretary of today and tomorrow:

1. Stimulate thinking and develop initiative.
2. Develop a closer coördination between the departments.
3. Train new employés.
4. Build up morale.
5. Make each girl more public relations conscious.
6. Develop a sense of sound judgment.
7. Make more alert and useful employés.

Perhaps there was a time when a secretary was solely the employé of one individual. That time has passed. She is now, increasingly, an important contributor to the successful operation of the business she serves.

It Sticks in the Mind.

The career girl who described a customer thus: "She has carried her mind in a sling so long she can't use it."

Barbara, the sweet white collar girl wife of an ensign home on leave from Pearl Harbor . . . her radiant smile . . . and his.

The inscribed little gold heart presented to "Sunny," who plays the piano for the men in service until her fingers ache.

The young window shopper who suddenly spied a familiar, loved face in an ornate frame and enchanted the noon hour shoppers by blowing a kiss towards the formal display window.

Key Words.

* Just in case you haven't an atlas handy, the two states, mentioned in yesterday's column—one written with the left hand on the typewriter and one with the right—are TEXAS and OHIO.

I Didn't Catch the Name.

It was a sunless morning when, breakfastless, she arrived in a Minneapolis hotel. The bell boy [one of those nimble youngsters well past 50 who are taking the places of bellhops] deposited her bags in her room, turned on the radiator and raised the shades, saying, "I hope you have a pleasant time, Miss Wright, in our city."

On a dreary morning it brought her a lift and an idea. If a big hotel judged it worthwhile to instruct the bellboy to remember the name of the guest, then, most certainly in her business a memory for names was valuable.

That was about a year ago. Since then she has succeeded in schooling her memory [1st] by listening to the name when spoken and [2d] by registering it in her mind, connecting it to the person and thus reducing those embarrassing moments when, formerly, she stammered, blushed, and apologized: "Sorry, I didn't catch the name." She feels it has increased her business and wonders now why such a distinct business asset is lightly regarded. Most names, she says, are not forgotten. They merely are not given sufficient attention to be learned in the first place. Her advice is: "Listen!"

'Aleko' Danced by Massine and Alicia Markova

BY CECIL SMITH.

An all-Tschaikowsky evening occupied the members of Ballet Theater in the Civic Opera house last night. Somehow nothing sounds more bromidic than an entire program of Tschaikowsky ballets, no matter how good they may be intrinsically or how well they may be danced.

But last night there was a note of novelty in Leonide Massine's first appearance anywhere in the title rôle of "Aleko," a work for which he devised the choregraphy. It also was Mr. Massine's first appearance on any stage as partner of the delectable Alicia Markova, unbelievable tho that fact may seem. The other two ballets in the program were "Swan Lake" and "Princess Aurora," the latter presented for the first time this season.

Only two days before his debut in the rôle Mr. Massine had told Claudia Cassidy that he would like to dance in "Aleko" some time, but that he did not know when he would undertake it. His time came sooner than he then knew. The injury to Anton Dolin's knee—an infection caused by a splinter from the rough floor of the Civic Opera house stage—is healing slowly, but in the face of his assignment in "Princess Aurora" it did not seem desirable to let him dance in "Aleko" as well. Consequently Mr. Massine prepared himself in the part in two days, speeding his learning by colloquies with Mr. Dolin and by long study of movies he had made of earlier performances. Since the choregraphy was his own, he needed to master only the technique, for he naturally already understood the composition well.

Not having seen Mr. Dolin dance the part, I cannot make comparisons. From a somewhat tentative start, lacking in his usual rhythmic snap, Mr. Massine grew into a strong performer, handling the dramatic pantomine of the last two scenes with power and projection. Miss Markova was the personification of grace and ease, and Hugh Laing danced with magnificent finish and accentuation. I only wish the ballet deserved the pains; it is chiefly an eye picture rather than a well coördinated or important dance composition.

Karen Conrad danced "Swan Lake" coldly but well, except for an occasional laxness in the ends of phrases. André Eglevsky, a good but not yet a great romantic dancer, was her partner. The pair also danced the bluebird variation in "Princess Aurora." Mr. Dolin and Miss Markova were the prince and princess.

Q. "Can you give me the name of a good skin remover?"

A. Try sandpaper, lady.

Parlor Game of the Day.

A lady we know went into a rental library the other day to return a mystery. The librarian asked the routine question, "How did you like it?" and our friend said it was terrible. At this point a cab driver who was sitting in a corner spoke up and waved the book he was poring over. "I've got the only good book in the joint," he said. It was a cookbook, "The Way to a Man's Heart." "You know," he continued chattily, "you have to read these books these days. Everyboy's reading cookbooks. That's all they read. But I can cook everything in this one! The only thing I can't make," with a frown, "is a good pie. And, gee, do I need to! Say, lady, when I make pie you can't tell whether it is gum or what it is."

Barefoot Girl.

A young girl, Margie Slechta, who works after school as a Western Union messenger, wore her sister's shoes to work last week. After an hour or two of racing around the shoes hurt so much that she removed them. Her feet immediately swelled until she was unable to put the shoes back on. Nothing deterred, she skipped about the building wearing only brightly striped sox on her feet.

Picture Game.

Have you heard about the marines' picture game? Ken McLaren of the marine air corps wrote to his sister, Edith, the details:

"Here is the deal. Say I have pictures of 10 cute girls. Some guy from Texas shows me the photo of a brunet whom I admire very much. So I say, 'Okay, Lone Ranger, I'll give you this blonde and this redhead for your little brunet.' He says 'Sure,' so —— and —— are no longer in my wallet. [I told him —— was a redhead.] I've had some excellent offers for you, some for the tot, but I just tell them family pictures are out. . . . No deal. No kidding, it's a regular racket here. I have photos of 25 girls from 19 different states. M. would be brokenhearted if she knew J. had traded her for a blonde and two chocolate bars."

The Incorrigible Rush.

Even life in the navy can't curb the repartee of a radio comedian. Billy Idelson, who was "Rush" in the radio program, "Vic and Sade," now is a navy air cadet, but not long ago he was a yeoman stationed at the navy public relations office here. A radio executive whom Idelson knew telephoned the office one day to ask to speak to a junior officer. "What does he look like?" Idelson asked. "O, I don't know," the caller replied. "Sort of stupid looking." "Well, sir," Idelson came back, "we have so many here that look like that."

SS. Peter and Paul Bell to Ring at St. Barnabas

The old church bell which called worshipers to the former cathedral of SS. Peter and Paul, Washington and Peoria streets, and later rang for services of the Cathedral shelter which was established on the site of the old cathedral under the Rev. Canon David E. Gibson, will now call services at St. Barnabas Episcopal church, 4242 Washington boulevard. The Rev. Walter S. Pond of St. Barnabas church purchased the bell and will rededicate it to the memory of Mrs. Edwin J. Randall, late wife of the suffragan bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago. Father Pond is former dean of the cathedral. The shelter is now at the Church of the Epiphany, 201 South Ashland avenue.

1943's Easter Greetings Bear Religious Note

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

There is a large possibility you will be sending many more Easter greeting cards this year than ever before, and you probably will send more genuinely religious cards, with pagan symbols of bunnies and eggs giving place to the cross and to the fact of the resurrection. Moreover, the greeting card industry is sold out to retailers now, and if you happen to think along toward Good Friday of several friends who ought to receive Easter cards this year you may not be able to find any on the counters.

All this information was disclosed yesterday at a luncheon given by the industry to editors of the religious press at the Drake hotel.

S. Q. Shannon of New York, director of the industry, which includes most of the greeting card manufacturers, told the editors that the demand for cards with resurrection and other religious symbols is unprecedented. He said the same situation was true last Christmas, but that the Easter demand accentuates the trend, adding that this is in line with the desires of the industry.

When Mr. Shannon inquired of the editors for the reason back of the rise of religious interest it was unanimous that the Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker stories, such as related by Lt. James Whittaker, were of great religious influence. It was agreed that religious interest and activity have reached the highest level known to the country.

How to get "gushiness" out of the greeting cards was another query. Mr. Shannon told of one person who complained that the cards were too gushy for her to send to her friends but added: "How I love to get them!" He explained how the demand for specially designed cards for service men has been met thru combined display of church symbol and flag of the nation.

Mr. Shannon said the Christmas greeting card celebrated its centenary last Christmas. He said the original Christmas card was etched by William Maw Egley in 1842 and is now in the British museum.

Vagaries of the ecclesiastical moon permit a variation from Feb. 4 to March 10 for Ash Wednesday, and March 22 to April 25 for Easter. The last time Ash Wednesday and Easter fell so late was in 1886, and it will not occur again until some time in the 21st century.

Symphony Aids Meet March 13 in Washington

BY JUDITH CASS.

REPRESENTING the women's committee of the Chicago Symphony orchestra at the third biennial conference of the women's committees of the 16 major United States orchestras will be Mrs. Telfer MacArthur, who departs for Washington, D. C., next Friday to attend the three day meeting. Mrs. MacArthur, who is chairman of the Chicago committee, will stay either in a private home or at a hotel, as she has left the housing arrangements to Mrs. Ralph Bard, a member of the council in charge of the conference.

The delegates won't have a dull moment next Saturday, Sunday, and Monday, according to the schedule drawn up for their entertainment. There will be a children's concert, a delegates' luncheon, and a musical evening at Dunbarton Oaks on the opening day, March 13. The next day Mrs. Joseph Davies is entertaining the group at luncheon before the concert of the National Symphony orchestra, which is the Washington Symphony organization. Following the concert the visitors will have cocktails with Mrs. Robert Bacon, and during the evening there will be a reception at the National Gallery of Art.

Wives of Officials Aid Conference Committee.

Following the committee meetings on the last day, there will be a tea at the Textile institute. Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, Mrs. Emory S. Land, and Mrs. Archibald MacLeish are some of the women who are on the committee in charge of the conference. It will be Mrs. MacArthur's first conference, as the illness of her younger daughter, Mrs. Newton Burdick Jr., prevented her from going last year. Lt. [j. g.] Burdick and his wife were here a few days ago on a short visit, and now are settling a pretty little apartment in Miami.

Mrs. Charles H. Swift, who is honorary chairman of the women's committee of the Chicago symphony, is heading for the opposite coast from Mrs. MacArthur. Mr. and Mrs. Swift are leaving today for Arrowhead Springs, Cal., where they will be joined by Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Morse for a several weeks' vacation.

Dinner for Mrs. Foss to Mark 95th Birthday.

Celebrating a 95th birthday is no ordinary occasion, so the dinner that the Thomas E. Wilsons are planning for next Tuesday night, tho small, will be an event of special sentiment as the guest of honor will be Mrs. Wilson's mother, Agnes Elizabeth McLean Foss, who will be 95 that day. Plans for the party are tentative still, but Mrs. Foss' granddaughter and grandson, Mrs. Harry A. Williams and Edward Foss Wilson, and their husband and wife, respectively, will join the family circle.

Some of Mr. and Mrs. Williams' four daughters probably will attend the dinner, too, but young Mr. and Mrs. Wilson's son, Edward Thomas, is still a baby. Mrs. Foss, who is spry and active, was born in Canada and came to Chicago early in her life. Her husband, the late Martin Henry Foss, was a native of New Hampshire, and became a member of the Board of Trade after settling in Chicago. Mrs. Foss, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Williams, and the Williamses' oldest daughter, Karen, share the name Elizabeth, which is Karen's middle name. The other Williams children have unusual first names, too, Gwain, Noel, and Lynn.

Mrs. Kendall I. Lingle Giving Dinner Tonight.

Mrs. Kendall I. Lingle is entertaining at dinner tonight for a number of young women who, like the hostess, are without husbands much of the time. Mr. Lingle's work keeps him in Springfield, and he gets home only occasionally for week-ends. Of the nearly two dozen other temporary "widows" that Mrs. Lingle had invited tonight, a few who accepted for the long planned gathering have dashed off by coincidence to be with their husbands. Mrs. Lefens Porter is in New York for a reunion with her navy husband, Lt. Porter, and Mrs. Addis J. Browne Jr. has left for a visit with Ensign Browne.

Being welcomed back to Chicago after spending several years in New York are Mrs. Theodore Bersbach and her 6 year old daughter, Teddy. They have taken an apartment in East Division street, and Mrs. Bersbach is pursuing a career at the Field museum. Mrs. Bersbach's sister-in-law, Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick III., has gone to New Orleans to join her husband, who recently was graduated from an officer candidate school. Mrs. McCormick's brother, Lt. F. John Bersbach, is in Florida.

The former Joan Bersbach, now Mrs. Archibald Foster, and the former Betty Brooks, now Mrs. Thomas Schrieber, who both live in New York, recently left for Quantico, Va., to join their husbands, who are serving in the marine corps.

Marie Stevenson to Be Wed to Ensign Tonight.

Lace from her mother's wedding dress trims the gown which Miss Marie Stevenson will wear for her marriage tonight to Ensign Henry William Cutter. The ceremony and reception will take place at 8:30 o'clock in the Evanston home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Stevenson. Miss Margaret Stevenson will be her sister's maid of honor. Robert Anderson of Geneva will serve as best man, and Alfred Edwards, Ami Allan, and Samuel Whiteside of Grand Rapids, Mich., as ushers. Ensign Cutter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cutter of Elgin, will take his bride east.

Announcement is made of the marriage on Wednesday in New York of Miss Mary Van Voorhees, daughter

Women in War Work . . . . . By Kate Massee

Mrs. Betty Barton Greco of Washington, D. C., national director of the women's unit of the salvage branch of the WPB, told a state-wide luncheon meeting of women's organizations yesterday at the Electric club that point rationing of canned goods and the anticipated rationing of fats and oils will present to the housewife the toughest job she's ever had, that of keeping her community salvage quota from falling off sharply.

"The new rationing system will have a profound effect on the grease and tin can salvage drive," she said. "That means that of the four tin cans allowed per person per month, every one of them must be salvaged and properly prepared. Every tablespoon of residue fat must be saved. If every housewife saved only one tablespoon of residue fat a day, the country's glycerin quota, which has sharply increased, would be met with ease."

Mrs. Greco also told the clubwomen, who represented more than 1,000,000 women thruout Illinois, to go home and tell their groups that from now on it will be the little things that count, and that by passing along the information that no salvage is too small to consider, they will be doing a real service on the home front.

Mrs. Anne V. Zinser, Illinois women's salvage director, presided at the luncheon. She announced a spring and summer salvage drive as a continuation of the splendid achievements Illinois and the Chicago area have made since Pearl Harbor. Other speakers were Mrs. Walter J. Kelly, Nathaniel Leverone, Edward J. Condon, and Ben Regan, officials in the state and local salvage organizations.

Members of the Women's Advertising club of Chicago will present a WAAC service flag to the city on Monday at 5:15 o'clock, in ceremonies at State and Madison streets, as one of the features of Chicago's WAAC day. Miss Karen Fladoes, president of the club, will make the presentation, and the flag will be accepted by Mayor Edward J. Kelly. Gen. H. S. Aurand and WAAC officers also will speak.

The flag is a white satin banner fringed with gold. A gold silhouette of Pallas Athene, official WAAC insignia, is displayed in the upper right hand corner, and in the lower left is a representation of an officer's cap device. Across a large blue star in the center are red numbers, which may be changed to show the increasing number of Chicago women enrolled in the WAAC. The flag will be on display temporarily in the city hall.

Mothers of three Chicago WAACs now serving in North Africa will be special guests at the ceremonies. They are Mrs. Molly Simon, Mrs. Agnes Elberg, and Mrs. Anna Bodine.

Miss Frances Fullerton, a member of the faculty at the Chicago Latin School for Boys, has been inducted into the WAVES and is awaiting orders to report to Smith college for officer training. The school has granted her a leave of absence for the duration. She's a graduate of the University of Illinois, has a master of arts degree from Northwestern university, has done graduate study at Middlebury college and the University of Chicago, and formerly was on the faculties of the North Shore Country Day school and the Summit School for Girls at St. Paul, Minn. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Alexander Fullerton of Tuscola, Ill.

Miss Frances Fullerton.

The Kenilworth Service organization has planned two formal parties for this month, with service men as special guests. The first will be tonight at the Highland Park service men's center, the second on the evening of St. Patrick's day at the Waukegan U. S. O. club.

Since it was formed a year ago last month the organization has sponsored more than 100 parties at army and navy camps. Food served at the parties totaled 30,000 sandwiches, 200 gallons of ice cream, 4,000 cakes, 1,000 pies, and 50 pounds of cookies. The membership is composed of 100 women from Kenilworth, Wilmette, and Winnetka, and they've also served as party chaperones for an affiliate group, the Kenilworth Girls Service organization [GSO].

Mrs. Joseph Joyce was reëlected president of the organization at its annual meeting. The other officers are Mrs. James E. Armitage, Mrs. F. D. Meecham, Mrs. Paul S. Kelly, and Mrs. John T. Urice.

Carroll Glenn Shows Gift as Solo Violinist

Concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Hans Lange, conductor; Carroll Glenn, violinist. Presented at Orchestra hall Thursday evening, March 4, 1943. The program:
Symphony No. 1, C major .... Bizet
[First performance in Chicago.]
Rondo, "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks" .... Strauss
Concerto for violin, D major .. Beethoven

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

Carroll Glenn, 22 year old violinist who made so successful a début with the Chicago Symphony orchestra a year ago when she played the Sibelius Concerto, apparently captured a couple of solo plums in the process. She was immediately reëngaged for three performances this season, to play the Beethoven Concerto at Orchestra hall last night and this afternoon, and to return Tuesday afternoon to play the Tschaikowsky Concerto. Such juicy assignments are the stuff young artists' dreams are made of.

Yet last night's concert, for all the good things that went into it, was an error by the booking department where Miss Glenn was concerned. She is young and ardently gifted, and in that lemony gold lamé gown she looked like something out of Rossetti. She has, at its best, a full round tone with a lyrical lilt, and when it comes to a big cadenza, she can dig in her heels and go after it with the honest conviction of a technician who means business. She has poise and charm and a future. She has even a present.

But that present does not include the maturity of line, the profound grasp of a great score and the indescribable quality of projection that alone can do the Beethoven Concerto justice. This is music of the greatest scope, of a matchless purity and a nobility of mind so clear it is the essence of simplicity. Miss Glenn gave it a relatively small and somewhat clouded performance, illuminated now and then by an exceptionally lovely turn of a phrase or the sudden singing of a vibrant tone that had warmth and luminosity. She is uncommonly gifted, and she has what it takes to grow up to the Beethoven Concerto. Just give her time.

Mr. Lange and the orchestra gave Miss Glenn an accompaniment which was the essence of tactful support, having previously taken their own bows for the first Chicago performance of Bizet's only symphony, and for Strauss' rondo, "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks."

The Bizet score is symmetrical, neat, and charming, and Mr. Lange is to be congratulated for dusting it off with such skill. Written 20 years before "Carmen," when the composer was studying with Halévy at the Paris Conservatoire, this is music with nothing on its mind but melody. A touch Mozartean, even with a dash of Offenbach, it might be called the oboe symphony, so preoccupied is it with that graceful instrument. The adagio is an engaging piece of writing for oboe and for highly lyrical strings. The finale has the gaiety of a ballet score.

The Bizet was played with a sparkling clarity that displayed the orchestra at its best, and the Straussian brilliance of "Till" was almost, but not quite, as successful. It had the tonal splendor demanded by the score but it lacked the hair-trigger sense of timing that makes the music irresistible. There was none of the suspense that keeps "Till" eternally dramatic.

WOWs Open New National Office in City

The WOWs are on the march.

The WOWs . . . "the girls behind the men behind the guns" . . . the daughters, sisters, mothers, cousins of the men in the armed forces who are keeping pace with their men . . ., the Women Ordnance Workers of America.

Last night the WOWs moved into national prominence with the opening of their national headquarters in an office at 31 North State street. The ceremony was brief and impressive. Dressed in tan cotton gabardine uniforms, the officers of five posts of the WOWs, representing some 2,500 women in the Chicago area, met for the first time. Sisters on the assembly line, they shook hands and sealed a friendship that is fast moving over the country. Four of them accepted charters for their posts.

Last September, five girls at the Hurley Machine company in Cicero banded together. Today there are more than 5,000 in 10 WOW posts from New York to South Dakota. Their purpose is morale. They bake cookies for the men in the armed forces, write to lonely soldiers and sailors, take Red Cross classes, go to theaters, visit museums, take part in amateur theatricals, go horseback riding and do a hundred and one other things that band them together in a vast army of cheerful, well balanced and hard working women.

Founders and now national officers of the WOWs, the officers of the No. 1 Hurley post signed the charters last evening for posts which have been formed in the Rock-Ola corporation, the Chicago Thrift company, the Elgin National Watch company, and the Ammunition Container corporation. Mrs. Josephine Novak, 1835 South Kenilworth avenue, Berwyn, national president, was the first name.

Because of the enthusiasm with which the movement has swept the country, the original officers were soon swamped with the work entailed in organizing posts thruout the nation. With the aid of E. N. Hurley Jr., president of the Hurley company, and Warren Piper, prominent jeweler, the girls set up the national headquarters which will be supported by commissions from firms furnishing their supplies. There are no dues in the WOWs. Along with the national office, the girls received a full time executive director, Mrs. Caroline Budinger, 2033 Hutchins avenue, a former government worker who "wanted to do her bit on the firing line."

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Groomes of Chicago have announced the engagement of their daughter, Dorothy, to Kent Fleming Christie, son of Mr. and Mrs. George V. Christie of Purchase, N. Y. Miss Groomes is a student at Lawrence college. Mr. Christie attended Colgate university and enlisted in the coast guard a year ago.

War Increases Need for Foster Children's Care, Conferees Told

The care of foster children is increasingly essential in war time, Mrs. Henrietta L. Gordon, secretary of information and publications of the Child Welfare League of America, said yesterday before the league's midwest regional conference in the Hotel La Salle.

Mrs. Gordon asserted that care of dependent children in foster homes helps to solve a serious social problem by relieving the burden on public institutions, courts, and other agencies. She said the job of "foster parenthood" need not be permanent, but may be for only a short period. There is a greater need for temporary care, she said, than for permanent foster parents.

The conference, which opened yesterday, will continue until tomorrow afternoon. Miss Katherine Lenroot, chief of the United States children's bureau, will speak this morning at the first open session. The maintenance of essential services to children in war time will be discussed by members of the bureau at the afternoon session.

'Star Spangled Rhythm' Is Just That as a Movie

"STAR SPANGLED RHYTHM."
Produced by Paramount.
Directed by George Marshall.
Presented at the State-Lake theater.
FEATURING

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

More rhythm than reason here [to paraphrase a bit] and therein lies this picture's charm.

Such perfect timing! Such deft direction! So cunning the manner in which the many stars and the bits they play have been wangled into the story proper! Slapstick [and I MEAN slapstick] is tempered with subtlety, and you're not sure in which mood you like the movie best—when it whacks you on the back or cuddles up to you and sings sweet nothings. SPEAKING of singing—O, that Golden Gate quartet! Ever listen to 'em on the radio? If you DON'T—DO! This trip they're served up to you on a de luxe dining car with Mary Martin and Dick Powell as garnish.

The observer lands in the Paramount studios along with a bunch of sailors, one of whom believes that his father, Broncho Billy Webster, a former western star, is head of the company. In reality the old man is only the gateman. Polly, a switchboard operator who's never seen young Webster but has exchanged pictures with him, has aided Pop in what he believes is an innocent deception that would please SON and never be found out. . . . It's Polly who takes AND keeps the situation well in hand. . . . [I don't know WHY Betty Hutton isn't headlined! She's certainly the goddess of the machine! You never saw a girl work harder, take more punishment, or come up smiling a nicer smile. . . .]

As you've probably guessed by now, "Star-Spangled Rhythm" is made up of skits—much like a vaudeville show. . . . "The Men-Playing-Cards" skit with the late Lynne Overman, Fred MacMurray, Franchot Tone, and Ray Milland is a scream. . . . You'll love the "Old Glory" number, with Bing Crosby. . . . I could go on and on—but there's not the space, and, anyhow, the picture is full of delectable surprises that shouldn't be served to you warmed over.

I'll just state, emphatically, that here is the best extravaganza that's come out of Hollywood in a long, long time!

See you tomorrow.

Glenview Church Group Will Hold Benefit Party

Parishioners of Our Lady of Perpetual Help church in Glenview will give their fourth annual card party at 8:30 o'clock tonight in the Morrison hotel to raise funds for the Rev. John J. Dussman's philanthropical work for shut-ins. Proceeds will be used to augment the broadcasting expenses of Father Dussman's radio program, which is heard regularly every Sunday by hundreds of shut-ins in this area. He visits many of his listeners and sees that needy persons receive food, medical attention, clothes, and other aid. Mrs. Mabel Russell is chairman of the party this year.

Thru the Looking Glass

A friend of ours who recently joined the WAACs has been giving us some good tips on what the girls in service appreciate most in the line of gifts. Visited recently by a relative who presented her with a square package, she received it with an exclamation of, "O, soap!" Unhappily, it wasn't the desired item, but the precious stuff was forthcoming in a few days.

Rich, superfatted, sweet smelling bars are the best choice in soap. During their training period, especially, the girls have a close acquaintance with soap and water and their hands are inclined to suffer. For their personal use, a product that helps relieve dryness and irritation is most welcome.

Hand creams and lotions are another first choice. No matter what her state in life, every woman likes to have presentable and pretty hands. Lotions used during the day will help the cause, but for real hand beauty the girls must have a rich cream for use at night. If you want to be a perfect angel, slip a pair of cotton night gloves or mitts in with the jar of cream. They'll help the good work along and protect bedclothes from stain.

A soothing body lotion and a mitt filled with dusting powder are quite acceptable as is a foot balm that will comfort tired, aching feet.

An extra rich face cream is a perfect gift for the girl whose skin is inclined to dryness. Select the gooiest one you can find, and if it is delicately perfumed, she'll get twice as much enjoyment from its use. A pretty scent in her beauty aids gives a welcome lift and adds the feminine touch. In the same vein, a little bottle of light perfume, nothing too heady or langorous, will delight her heart and put the donor on her list of favorite persons.

Looking at Hollywood . . . By Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Cal., March 4.—Just to prove how your subconscious mind can beat you to the punch, Gene Tierney had this line to speak in "Heaven Can Wait": "Don't think my marriage has been all bad. I've had my moments." What she really said was: "Don't think my marriage has been bad at all. I've had more moments than most women can boast of." Take a bow, Oleg Cassini. . . . Baby Dumpling, from the "Blondie" series, is testing at Warners for a contract. I wonder what will happen if he gets it and they want Dumpling for the next "Blondie." It may be another case of Rita Hayworth, who finds herself without a voice since her voice, Nan Gwynne, is making such a hit in New York on her own.

Too Bad.

The Duncan sisters finally get their wish to do a picture version of "Uncle Tom's Cabin"—But here's the catch. Only the voices of Topsy and Eva will be heard, and they'll be attached to George Pal's puppetoons. . . . Constance Moore, who's separated from her husband, Johnny Maschio, says that if she'd remained here and continued with her career and not gone to New York for a play, there would have been no separation; but that the many months apart made it impossible for them to continue their lives together. Which makes me wonder what our soldiers are going to think when they read a statement like that. In these days of war, it behooves actresses to be careful about what they say.

Luck of the Navy.

Sailor Mathew Yuricich, from Ohio, had himself a time on the set of "Sweet Rosie O'Grady." Betty Grable, at the canteen the night before had invited him to the studio, and there he was at dawn, walking up and down in the rain so as not to miss her. He spent the day talking with Betty, Bob Young, Menjou, Reggie Gardiner, and that pretty Virginia Grey. Betty was an eyeful in an old-fashioned bustled black gown with an 18 inch waist, blue gloves, and a cape made of horsehair braid, which was pretty—but said Betty, "You'd think I was doing penance for something. It's like wearing a hair shirt. I feel like the old Christian martyrs."

Good Will Ambassadors.

Frank Case writes from New York: "Our streets are full of French sailors—youngs and naive, wearing their blue tams with those cunning little red pom-pons. One of them lost his pom-pon, went into Saks—could they find one for him? They did—free. America's gift to France—merci beaucoup! Frenchman departed happily. Next day, 50 more sailors showed up there, all with their pom-pons missing! They're wide eyed over the Empire State building and Radio City, but especially over hot water and soap being free in hotel washrooms, and a free wipe on a roller towel."

Never a Dull Moment.

Some contrast in Lloyd Nolan's acting life. He's playing that bad man Touhy. Now Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer wants him for "Army Chaplain." . . . Like Diamond Jim Brady, Eugene Pallette, who plays a meat packer in "Heaven Can Wait," wears dangling from the center of a gold watch chain a huge gold steer. He says it's easy to get picture jobs today. "Instead of the old apple, I give my directors a ham and a pound of butter." . . . When pretty Marguerite Chapman went marketing, she stood open mouthed while a hoity-toity female refugee ordered a shoulder of beef, a rib roast, some sausages, and calves liver, and said to the man, "You'll deliver it?" No, madame," replied he. "Well, isn't that your horse standing outside?" "No," said he, "I just sold you the horse."

Still Carry On.

Adrian's dinner party for Lady Mendl was also to celebrate his 40th birthday. It was a grand get-together, with Mary Pickford and Buddy, the Michael Arlens [Gosh! She's pretty, and does a swell mind-reading act, a trick none of us could guess], the Joseph Cottens [he wears double gold Mercury wings for cuff buttons and shirt studs], Doris Kenyon, who's prettier than ever, and Eleanor Boardman. I swear I don't know why they're not in pictures. The food was super. Janet admitted she'd gone without coffee for a week [and Adrian doesn't drink it], so we could have ours. They're off for New York Saturday for a three weeks' run around the big town.

Only the Beginning.

That beloved actor, William Farnum, will dramatize many characters from "The Robe," best seller, by Lloyd Douglas, tomorrow night in the Wilshire Methodist church. It's a benefit for the care of Chinese children. You'll remember that Frank Ross paid $100,000 for the rights of the book, and now that they're making plans for doing it into a picture, also a revival of "Quo Vadis," with talk about reviving "Ben Hur," it looks as tho we would have an upswing of spirituality on the screen—which is more than a step in the right direction. And I hope Farnum gets a chance at some of those parts in pictures, because he's done so much good in the past.

Friendly Aid Society.

Members of the Friendly Aid society will meet today at the home of Mrs. Daniel Schuyler, 1500 Lake Shore drive, to discuss plans for a benefit party. Miss Marie Bell will address the group.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1943: By Ely Culbertson.]

Bad discarding is probably the greatest single fault of players on defense, accounting for the fulfilment of thousands of contracts that should readily be defeated. South's discarding in the hand shown below was, I regret to say, more or less typical.

East, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

SOUTH
♠ 9 6 5 2
♥ A 10
♦ A J 9 7 4
♣ J 3

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 heart	Pass	2 no trump	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

Obviously, the East-West hands were bid "to the hilt."

North opened the deuce of clubs, far from a wise choice. The spade jack would have been an ideal opening. The club lead was ducked in dummy and South's jack was taken with the king. The heart eight was led and allowed to ride, South winning with the ten. Now South returned the seven of diamonds, not a bad play, but one which had unfortunate results. Declarer ducked, as did North, and the diamond king won. A low spade was led to the ace, and the club nine was led thru North, who naturally refused to cover. However, the nine was allowed to ride, and held. Now the club four was led to the ace and at this point South made a fatal discard. Apparently, he pinned his faith on bringing home his entire diamond suit; at any rate, he stubbornly clung to every diamond and let go a spade. Declarer now reëntered his own hand with a spade to the queen and cashed the club king, South this time parting with one of his beloved diamonds. Another spade to the king reduced South to the heart ace and the A-J-9 of diamonds. Now when a diamond was led from dummy, South could have redeemed himself by playing the nine spot. But he was afraid that declarer might make the blank queen, hence he jumped up with the diamond ace, thereby neatly dropping his own partner's queen, after which he could cash only the heart ace and the diamond jack. Then he had to surrender the diamond nine to declarer's ten, which became the fulfilling trick.

Obviously, many things had contributed to the success of this contract. First, North's opening lead; second, South's failure to hold his fourth spade and discard a diamond; third, and finally, South's play of the diamond ace, which had left him with a losing instead of a winning diamond. But of all the errors, South's failure to hang on to all of his spades was the most glaring.

Crocheted Bib Collar

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

This attractive, crocheted bib collar is easy to create, adding the spring touch to winter dresses. The design is attractive and easy to make. White mercerized cotton is an ideal medium. When the collar is finished, it is dipped in a mild starch solution and slightly stiffened.

For instructions in crocheting the bib collar, No. 959, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Joep Nicolas Is Honored as Exhibit Opens

BY HARRIETT PRIBBLE.

If yesterday's zephyr winds stirred up a longing for spring colors in guests en route to the Arts club, they should have had their fill in the rich jewel tones of Joep Nicolas' stained glass panels, in Mrs. Paul Butler's pert little butter-colored sailor, and in the blue and white iris, red tulips, and stock held in a filigree basket in the center of the tea table.

Mr. Nicolas, Netherlands artist now living in exile in New York, came from the east for the tea which opened his showing and a memorial exhibition of Jerome Myers' paintings. Mr. Nicolas, whose panels were strikingly displayed by illumination from behind, has solved the problem of the lead and dye shortage confronting glass muralists by using structural glass bricks sprayed with copper oxide, on which he etches his figures.

Chatting in Dutch with the artist Mrs. Jan I. Noest, wife of the Dutch consul general, wore a tiny fuchsia toque with a crest of feathers swirled above her forehead, an effective accessory for her dark dress. Some of those gathered around the tea table while Miss Laura Van Pappelendam and Mrs. John U. Nef poured were Mrs. Winterbotham Badger and her sister, Mrs. Alfred P. Shaw, Mrs. Harry T. Frost, Mrs. Ashley M. Brand, Miss Alice Gerstenberg, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, and Mrs. Edward A. Leight.

FASHIONS

By Angela

Budget buyers look ahead to a season when two piecers may be worn either as a jacket costume or as a suit. The girls of Venus' proportions wearing sizes 18½ to 44 are delightfully provided for in this category, with clever sheers and jersey and sheer combinations. The canny customer can economically arrange three changes of costumes for the price of one.

A smooth town outfit for late spring and early summer is the bright, well cut, and perfectly fitted jersey print jacket and a plain black sheer skirt sketched at the left. Surplice effects always do the "right thing" for their wearers, and this topper is no exception. A double breasted illusion is achieved by the two buttons at the front waistline, but, surprise, they are the beginnings of a belt of the same material which meets at center back and fastened with a matching buckle.

More tailored and delightfully cool looking is the popular version of the black suit with the white dot shown in the center. The white sheer gilet carries out the tailored theme, and the simplicity of the collar, lapel, and front blouse line further emphasizes its particular smartness. This same suit is available in navy with white or dusty pink dots. Bracelet length sleeves are ideal for new spring glove styles.

In an overture to fashion's dressier mood, the black two piece sheer at the right [which is sketched in white to bring out detail] is delightfully embroidered with a scroll of fine soutache braid, running down each side of the scalloped front. The vivid gilet of red, purple, and green prints against a black ground further develop the slenderizing front opening. The only fastening is a small tailored bow placed front and center.

Child's Active Curiosity Must Not Be Curbed

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1943: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Everybody has a bump of curiosity in his makeup; some persons are beset with it while others have only a normal amount. Yet many mothers express surprise and sometimes annoyance when they discover that their 2 and 3 year olds have a desire to pry into everything and try to find out "what makes the wheels go 'round."

One such mother writes: "Teddy's curiosity is insatiable. He's just 2½ years old, and his every waking moment is devoted to touching everything touchable, discovering everything discoverable, and eating everything eatable. He finds things almost too minute to be seen, and he's so quick in his movements I have to constantly watch him to prevent his getting hurt. The other day I found him contentedly eating floor wax. Fortunately, he wasn't able to get the top off the can, but he'd gotten a piece of wax that had solidified around the cap. Punishment seems useless, for he simply transfers from the particular thing that annoys me to something else and goes blithely on his way. Can you give me any suggestions?"

The very thing every mother must be prepared to accept is the fact that all little children are naturally curious; it's part and parcel of their makeup and must not be thwarted, altho it can be controled. All of the things that are familiar or stale to our senses are new and stimulating to theirs. A little child has sharp eyes for detail, keen ears for sound, sometimes [not always] a sharp nose for smells, a desire to try the sense of taste on almost every object, especially inedible ones, but especially does he have a craving to satisfy the sense of touch.

This sense of touch is a marvelous revealing thing residing in the delicate, sensitive instrument of a human being, his hands. Don't deny your child the gratification of his sense of touch. Don't decide he's meddling when he wants to touch things. Realize he's learning about shapes, surfaces, textures, heat, and cold. If you will let him experiment with his sense of touch, he'll become more manageable in that respect, rather than less.

Of course, you must use judgment in satisfying your child's desire to touch. A few fragile things should be put out of his reach, also things which it would be dangerous for him to handle in any way, such as scissors, razor blades, and so on. A few of your possessions can be denied him after he has once examined them. For other things that interest him you can supply substitutes for his own amusement. But give him the run of the house, within reason, and you'll find that he'll become deft in the use of his hands.

Don't slap or punish your small girl or boy. Let them satisfy their natural inquisitiveness without intolerance or irritability on the part of grownups.

CROWN GOLDEN GLOVES CHAMPIONS TONIGHT

BY ARCH WARD.

THIS is an era of fighting men and tonight at Chicago Stadium a capacity crowd of more than 21,000 will cheer the exploits of 32 young battlers whose courage, skill, and determination have been tested in the toughest event in sport—the Golden Gloves tournament. . . . The survivors are the best of a field of more than 15,000 who started down the long trail a month or six weeks ago in communities ranging from the Gulf of Mexico to the Canadian line and from the Alleghenies to the Rockies. . . . Golden Gloves is for fighting men only. . . . This event isn't an invitation to a literary tea. . . . It's a call to share the joy and shock of pure battle. . . . Eight of the 32 qualifiers for the final night of competition already are in the service of their country. . . . They include two from the Naval Air Technical Training center in Memphis, two from Camp Grant, two from Fort Sill, Oklahoma; one from Camp Campbell, Kentucky, and one from Barry field, Tennessee. . . . It's a safe bet that the other 24 will join their comrades in arms before another Golden Gloves tournament rolls around. . . . Their experience in Golden Gloves is certain to be an asset in the more important assignments ahead. . . .

So much for the 32 who have gained the big night. . . . But a word, please, for the thousands who started the campaign with the same hopes, the same ambitions. . . . They have fallen along the route, but no one ever can question their fighting hearts. . . . Golden Gloves in its entirety is a tournament of heroes, greater heroes, lesser heroes, strong heroes, and weak heroes, but heroes all. . . . Their voluntary entry in an event of this magnitude with its fierce competition stamps them as brave men. . . . Every young man who goes into it knows what it is—the severest test a man can have in sport. . . . Maybe he was thumped into oblivion in his first bout, but his heart was right or he wouldn't have entered. . . . He knew that every time he poked his head thru the ropes he had to face an adversary whose one purpose was to knock him out. . . . He had the stuff in him. . . .

No amateur boxer knows how good he is until he has engaged in Golden Gloves. . . . Champions have been found in strange places. . . . Boys who went into it as a lark or on a dare, or doubting themselves, suddenly have found themselves under the spotlight's glare before 21,000 spectators fighting for the championship of the tournament. . . . It happens as quickly as that. . . . Boys who were novices in January have come into the March finals wtih skill and confidence. . . . The huge throng will peg two or three of the contestants, possibly more, as outstanding professional prospects and they probably will be right. . . . But this department never has been interested in conducting Golden Gloves as an incubator for professional boxing. . . . Our objective is to give these boys a chance to express themselves, to share the spotlight for a moment, to build their bodies and, above all, their characters. . . . If their efforts produce more revenue than the expenses of operation—and they always have—every cent is donated to worthy organizations by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

The Voice Within.

Some night when stars no longer shine
In heaven's far flung tapestry,
When Pleiades no longer line
The mantle of the southern skies
You'll know, my dear, the awful mystery
Of love that flames and burns, but never dies.

But does not every flame go out?
You ask. Does not there come at last
An end to everything? Why doubt
That love will rocket in the skies
And pass like flaming comets far apart?
My answer, dear: The voice within my heart. —Anthony.

Lookee, Lookee, Lookee!

Lookee, lookee, lookee, here comes Cookie
With a flock of books under her arm,
She's about to unreel the noonday meal
And her brain is with figures aswarm;
She must do it strictly according to points
And mathematical rule,
No more of the old time guess work
Of a long since vanished school.

No more may she reach for a "pinch" of this
Or a little "dab" of that,
She must weigh out and measure each rationed treasure,
And get it exactly down pat;
She no longer rings up the butcher boy
And berates him as one would a sinner,
She now telephones and meekly inquires:
"Please, what may we have for dinner?"

O, the lady who whips up our meals today
Is a very important cog,
Should she even essay a simple souffle
She must study a well charted log;
When she stirs up dessert she doesn't consult
A cook book for something to "spike" it,
Now she just gives a look in her ration book—
And, brother, we'll eat it and like it!
—Jazbo of Old Dubuque.

Barney Ross.

There were scores of fighters who felt his fists
And thousands who cheered him on,
But a shifting fate made him truly great
When his ring days and fanfare were gone.

He proved that he was a genuine Yank
Fighting for freedom beyond the foam,
But more glorious now to me was his vow,
If he ever got back to his home . . .

And the lad who returned from Guadalcanal
Heroically great thru his toil
Set my heart aglow by his kneeling low
And kissing American soil.
—F. H. Keith.

Commuter's Complaints.

Dear Arch: Here's the payoff waiting for the 7:30 the other morning. It was two hours and 20 minutes late, altho it starts only 15 miles up the track. The boys started a blackjack game in the depot and I wins me $42 cash money. Of course, the whole town hears about it and when I gets home that night [we was only 28 minutes late on a 43 mile run] the Missus greets me at the station with a new sports outfit marked down to $47.50. I sez, "I lost!" She sez, "You win!" Can I sue the railroad?
—Commuter Louie.

Logic.

A Negro lived in an old leaky shack
That was allergic to the heavy rains,
Yet he was loath to mend a hole or crack
Fearing that labor might increase his pains;
One day a neighbor gave him this reproof
For being so inactive all the time:
"You lazy man! Why don't you mend your roof?
The way that you neglect it is a crime!"

"Well," said the Negro, "I can't work up there
When these bone-drenching showers have begun,
And when the rain stops and the weather's fair
There isn't any damage being done;
And so I reckon that's the reason why
My cabin is so open to the sky."
—T. E. B.

BIG TEN INDOOR MEET OPENS ON MIDWAY TODAY

Michigan, Illinois, Ohio Are Threats.

Track Schedule

TODAY'S schedule of preliminary events in the annual Western conference indoor track meet in the University of Chicago fieldhouse follows:

3:30 p. m.—60 yard dash trials and broad jump trials.
3:55 p. m.—440 yard dash trials.
4:20 p. m.—70 yard high hurdle trials.
4:40 p. m.—880 yard run semi-finals.
5 p. m.—70 yard low hurdle trials.
5:20 p. m.—440 yard dash semi-finals.
5:40 p. m.—70 yard low hurdle semi-finals.

Trial heats to cut a field of 37 60 yard dash contestants to a dozen semi-finalists will open the 1943 Western conference indoor track meet in the University of Chicago fieldhouse at 3:30 this afternoon. The survivors are expected to include at least two men from each of the three leading contenders in the meet—Michigan, Illinois, and Ohio State. Trials in the broad jump also are slated for 3:30.

Following the sprint heats, preliminaries will be run off in the 440 yard dash and the 70 yard high hurdles before the semi-finals in the half mile run are held. Then will come trial heats in the 70 yard low hurdles, the preliminary session winding up with semi-finals in the quarter mile and the low hurdles. Finals will start at 8 o'clock tomorrow night.

Badgers May Hold Key.

The possibility that Wisconsin may have three good men, all of whom momentarily have been expecting a call to the army, is likely to increase Michigan's chances of finishing ahead of the Illini, since the Wisconsin men are capable of taking up to 15 points in the same events as the Illini. The trio comprises John Towle, sprinter and low hurdler; Roger Foster, broad jumper and vaulter, and Walter Lambert, hurdler.

Wisconsin, virtually assured of fourth place, has the strongest field team, with two sure winners in Bob Hodgell in the high jump and Bob Beierle, defending shotput champion, but the Badgers have only a scattering of talent in the track events.

Among the track stars who will perform in the preliminaries are Bob Ufer of Michigan, Russ Owen of Ohio State, and Bob Kelley of Illinois, the three outstanding quarter milers in the Big Ten.

List of Stars Is Long.

Other headliners include Elmer Swanson and Chuck Pinney of Michigan, George Hoeflinger of Ohio State, Herb Matter of Illinois, and John Towle of Wisconsin, hurdlers; Dave Matthews, John Roxborough, and John Ingersoll of Michigan, and Ralph Pohland of Minnesota, half milers; and Michigan's Leonard Alkon, Ohio State's Dave Trepanier, and Wisconsin's Dave Soergel and Towle, in the sprints.

The broad jump trials, in which the Big Ten record is almost certain to be broken, will decide whether Ohio State's Dallas Dupre is too badly injured to live up to his early season promise, or whether Matter can top him. Matter has jumped an inch over the conference record of 23 feet 9¼ inches set by Tom Farmer of Iowa last year.

LAMONT QUITS AS FOOTBALL COACH AT ST. RITA HIGH

Leo Deutsch, basketball coach at St. Rita since 1940, will assume Lamont's position. Leo was graduated from St. Rita in 1933 and then went to St. Benedict's college in Kansas.

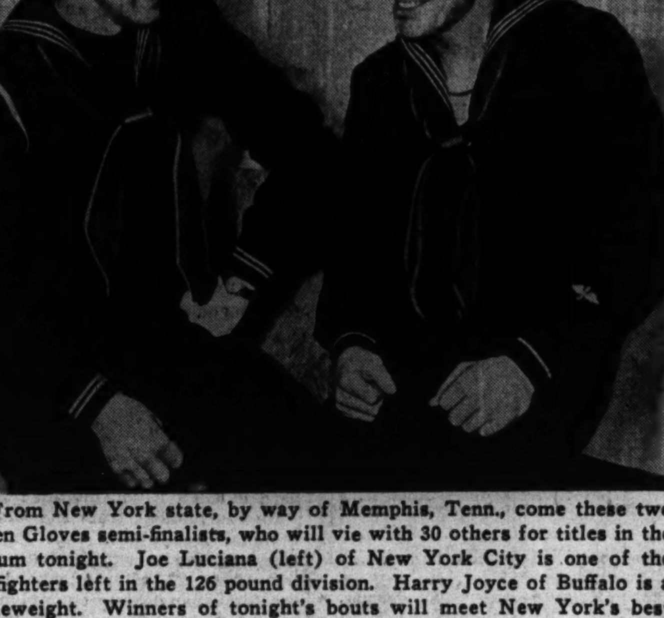
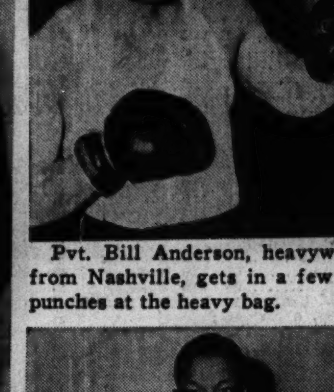
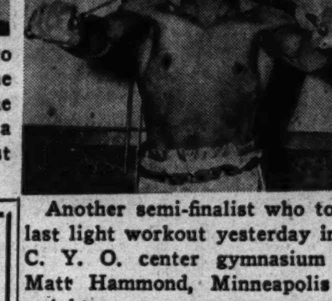
FIGHTERS WITH ONE IDEA



From New York state, by way of Memphis, Tenn., come these two Golden Gloves semi-finalists, who will vie with 30 others for titles in the Stadium tonight. Joe Luciana (left) of New York City is one of the four fighters left in the 126 pound division. Harry Joyce of Buffalo is a middleweight. Winners of tonight's bouts will meet New York's best in the annual Intercity show in the same ring March 31.



Pvt. Bill Anderson, heavyweight from Nashville, gets in a few final punches at the heavy bag.



Another semi-finalist who took a last light workout yesterday in the C. Y. O. center gymnasium was Matt Hammond, Minneapolis flyweight. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

Golden Gloves to Guadalcanal

Barney Ross Whips Canzoneri for Lightweight Title, and Does It Again to Make It Stick

[This is the fifth of a series of articles on the boxing and marine career of Corp. Barney Ross, former world lightweight, junior welterweight, and welterweight champion, and one of the heroes of Guadalcanal.]

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

BARNEY'S triumph over Ray Miller in their bitter neighborhood battle in the summer of 1934 was a milestone in his career, but it had been preceded a few months before by an unusual visit to the Stadium. Billy Petrolle and Bat Battalino were in the main event and Pian and Winch had brought Barney along with the suggestion, "One of these days you'll meet the winner, kid." As he watched Billy and Bat whale the stuffing out of each other in one of the most vicious bouts in Stadium history, Barney was moved to comment, "And I'm supposed to fight the winner of THAT one!"

Yet, as it turned out, Barney fought both Petrolle and Battalino, and whipped them both decisively. It was his victory over the Fargo Express in the Stadium on March 23, 1933, that removed the last obstacle to a fight with the lightweight boss of those days, the great little Tony Canzoneri.

It was quite a step up for the former Golden Glover, but the kid who had always had the heart now had the savvy to match the ringwise Canzoneri. The fight was held in the same Stadium where Barney had begun his climb as an amateur star on June 23, 1933.

Few championship bouts in Chicago ever produced such a close battle. Ross, using his sharp left with telling effectiveness, took the early command, but Tony, like the battler he always was, fought back to take the fourth and fifth rounds. The furious pace told on both men, but in the ninth Ross called on unexpected reserve power, pelted Tony with a storm of left hooks and had the New Yorker in his corner at the end of the round. Canzoneri fought back in the tenth, but Barney matched him punch for punch.

From the third round on one of the ringside fans conducted a one man rooting section for Ross. In between puffs on a cigar this little man kept shrieking, "He's in! He's champ!" The crowd, realizing the closeness of the fight, stood frozen while the announcer collected the officials' cards and then verified the little man's enthusiasm as the announcer raised Barney's hand in token of victory. And the little man should have known. He was the late Joe Jacobs, the astute New Yorker who guided Max Schmeling to the world heavyweight title.

First of Three Chicago Golden Glovers to Win World Titles.

Thus Ross became the first of three Chicago Golden Glovers to win world championships, preceding Tony Zale in the middleweight division and a fellow named Joe Louis, Sergt. Joseph Louis Barrow to you, now. Canzoneri said nothing after the fight, but his entourage screamed it was a home town decision. Ross and Pian and Winch already had agreed to defend the title within three months, and Barney couldn't wait until he met Tony in his own back yard to prove he could whip the little Italian anywhere.

The fight, held in the Polo Grounds on Sept. 12, 1933, left no doubt in the minds of the experts that the young Chicagoan was a champion, despite the fact it was the first time Barney ever had been called upon to go 15 rounds, and against a man like Canzoneri, of all people. Tony fought a desperate battle all the way thru, but it was Ross at the end, a decision agreed upon even tho the three rounds in which Canzoneri was charged with low blows had been thrown out. The oldsters at the ringside were high in their praise of the kid, likening him to another Jewish-American lightweight king—Benny Leonard.

Barney Is the Hero at a Number of Receptions.

When the boy who started life in the hard streets of the Maxwell street section returned home from New York on Sept. 15, 1933, he was the guest of honor at a number of receptions, headed by an official one by Mayor Kelly. This was a high moment in Barney's life in Chicago, but it was only the forerunner of a day in which he was the hero of a daylong triumphal procession. That was the day he returned from his welterweight triumph over Jimmy McLarnin less than nine months later.

DOM DI MAGGIO WILL REMAIN IN NAVY; EYES O. K.

San Francisco, Cal., March 4 (AP).—The navy today spiked persistent rumors that Dominic Di Maggio, former Boston Red Sox baseball star now stationed at Treasure Island, had suffered loss of sight in one eye and was about to receive a medical discharge.

The public relations office at Treasure Island said "He [Di Maggio] is serving on active duty at Treasure Island. His eyes are absolutely normal, considering the fact that he wears glasses."

PRO FOOTBALL SPRING MEETING TO OPEN APRIL 6

The spring meeting of the National Football league will be held April 6, 7 and 8 in the Palmer House, Elmer Layden, football commissioner, announced yesterday. Representatives of the 10 clubs will file draft rights on 20 graduating college seniors. It was pointed out that in many instances their selections will be made only to establish property rights for the athletes after the war is over.

Layden said the league is determined to operate.

Canadiens Top Rangers; Close In on Hawks

New York, March 4 (AP).—The Montreal Canadiens made an impressive bid for a place in the National Hockey league play-offs tonight by routing the last place New York Rangers, 7 to 2, before 8,431. The victory put Montreal only two points behind the Chicago Blackhawks and Toronto Maple Leafs, who are tied for third place.

LES FLEMING OF INDIANS QUITS; TO STAY IN SHIPYARD

Cleveland, O., March 4 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians lost their regular first baseman today when Les Fleming asked to be placed on the voluntary retired list for the duration. Vice President Roger Peckinpaugh said he would take such action since Fleming plans to continue working in a Beaumont, Tex., shipyard unless called to service.

Fleming, 27 years old, is married and has one child, born last month. His .292 average led the Indians at bat last season.

First Baseman Hal Trosky, who went on the voluntarily retired list a year ago because of persistent migraine headaches, has refused a proffered 1943 contract with a note that he felt he should stay on his farm in Iowa. Trosky is married and has three children.

32 SURVIVORS OF HUGE FIELD AWAIT 24 BATTLES IN STADIUM

2,000 Reserved Seats Still Available for Big Show.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Thirty-two boys will fight tonight for amateur boxing's greatest prizes—Golden Gloves championships. Eight will attain them. The battle, climaxing a campaign which has stretched thru many weeks, will be waged in the Stadium before a gathering which will pack the big arena to capacity.

The show will consist of 24 bouts—16 semi-finals and 8 finals—with the prospect of sensational action in nearly every one. Champions will be crowned in all eight weight classes. The tournament is sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., with the coöperation of newspapers and military and naval officials in 24 out of town centers covering a vast area stretching from Ohio to Oklahoma and from Minnesota to the Gulf of Mexico. These centers drew fighters from a total of 23 states.

You Still Can See It.

Tho all of the $3.30, $1.65, and 55 cent tickets are sold, boxing fans still have a chance to get in on the big show. Two thousand reserved seats remain at $2.20 and $1.10. When these are exhausted, 3,000 general admission tickets will be put on sale at gates 1 and 3 of the Stadium.

Fighters from far-flung Golden Gloves territory were converging on Chicago yesterday and all were to be on hand by noon today for weighing in and physical examinations in C. Y. O. center. The Memphis squad led the way on Wednesday night.

The Fort Worth squad came in, headed by Morris Corona, competing in his fourth Golden Gloves tournament. This boy, who has been captain of an Intercity squad, winner of the Barney Ross sportsmanship trophy, and lightweight champion in the course of his previous Golden Gloves experience, now is seeking the welterweight title. With Corona came his Fort Worth teammates, the veteran flyweight, José Andreas, and hard hitting Hubert Gray, who aims to keep the lightweight title in Texas. Corona took it in 1942.

Cleveland Stars Arrive.

The powerful Cleveland boys are depending primarily on Chuck Hunter, their rugged lightweight, to take a title to their city. Hunter, however, is backed up by Tony Janiro in the featherweight class and Samson Powell among the middleweights.

The Nashville and Camp Grant boxers also were early arrivals.

Chicago fans will be paying particularly close attention to this city's survivors—Tim Dalton in the lightweight class, Reedy Evans in the light heavyweight, and Walter Moore in the heavyweight. Both Dalton and Moore face some very formidable opposition in their divisions, but Evans has become the favorite to take the 175 pound title since his masterful performance in overthrowing the defending champion, Tom Attra of Fort Worth, in the quarter-finals.

Fight for Intercity Berths.

In addition to Corona, one former title holder remains. This is Jackie Graves of Minneapolis. He has moved up from the bantamweight class, in which he took the honors last year, to the featherweight. Opposing him in this division are Cleveland's Janiro, together with Art Edmerson of Richmond, Ind., and Joe Luciana, a sailor who is on the Memphis team.

In addition to Golden Gloves championships, the boys will be fighting for places on the intercity team which will meet New York's representatives in the Stadium on March 31. The makeup of the squad will be decided by Golden Gloves officials and coaches after the final bouts.

The program will be opened at eight o'clock with Frank Bennett's Y. M. C. A. singers delivering the "Salute to Golden Gloves." During the intermission between the last semi-final and the first final bout, there will be additional ceremonies.

Sox Will Move to Camp Mile from Cub Base

The White Sox have changed their mind again about the plot of ground on which they'll begin their spring exercises March 19. They'll not move out of the French Lick Springs hotel, which also will house the Cubs, but have transferred the actual training site from the hotel grounds to West Baden, about a mile away. The latter provides what formerly was a baseball field.

Walking to and from their daily work was added to the Sox spring routine yesterday as the result of an inspection trip by Coach Muddy Ruel. The West Baden park was considered when the Sox picked their camp more than two months ago, but was discarded in favor of a spot formerly used for the training of the Taggart thorobreds. Ruel, seconded by Bobby Dorr, Wrigley field superintendent who is directing preparations for the Sox as well as the Cubs, advised the change because of the possibilities of soggy ground.

BUDWEISERS TO LEAVE TONIGHT TO BOWL STROHS

Detroit Team Holds a 72 Pin Lead.

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

The Chicago Budweiser bowling team, A. B. C. champion, its sponsors, and a group of its followers will leave tonight for Detroit where tomorrow the team will resume its quest of the national match game championship in the final 12 games of competition with the Stroh Bohemians, defending title holders.

The Chicagoans will have to overcome a double handicap to add the match crown to their A. B. C. honors. First, they are 72 pins behind the Strohs, having knocked down 12,589 pins to the Strohs' 12,661 in the first game, rolled in Chicago last week-end. Secondly, they will have to meet the Strohs on the defending champions' home alleys. They are the alleys on which the Strohs turned a 425 pin deficit into a 523 advantage in winning their crown last November.

The Budweiser team will be intact and Capt. Joe Wilman probably will use the same lineup that rolled last week-end, and has been in action in league matches this week. The team rolled a poor 2,876 in the Windy City league Monday night, but came back with 3,335 in the Classic league Wednesday. In the Classic match, George Theel, whose shooting has been off, collected a 265 game and a 671 for the series. Bill Hargadon, who wound up the week-end competition against the Strohs with a 753 series, got 696 Wednesday, while Wilman came up with 699. Johnny Small rolled 675.

NAVY PIER WINS; TAKES SERVICE BOXING CROWN

Navy Pier clinched the championship of the Servicemen's Amateur Boxing league last night by scoring a 6 to 2 triumph over the Glenview Naval Air Station in the flyers' gymnasium. By winning this final match of the season the Pier finished with 8 won, 1 lost, and 3 tied, while Camp Grant had 7 victories, 1 defeat and four draws. Last night's feature was the heavyweight meeting of Russ Fitzsimmons of Navy Pier and Chuck Kocurek. Russ won in a fiercely fought battle. Other results:

112 POUNDS—George Amsler, Navy Pier, won by default.
118 POUNDS—Dick Roche, Navy Pier, won by default.
126 POUNDS—Jimmy Warner, Glenview, beat Marine Bill Wilkinson [3].
135 POUNDS—Frank Sidote, Navy Pier, beat Tommy Verner [3].
147 POUNDS—Ken Werner, Navy Pier, beat Pete Scalia [3].
160 POUNDS—Mike Birskovich, Navy Pier, won by default.
175 POUNDS—Ralph Di Battista, Glenview, beat Raul Diez [3].

BIG 10 DIRECTORS TO HOLD SPRING MEETING TODAY

Western conference athletic directors will meet this morning in the offices of Commissioner John L. Griffith to discuss the 1943 war time football schedules. Col. Bernie Bierman of the Iowa naval pre-flight school and Lt. Comm. J. Russell Cook of Great Lakes Naval station also will attend the meeting.

It is probable changes will be made in the nine game 1943 schedules to include the service teams. A year ago the Big Ten rearranged its schedules to accommodate 17 service games and it is believed the same procedure will be adopted at today's meeting.

BIG TEN SWIM, MAT MEETS GET UNDERWAY TODAY

Ohio State Will Miss the Wrestling Tourney.

Northwestern university will be host today to the Big Ten swimming and wrestling meets which will get under way this afternoon with preliminary events.

Today's swimming program will start at 2:30 o'clock with preliminaries in the 50 and 220 yard free style, the 150 yard back stroke, fancy diving, and the 300 yard medley relay. Finals in all five events will be held tonight with a special freshman 300 yard medley relay.

Michigan rates as a heavy favorite to win its fifth successive swimming title in the two day meet which is expected to include a wholesale assault on the records. The Wolverines boast an undefeated record which includes two victories over Ohio State, the one team accorded a chance to dethrone the perennial champions.

Buckeyes Lose Stars.

Ohio State's title hopes were dealt a blow when two of their sophomore stars were lost to the army air corps. They were Jim Counsilman, star in the breast stroke, and Miller Anderson, fancy diver, National A. A. U. champions in their respective events. The Buckeyes will pin their hopes on three defending champions, Frank Dempsey, fancy diving; Capt. Mark Follansbee, back stroke; Jack Ryan, 440 yard free style, and Keo Nakama, sophomore 220 and 440 yard free style star.

Michigan's quest of its fifth straight title centers around John Patten, defending 220 yard free style champion, and Jim Skinner, breast stroke champion. The Wolverines also possess a brilliant sophomore star in Harry Holiday who twice has bettered the conference record in the 150 yard back stroke.

Illinois, which won the Big Ten basketball championship this week, is favored to annex a second title in the wrestling meet which will start at 2 o'clock with preliminaries in all events. Semi-finals will be held tonight with finals scheduled for tomorrow afternoon.

Illini Undefeated in Duals.

The Illini enter the meet with an undefeated dual record, including a victory over Purdue, last year's winner. The Boilermakers have only one regular from last year's championship squad, Capt. Frank Ruggieri, defending heavyweight champion.

Rate Up in 24 Districts and Down in 18.

The 1942 tax rates for Lake county, announced yesterday by Walter Smith, head of the tax extension division in the office of County Clerk Jay B. Morse, show an increase in 24 of the 43 school districts and a decrease in 18. The rate in one district has not yet been tabulated.

2 WHO ESCAPED TRAINING SCHOOL HELD FOR THEFT

Two inmates who fled over the fence at the Illinois State Training School for Boys near St. Charles Wednesday were locked up in the Kane county jail at Geneva last night after they had been bound over to the Kane county grand jury for stealing an automobile in Elgin.

The two are Francis Denham, 16 years old, 824 Leland avenue, whose record of delinquency includes setting fire to a portable Chicago school building, larceny and the driving of his uncle's automobile out of the state without permission; and Daniel Weisner, 16, of Quincy. Denham was sent to the state school last Dec. 11. Weisner was placed in the school in 1939 for general incorrigibility.

The youths fled from the school late Wednesday afternoon after hiding out from a gymnasium class. They walked to Plato Center, about eight miles away. There they tried to steal two parked cars, but were unable to get them started. After taking a gasoline ration book and a flashlight from one of the cars, the pair continued to Elgin where they stole a bicycle and then the car.

BANKER ARIANI GETS SENTENCE OF YEAR AND DAY

Saverio Ariani, the once affluent Chicago Italian banker who remained a fugitive for 11 years in California after his bank collapsed in 1931 because, he said, he was afraid of his creditors, was sentenced yesterday by Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe to a year and a day in the federal penitentiary.

Saverio Ariani.

Ariani, 66 years old, a small gray haired man, had pleaded guilty to a charge of concealing assets of his defunct First Italian State bank. Passing sentence, Judge Igoe denied the plea of Ariani's attorney, Abe Marovitz, for probation.

In court with Ariani were his wife, Minnie, and his two sons, Romolo and Carlo. Similar charges against them were stricken with leave to reinstate within 90 days on the request of Francis J. McGreal, assistant United States attorney. Assets totaling $110,000 found by investigators were ordered impounded by the court.

Informed out of court by his attorney that he had been sentenced to a year in prison, Ariani, who had stood in court with his head bowed, muttered: "I won't live two weeks."

HOGS REACH $16, HIGHEST SINCE OCTOBER, 1920

Cattle Set 24 Year March Tops.

Price Index High

Washington, D. C., March 4 (AP). —The bureau of labor statistics reported today that new sharp gains in wholesale prices of grains, calves, cows, hogs, potatoes, and cotton sent the farm products group index up 1 per cent during the last week in February to a 22 year peak.

Live stock prices advanced again yesterday, some establishing new war time peaks. The first $16 hogs in Chicago since October, 1920, resulted from a new advance of 10 to 15 cents a hundred pounds. The February high mark was $15.80.

Demand narrowed as prices reached the new highs, and final trading revealed the first weakness this week as part of the early gains were wiped out. However, sufficient sales were made at higher prices to lift the average 5 cents to a new high of $15.80.

The March, 1942, average was $13.35. Hogs averaged $5.60 in August, 1939, just prior to the start of the war.

Chicago Supplies Reduced.

Altho some increase over a week ago was reported in movement of hogs to other points, the Chicago run of 22,000 was 2,600 short of a week ago. The four day total, 80,500, compared with 90,178 a week ago. Most good 190 to 280 pound hogs brought $15.80 to $15.90, and most 290 to 400 pounders sold at $15.70 to $15.80.

Despite the second highest March prices in history, demand for cattle was again brisk. Prices averaged steady with those of Wednesday.

The $17.40 top, highest for March since 1919, when $20.40 was paid, compared with a $16 peak for March last year. Most steers and yearlings sold from $14.50 to $16.50.

Lambs met good demand at strong to 10 cent higher prices. The $16.60 top set a 14 year March high.

GRAIN PRICES CLIMB

Most grain futures on the Chicago Board of Trade sold at new seasonal high prices yesterday on buying stimulated by announcement that the house agricultural committee had approved the Bankhead bill, which would prevent the office of price administration from including benefit payments in computing ceiling prices on agricultural products.

Wheat futures advanced as much as 1⅜ cents a bushel at the opening, September selling at $1.52. Liberal hedging and profit taking sales developed on the gain, and the market reacted in the late trading with the finish ¼ to ½ cent higher.

Corn held at ceiling prices bid for both futures and cash. Oats gained ⅜ to ⅝ cent. Rye was ⅜ cent higher.

Flour Purchases Are Heavy.

Confronted with the prospect that the price of hard winter and spring wheat flour would be advanced 75 cents or more a barrel if the Bankhead bill is passed by congress, buyers in the last week were estimated to have purchased 1 million or more barrels of flour. The government, it was revealed, purchased about 1 million barrels during the same period. About 9 million bushels of wheat will be required to fill the domestic and government sales of flour.

Prospects of an additional 10 cents or more a bushel for cash corn and a 23 year high price for hogs were said to have caused farmers to refuse to part with their surplus corn.

National Tea's Sales Rise, but Profits Decline

Sales of the National Tea company, grocery chain with headquarters in Chicago, increased nearly 25 per cent in 1942, but net income dipped below that of 1941, the company announced yesterday in its annual report to stockholders.

Net earnings in the year ended Dec. 31 were $412,155, equal to 54 cents a common share, against $425,152, or 55 cents a share, in the preceding year. Sales increased 24.6 per cent to $89,951,516, a gain of $17,769,827 above the $72,181,689 reported in 1941. Last year the company provided $290,000 for federal income taxes, compared with $170,000 in the preceding year.

Ceiling Prices Termed Blow.

Commenting on results of 1942 operations, President John McKinlay said: "Ceiling prices dealt us quite a blow because the office of price administration did not recognize the well known lag between wholesale and retail prices and chose to fix the month of March for both so that at the time we naturally would have increased prices because of increasing costs we were prevented from doing so. We are doing our best to overcome this hurdle by increasing economies in operation."

During the year the company opened 17 new stores and closed 82, ending 1942 with 950 stores in operation, compared with 1,015 the preceding year. At the annual meeting March 22 stockholders will vote on the nomination of Guy A. Thomas and Arthur J. Hansen as directors to replace Judson F. Stone and Guy A. Richardson, who have resigned.

Profits Nearly Doubled.

Profits of the Aviation corporation, New York, nearly doubled in the fiscal year ended Nov. 30, totaling $4,723,894, compared with $2,454,142 the preceding fiscal year. Earnings per common share, after preferred dividend requirements, were 82 and 42 cents, respectively. The company's federal taxes jumped to 6½ million dollars in 1942 from $725,000 the preceding year.

President Victor Emanuel disclosed that increased war production by the corporation and associated companies during 1942 resulted in deliveries aggregating 640 million dollars. He said the group's backlog of orders exceeds 2 billion 500 millions.

Net income of the Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator company increased to $2,868,008 in the year ended Dec. 31, equal to $4.29 a common share, compared with $2,737,295, or $4.20 a share, the preceding year. Sales climbed to $41,372,912 from $24,257,881. Taxes and contract renegotiation took $13,559,624.

Montgomery Ward Sales Gain 9 Pct. in February

February sales of Montgomery Ward & Co. increased to $41,443,487 from $37,968,895 in February a year ago, the company announced yesterday. This was a gain of 9.15 per cent.

AIR LINES ARE ORDERED TO SHOW WHY FARES SHOULD NOT BE LOWER

Washington, D. C., March 4 (AP).—The civil aeronautics board ordered 11 major air lines today to show cause why they should not reduce passenger fares by 10 per cent. The carriers were given 15 days to reply.

The CAB said the air lines had suspended discounts on passenger fares and also all special fares last July 1, which resulted in an increase in the average passenger revenue per mile flown.

The order went to American Airlines, Braniff Airways, Chicago and Southern Air Lines, Delta Air corporation, Eastern Air Lines, National Airlines, Northwest Airlines, Pennsylvania-Central Airlines, Transcontinental and Western Air, United Air Lines, and Western Air Lines.

Contract Data Ordered to Aid Little Business

Washington, D. C., March 4 (AP).—In a move designed to break what Sen. Tom Stewart [D., Tenn.] termed a "big business strangle hold" on war construction, the senate small business committee today demanded that Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the war production board make a full report by April 1 on all government contracts calling for 1944, 1945, and later deliveries.

The information sought would include type, number, and size of contracts, the names of companies holding the contracts, proof of their ability to perform, the total amount of such contracts held by any one company, and its subsidiaries.

The action preceded testimony by Charles E. Wilson, executive vice chairman of WPB, and Col. Robert Johnson, new president of the smaller War Plants corporation, that war work amounting to 30 million dollars now is being channeled to little concerns thru Johnson's organization.

Wilson cited the use of 1,500 companies in production of various parts for construction of a single type of new airplane.

In contrast, Chairman James E. Murray [D., Mont.] asserted the actual dollar value of contracts going to plants employing 500 or less from the seven services of supply dropped 47 per cent in December from November—a "most distressing commentary" on war department performance.

POTATOES CAN'T ESCAPE CEILING UNDER AN ALIAS

Retail grocers were warned yesterday by Raymond S. McKeough, regional OPA administrator, that potatoes sold at retail for table use "definitely" are under a ceiling and must be priced according to prescribed markups.

"Some confusion apparently exists in the retail trade because retailers are receiving potatoes tagged 'seed' and seed potatoes are technically exempt from price control at present," McKeough said. "However, regardless of how the potatoes are marked when received from shippers, if they are sold for table purposes, they must be priced under the regulation."

Westinghouse Seeking Loan of 200 Million

Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, at work on more than a billion dollars of war contracts, is negotiating a 200 million dollar V loan to help finance its activities, it was learned yesterday. Early announcement of completion of the loan is expected. The credit will be one of the largest arranged under a government guarantee since General Motors corporation announced on Oct. 17 that it was completing a V loan of 1 billion dollars from about 400 banks.

Final details of the Westinghouse loan are being worked out. It was understood that Chase National bank, New York, will participate in the financing to the extent of about 28 million dollars. Some of the large Chicago banks are expected to share in the loan.

Business at Billion Mark.

Under the impetus of war production, Westinghouse's order volume last year about doubled the 582 million dollars of business booked by the company in 1941. To meet war demands, the company engaged in a vast construction program which included a 30 million dollar naval ordnance plant completed early in 1942, and a 14 million dollar plant for the manufacture of propulsion equipment for the navy.

The company's radio division received a larger share of the billion dollar 1942 orders than any other division, A. W. Robertson, chairman, reported. However, big gains also were shown in the divisions making electric motors, transformers, switch gears, steam turbines, and generators.

Build Machines for Rubber.

Westinghouse is producing several million dollars worth of machinery and equipment for the key plants in the government's synthetic rubber program. This equipment includes explosion proof motors, turbines, and transformers for plants that will produce butadiene and styrene, two constituents of Buna S rubber.

Despite the large volume of war work, Westinghouse reported a downward trend in earnings for most of last year, and its officials at times expressed concern over the effects of high taxes and the uncertainties attached to government renegotiation of war contracts.

RECESS CONTROL FIGHT MEETING OF UNITED CORP.

Wilmington, Del., March 4 (AP).—The annual stockholders' meeting of the United corporation, highlighted by a fight for control of the firm, was recessed today until next Wednesday.

George H. Howard, president, said the recess will allow time for judges to complete tabulation of thousands of proxies brought in by opposing forces and to set a definite date for election of officers.

A group of stockholders led by Randolph Phillips of New York launched the fight yesterday when Howard announced appointment of two election inspectors aligned with management forces. Phillips, who claims to represent 18,000 stockholders, has announced he will nominate four candidates for election to the seven man board of directors.

TESTIFIES RAIL WORKERS LAG IN INDUSTRIAL PAY

Railroad workers belonging to the 15 nonoperating unions are paid less than workers in other industries, H. P. Melnikov, labor economist, testified yesterday before a Presidential fact finding panel. He said that workers in 73 classes of railroad employés were 32d in a list of 36 industries with respect to wages.

Melnikov testified before the panel headed by I. L. Sharfman which is assembling information regarding workers' demands for a wage increase of 20 cents an hour, with a minimum of 70 cents an hour.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen continued to present evidence on wages paid firemen on electric and Diesel locomotives before a panel headed by Frank L. Swacker. The two hearings are in the United States courthouse.

BRITAIN TAKES CONTROL OVER MOST OF FOODS

Sole Buyer of 90 Pct. of Imports.

The British government has assumed control of practically all foods consumed in England, Chicago representatives of the British information services said yesterday in explaining rationing and other controls.

The ministry of food, with plans made in advance and set in motion at the outbreak of war, has become the sole purchaser of more than 90 per cent of the country's food imports and it buys and controls the sales and prices of nearly everything the British farmer produces.

Each Gets 1¼ Pounds.

Meat is limited by rationing to 1 pound 4 ounces a week, compared with pre-war adult consumption of slightly more than 2 pounds. Cheese rations have been increased to 8 ounces a week, from the original 4 ounces, with vegetarians, farm laborers, and certain other workers receiving an additional 8 ounces. Before the war the average Briton consumed only 2.7 ounces of cheese a week.

Voluntary American rationing limits meat consumption theoretically to 2½ pounds a week, but government officials have said that when point rationing—borrowed from the British—makes rationing compulsory, the amount would be cut below that level. Recent Washington reports indicated meat and cheese rationing may be combined and limited to 1¾ pounds a week.

Comparison Made Difficult.

Comparison of the relative amounts of food available for civilians in the United States and England is difficult because of the rapidly shifting domestic situation occasioned by military demands, lend-lease, and rationing, but here are a few:

British civilians are allotted 2 to 5 eggs a month, depending on the supply, which has been augmented by quantities of dried eggs shipped from this country under lend-lease. Americans consumed an average of 26 a month in each of the last two years.

British consumption of fats, including butter, is cut to 8 ounces a week, from a pre-war average of 10½ ounces. American butter consumption is limited so far only by the housewife's purse and patience in shopping, altho there have been local shortages. Use of butter alone has averaged 5½ ounces a week per capita.

Bananas now are virtually unknown in England and oranges are

Schram Warns Against 'Blind' Buying of Low Priced Stocks

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Emil Schram, president of the New York Stock exchange, yesterday warned the public against indiscriminate buying of low priced shares. Schram's advice came as another two million share trade rolled up on the New York exchange. Contributing materially to yesterday's big turnover was lively speculative activity in low and medium priced stocks.

Schram said that present market activity mirrors rising confidence in the outlook for industry. There is a better prospect that the traditional American enterprise system will survive the war, he said, and the market reflects this promise.

Cheap May Be Expensive.

While expressing assurance in the healthy condition of the market Schram gave a word of caution about "blind buying" of low priced stocks in which much of the recent activity has centered.

"The securities which are cheapest in price," he said, "may in reality be the most expensive when measured by the standard of intrinsic value."

Under exchange rules all companies with listed securities are required to make public information on their earnings and financial condition. These facts, readily available to the public, should guide investors in the purchase of securities, he said.

Schram conceded that public discussion of growing speculative activity in the low price shares was a "delicate" matter. He took pains to avoid the impression that his remarks were intended as a blanket warning against purchase of all issues selling at low prices.

"We simply feel that individuals should not let themselves be guided solely by the fact that particular stocks are selling at very low prices," he said. "Basically, the recent market performance is healthy."

Industry Exceeds Forecast.

Industry under war conditions is exceeding the most optimistic production forecasts, he said, and production got so far ahead of Washington planning that it was necessary to readjust the entire program. This condition is naturally reflected in the stock market.

Most of the present buying is being done on a cash basis and some of it represents the reappearance of money that has been hiding for years in mattresses, he said.

The present market provides an excellent basis for the big April borrowing operation of the United States treasury, Schram said. Instead of competing with the government for funds the market is actually stimulating confidence and will result in putting more investment funds in government securities.

Schram discussed the market situation during a brief stay in Chicago to visit with his son, Robert, who is a first class petty officer at Great Lakes Naval Training station.

People and Events

Peter J. Klein of the Cracker Jack company last night was elected president of the Junior Traffic club of Chicago to succeed Ray De Groot. Others elected were George Rodocker, vice president; A. S. Beery, secretary; Harry W. Anderson, treasurer, and Victor L. Emery, Harold W. Gray, John H. Ihrig, William Noorlaj Jr., and C. E. Hoople, directors.

H. K. Carey has been appointed eastern superintendent of reservations service in Chicago, United Air Lines announced yesterday. He had been superintendent of reservations service in San Francisco, Cal.

C. J. Dare, district representative of General Foods corporation's Chicago area, has been promoted to manager of the Omaha district sales office.

Robert L. Stott, chairman of the board of the New York Stock exchange, will not be a candidate for reëlection. He will devote his time more fully to his own brokerage business.

TEXTILE MILLS REQUESTED TO GO ON 48 HOUR WEEK

Washington, D. C., March 4 (AP).—The WPB today asked all textile, fabric, and yarn mills to go voluntarily on a 48 hour week and to start three shift operations wherever possible.

Frank L. Walton, director of the WPB textile and clothing division, said he had approval from the war man power commission to issue the request, altho the textile industry was not included among those recently ordered to go on the lengthened work week on a nation-wide basis.

Chicago Department Store Sales Rise in Week, Month

Chicago department store sales in the week and four weeks ended Feb. 27 rose 30 per cent above the corresponding periods a year ago, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago announced yesterday. Sales in the entire 7th [Chicago] federal reserve district increased 27 and 30 per cent, respectively, in the two periods.

STOCKS CLING TO SMALL GAIN IN BIG TURNOVER

Trading Again Tops 2 Million Shares.

New York, March 4 (AP).—The stock market felt the force of cross currents today, but managed to hold enough of its early advance to leave the Associated Press 60 stock average up 0.1 at 46.4, highest since November, 1940.

Many market followers with paper profits on the previous session's sharp runup took advantage of a further broad rise which seemed to have been touched off by the news of destruction of the formidable Japanese convoy off New Guinea.

Buying Tide Recedes.

The buying tide receded noticeably after noon, and with this came increasing pressure of offerings, particularly in rails, steels, and a group of relatively high priced industrial specialties which at their best had shown advances ranging from fractions to 2 or more points.

In activity and breadth, the market set more peaks. The 961 different issues traded were the largest number since Dec. 30, 1941. Transactions totaled 2,007,450 shares against yesterday's 2,017,680 in the third 2 million share day this year.

Case and TWA Hold Gains.

Among stocks which held on to all or a fair part of their rise were Case Threshing, up 2½; Transcontinental and Western Air, up 1½; Eastman Kodak, up 1¼, and du Pont, up 1.

United States Steel, up a point at its top, closed unchanged, but Bethlehem was ahead ⅜. In rubbers, motors, aircrafts, and oils losses were generously sprinkled at the finish. Santa Fe closed 1¼ lower, and most other rails were well down from their highs.

BOND RISE HALTED.

New York, March 4 (AP).—Profit taking, combined with mounting caution among buyers, today halted, at least temporarily, the rapid advance in the corporate bond market.

Trading was active—$24,178,000 par value—but appreciably lower than the yesterday's $32,172,000, when turnover in domestic issues was the largest since 1934. All domestic groups in the Associated Press averages were unchanged.

CHICAGO PRICES RISE.

Prices rose on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday on turnover of 67,000 shares. Volume leaders were Miller & Hart, up ⅛ to a new 1942-'43 high of 1⅜; Chicago corporation, up ⅛; Merchants and Manufacturers Securities and Midland United A preferred, up ½, and RCA, down ⅛.

Have New Conditions Weakened Your Estate Structure?

If you have less time to manage your own investments, or . . . IF you have neglected to bring your trust and estate plans in line with present-day facts, or . . . IF you have named an individual to be executor and trustee of your estate, . . .

Then the chances are that the effect of present conditions has weakened the plans you have developed to conserve your property and protect your family in your estate arrangements.

Trust and estate plans you completed some years ago may not have made sufficient allowance for changes in investment values, taxes, interest rates, or the cost of living. Perhaps you should arrange to have your family receive not only investment income from your trust, but also payments from principal in case of necessity. The individual you selected to be your executor and trustee may lack experience, or be too busy, or not available, to give proper attention to complicated estate problems when the time comes.

An experienced officer of our Trust Department will be glad to discuss with you and your lawyer the possibility of improving your estate, trust and investment plans. Such a discussion implies no obligation, and will be held in strict confidence.

FIGHT REPORTED PLAN FOR LIMIT ON STORED EGGS

Traders Say Order Would Build Federal Supply.

Chicago egg distributors yesterday protested an order reportedly under consideration by the department of agriculture which would limit the storage of eggs during the coming season of surplus to eggs which have been contracted to federal agencies in shell, dried, or frozen form.

O. W. Olson, assistant business manager of the Chicago Mercantile exchange, said in calling the meeting at the exchange that the consideration of such an order can be based only on the government's belief that it will not obtain all the eggs required. Olson said that if department of agriculture 1943 production estimates were realized there will be enough eggs for both government and civilian needs.

Would Go to Government.

Trade representatives said that such an order would divert large quantities of eggs to the government because distributors would be unable to store them for other purposes.

Some trade members protested the discrimination in favor of those supplying the government. Many said if such an order went into effect they would be forced out of business.

The exchange suggested that as alternatives the government, if necessary, could earmark eggs as is done with butter; remove price ceilings on eggs for lend-lease and the army and navy, or enable processors to build up stocks by prohibiting immediately for a short period storing of any eggs.

Prices Make Wide Gains.

In one of the widest advances of the season, egg futures on the mercantile exchange rose 0.40 to 0.70 cent a dozen as buying was stimulated by reports of heavy demand at country points, continued favorable clearance of supplies locally and in the east, and further advances in army purchase prices in the midwest. March fresh graded futures closed at a 23 year high of 38.25 cents a dozen.

The March delivery of contract grade eggs finished 0.45 cent higher at 39.60 cents bid, a new record for the month in storable eggs, and Octobers gained 0.40 cent at 42.40 cents.

Approve Milwaukee Road Budget for Improvements

Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe yesterday approved a $10,756,017 1943 improvement budget submitted by trustees of the Milwaukee railroad. The trustees said expenditures probably would not exceed 75 per cent of the amount authorized because of government restrictions on materials.

Day by Day on the Farm

By GAIL COMPTON

New Calf Arrives.

March 4, 1943.

THERE is a new calf in the Shorthorn herd. Born less than two weeks ago, the youngster shows a great deal of promise and may be one of the best calves the herd has produced since it was started two years ago.

The calf is a bull and may be matured and sold for breeding purposes. Its arrival brought the Shorthorn herd to 19 head. There are 13 cows in the foundation herd, a herd sire, four calves, and a yearling steer.

Eleven Cows Bred.

The bull was purchased late last fall to replace the original sire which was shipped to the stockyards because it became lame. The new bull is a fine looking animal. Eleven cows have been bred to him since last fall, and the herd soon will see what type of calf the bull can produce.

The Shorthorns have a separate barn. They are housed in the building formerly used for the young dairy stock. Box stalls were torn out and tie stalls erected. Now the animals are lined half the length of the barn, haltered, with feed bunks before them. The other half of the barn contains box stalls used for cows and their young calves.

There is warmth and a sweet odor in the barn. Body heat of the animals acts as a stove. The silage and hay are sweet smelling.

Indoors in Bad Weather.

When the weather is bad the herdsman keeps the cows indoors, tied in their stalls. When the weather is not severe the animals spend the day outdoors in pasture lots adjoining the barn.

The herd has passed the winter in good condition, well fleshed under rich, dark red coats. An animal's coat is often a good barometer as to its health. One that is coarse and lusterless may mean bad rations or poor digestion.

The cows carrying calves are getting abundant hay and silage along with ground corn and oats, and a little bran. The cows which are being bred now get similar diet, but less grain. A breeding cow can winter in good flesh without grain, but the herdsman believes in sufficient grain to improve her appetite.

Exercise Aids Calving.

Exercise is one of the herdsman's formulas for strong healthy calves. Cows that stay in the barn all the time and are fed too much grain will get fat and may have difficulty in calving.

The Shorthorns receive almost as much attention as the Guernsey cows, for they represent a considerable investment and carry some of the best Shorthorn blood in the country. The men at the farm hope that one day this herd will take its place among the best in the nation.

ENGLAND TAKES CONTROL OVER MOST OF FOODS

reserved for children, who also have first call on the limited quantities of fruit juices. Potatoes are plentiful and the government is urging larger consumption of them and less of wheat, which requires valuable shipping space.

Quotas Are Supplemented.

The sugar ration has been the same in each country, tho the American allotment for the next rationing period beginning March 16 has been trimmed to 7.3 ounces, against the continued British quota of 8 ounces a week.

The basic British ration is supplemented by a system of point rationing for foods made available in varying quantities depending on import volume and the amount of domestic production. Canned goods, largely from the United States, are an important part of the point system. Invalids and mothers are given special consideration in food supplies.

The British ministry of food is the largest international purchaser of such items as meat, sugar, dairy produce, oil seeds, cocoa, and cereals, according to the information service. The government controls the planning, production, processing, and distribution of all domestic foods.

Normal Methods Are Out.

Meat is under particularly stringent control, but Scotland Yard had to be called in to curb British "black markets" operated by organized gangs. Normal meat marketing methods have been entirely suspended.

The closest approach in the United States to England's drastic meat regulations is the current proposal to license slaughterers.

The British deficiency in eggs, fresh fruit, milk, and other dairy products is being fought thru efforts to increase home production of vegetables and compulsory addition of vitamins to prepared foods.

FAMILY HEAD.

A married woman, now divorced, keeps house with her 11 year old daughter. She earns $1,620 a year and has no other income. In figuring her income tax is she entitled to the $1,200 exemption as head of a family, plus $350 exemption for the daughter? Are there any other deductions possible?—H. W.

Answer: She is entitled to the $1,200 exemption as head of the family if the regular 1040 return is used. However, since she acquires the head of family status by reason of the daughter's dependency, the mother cannot claim an additional dependency credit of $350.

Other allowable deductions include taxes and interest paid, contributions, and so on. If the simplified return is used, the taxpayer is given an automatic credit for personal exemption, earned income credit, and deductions aggregating 6 per cent of net income.

PAY NOW.

I have enough money to pay all of my income tax. Due to the fact that congress may forgive some part of the taxes, I would like to know if it is advisable to pay a one-quarter instalment now or the whole amount?—A. T. F.

Answer: It is not at all certain what congress will do about 1942 taxes and the pay as you go plan. At any rate, if all or part of 1942 taxes is forgiven, those who have paid in full will be treated fairly. Their money will be refunded or applied to current taxes. Since you have the money for 1942 taxes on hand, why not pay up the full amount now and enjoy the comfort of knowing that one big bill is out of the way?

DEPENDENT.

During 1942 I earned $2,085. Our daughter was not 18 until October. Can I take a deduction for a half year? Also, our medical expenses were $100. What deduction can I take for this?—W. O.

Answer: If you file on the simplified form 1040A, your daughter will be counted as a dependent for the entire year, giving you a deduction of $385. The medical expenses will not be deductible.

If you file on the regular form, 1040, you will be entitled to a dependency deduction for the portion of the year your daughter was under 18. For a full year this deduction is $350 on form 1040. The medical expense will be deductible only to the extent that it exceeds 5 per cent of net income.

MONEY FOR INCOME TAXES
Costs Only 75c
Higher taxes and larger pay roll deductions may make it difficult for you to meet the March 15 deadline this year. If so, get the cash you need from Commonwealth. By repaying in monthly instalments tailored to your individual needs, you are relieved of the burden and inconvenience caused by large lump sum payments, like taxes. The cost is based on a monthly rate of 3% on balances of $150 or less and 2½% on that part of the unpaid balance over $150, and is, as illustrated above, quite moderate for short-term loans. Get any amount from $10 to $300.
FREE INCOME TAX BOOKLET: Written especially for the taxpayer in the low and medium income brackets, this pamphlet suggests numerous ways to reduce your taxes. It may save you money. For your copy call in person at any Commonwealth office.
